Dog fighting—scent of money, cruelty, excitement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dog fighting is illegal in every state, but according to hearings conducted by a House subcommittee, it is flourishing — complete with its own magazines, professional breeders and language taken from the bullfight and the days of bareknuckle boxing.

It is a contest for those willing to pay perhaps $20 a person to see two dogs, both trained to fight and to kill, tear each other apart. Bets are taken on the outcome.

It is big-time, high-stakes gambling. Duncan Wright, president of the American Dog Owners Association, estimated $100,000 could change hands at a single fight.

Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the House agriculture subcommittee on livestocks and grains, has introduced a bill to prohibit the interstate transportation of dogs for fighting, use of the mails to promote dog matches, or any other interstate activity.

A study conducted by his staff estimates there are about 1,000 dogfights a year, with the number attending ranging between about a dozen to over 400 in weekend-long "conventions," which may involve between 5 and 20 separate fights.

Rep. Peter Kyros, D-Maine, one of the bill's 30 cosponsors, estimates that there are "5,000 persons who follow the scent of money, cruelty and excitement that extends nationwide."

Bernard Carey, an Illinois state's attorney from the Chicago area, Wednesday said that he investigated three fights this year.

"Patrons who attended the matches included residents of Cook County (Ill.), Tennessee, Texas, Missouri, Ohio and New York State," he said. "The occupation of the patrons ranged from physicians to construction workers. Women and children were among the spectators."

The dogs are trained with treadmills to increase their strength and stamina and clamps to increase the width and strength of their jaws.

They begin fighting angered kittens, shaken up in a sack, then small dogs that become progressively larger.

The fans meet under tight security, sometimes with armed guards.

"Information concerning future fights is closely guarded," Carey said, explaining that spectators receive post cards only on the day of the event or are all driven to the fight scene by an organizer.

The dogs fight in a "pit" 16 feet square, surrounded by 2 ½foot high plywood walls, on a canvas floor.

In the center is a "scratch line," where the dogs are placed and they fight until one "turns," refusing to fight any more. A Foley aide said sometimes the owners demand the chance to return.

"It appears to be a question of honor among men," the aide said. "It may take two years to train a dog."

The fights are recorded in four magazines which cater to the trade, complete with pictures. They even contain advertisements for kennels which raise "pit bulls" for fighting. A dog which has survived three events is a "champion."

The fights involve "unbelievable brutality," said Carey.

"Prior to one of the fights, a referee twisted the head off a live pigeon and poured its blood over the head of one of the dogs to show the animal's desire for blood and to entertain the spectators."

It is illegal —at least a misdemeanor —in every state. However, Arthur Amundsen, a director of the American Humane Association, said enforcement is lax.

"We had difficulty," he said, "and usually have had to go to the highest police authority within the state in order to conduct raids and secure convictions."

SEN. JOHN HARMER

Expect Harmer to be named new Lt. Gov.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today was expected to announce appointment of Sen. John L. Harmer, one of the most conservative members of the legislature, to succeed Ed Reinecke as lieutenant governor.

Reagan, acting six hours after Reinecke's sentence to an 18-month suspended term for felony perjury, called a news conference to disclose his choice to replace the man he handpicked as his heir-apparent in 1969.

Harmer, the trailing Republican nominee for lieutenant governor in the Nov. 5 election, previously announced he would accept the nomination if Reagan offered it, but volunteered the action could be interpreted as "political wheeling and dealing" in the Watergate climate.

Reinecke became the first constitutional officer in California history to be tried, convicted and sentenced for perjury, and apparently the only statewide official to forfeit his office because of conviction of a "high crime."

However, the office of Democratic Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr. said that even if Harmer was appointed, his name would not appear on the general election ballot as an "incumbent" because the deadline for ballot printing had long passed. The "incumbent" designation is regarded as a natural for voter appeal.

Harmer, active in Reagan's efforts to reform welfare and property taxes, ran unsuccessfully for the GOP nomination for attorney general in 1970 against Evelle J. Younger.

Fires raging out of control in Peru

Thousands flee mighty 'quake

LIMA, PERU (UPI) — A mighty earthquake hit southern Peru today, and amateur radio operator reports from the town of Canete 100 miles south of Lima told of fires raging there out of control.

Lima itself rocked for a full minute and residents fled into the streets, wailing prayers. There was no immediate estimate of casualties or damages and the city of Lima appeared to have escaped the brunt of the temblor. Most communications within the country and to the outside world were knocked out by the strong quake which struck at 9:28 a.m. (10:28 a.m. EDT).

A civil defense bulletin read over the national radio said the epicenter of the quake was 30 miles out to sea, off Canete. It said the quake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale and 6 to 7 on the modified Mercali scale. Ten on the Richter scale represents total destruction.

Long time residents of Lima said the quake felt stronger than the one in 1970 which devastated the northern half of Peru and killed nearly 67,000 persons. Seismograph stations in other parts of the world recorded the quake as harder than the 1970 catastrophe.

Clocks in Lima business offices stopped at 9:28 a.m. when the electricity failed. Plaster crumbled from walls, broken glass fell onto sidewalks and light fixtures were broken loose from the ceiling of the UPI office in downtown Lima.

Downtown Lima was quickly deserted. Shops closed, office buildings were shut because residents feared a second and even stronger aftershock might follow. The UPI bureau moved to the west coast cables office which still had short wave radio communications with the outside.

A spokesman for American Telephone and Telegraph said phone service from Lima was restored after a two-hour cut. He said the 28 satellite circuits cut by the earthquake were put back in operation, but backed up calls were delayed by as much as two hours.

The Lima fire chief said first reports indicated the most heavily damaged part of Lima was in the Rimac section where older, predominantly wooden buildings make up most of the homes.

Amateur radio reports from Lima reaching amateur operator William Deininger, in Oakland, Calif., said a Lima station later told him there was no apparent loss of life in the capital city. Another amateur report received in Tucuman, Argentina, spoke of a "seismic catastrophe" in southern Peru.

A spokesman said if the quake hit heavily populated areas there would be heavy damage and possible high loss of life.

The U.S. National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo., reported a "major' earthquake struck an area near Lima and said there was a strong possibility that serious damage occurred.

Dave Carver, a geophysicist for the service, said the quake measured 7.5 on the Richter Scale. The center of the tremor was pinpointed 120 miles south of Lima.

"It looks as though it really could have caused some heavy damage," Carver said.

The scientist said a quake which measured at 7.8 on the Richter Scale hit Peru in 1970, leaving 66,794 persons killed or missing and causing $250 million damage. That quake, which hit on May 30, was located north of today's tremor.

FIRST LADY IS DOING JUST FINE

President Ford holds hands with the First Lady while visiting her at Bethesda Naval Hospital Wednesday. The President said Betty is doing "very, very well" and that she is "two or three days ahead" of what doctors predicted would be her rate of recovery from cancer surgery.

Nixon asks Sirica to be excused from testifying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon today formally asked Judge John J. Sirica to excuse him from testifying at the Watergate coverup trial, apparently because of ill health.

Motions to quash both prosecution and defense subpoenas for Nixon's testimony were delivered at 11 a.m. to the closely guarded chambers where Sirica was interviewing prospective jurors for the trial of five of the former president's associates.

Herbert J. Miller Jr., Nixon's lawyer, refused to say what the envelope contained. But Sirica disclosed the contents about 45 minutes later.

"They will be filed under seal until the court has had an opportunity to review them thoroughly," Sirica said.

The subpoenas would require Nixon, one of 20 unindicted co-conspirators in the coverup, to answer questions about the alleged conspiracy for the first time since he resigned his office and received a full pardon from President Ford.

The motions to quash the subpoenas were believed to have argued that Nixon, who has been hospitalized with a new flareup of phlebitis, is too ill to travel to Washington from his home in California and too weak to endure the rigors of attending a trial that may last as long as three months.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski suggested last week that Sirica might wish to consider sending a team of doctors to California to examine Nixon before ruling on whether he must comply with subpoenas for his appearance.

Sirica had started the long process of individually questioning prospective jurors for the trial.

One for men's lib? teacher fired for posing in the nude

APPLE VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) — It isn't only female teachers who get fired for posing in the nude.

Physical education teacher Lou Zivkovich was ordered dismissed Wednesday by the trustees of the Victor Valley Joint Union High School District for appearing in the nude in the June issue of Playgirl magazine, which features photos of nude men for female readers.

A Milwaukee area female teacher was fired a few months ago for appearing nude in a men's magazine.

"This is a rather conservative community, and that's where the problem has been, not so much with the students or faculty," Superintendent William Tarr said.

Zivkovich, a teacher at the Apple Valley High School since 1968, has 30 days in which to request a hearing, or the firing is automatic.

A pathetic portrait of senior citizens

Poll claims young picture those over 65 as unalert, ineffective, sexually through and rotting away

DETROIT (UPI) — The average citizen thinks of senior citizens as "old people rotting away in poor health," according to a nationwide Harris poll released in Detroit.

Pollster Louis Harris announced Wednesday the results of what he called the most definitive study ever conducted of people over 65 at a national convention of the Council on Aging.

"To put it bluntly," he said, "the portrait of mature citizens drawn by those who have not yet reached maturity is that of unalert, physically inert, narrrow minded, ineffective, sexually finished old people rotting away in poor health, without proper medical care and without enough money to live on.

Even sadder, he said, is that senior citizens view their own age group essentially the same, although those polled did not believe they personally fit the image.

Harris blamed the attitudes on enforced stereotypes about older people as well as pity and lack of respect shown towards the elderly by younger persons.

"But the key fact is that people 65 and over are very much alive and well," he said. "They are decidedly not prepared to view themselves as individuals who are rotting away."

A total of 4,254 adults, including 2,797 senior citizens, were interviewed last spring by the Harris firm for the Commission on Aging.

Some 61 per cent of the younger persons surveyed believed the elderly suffered from loneliness, but only 12 per cent of senior citizens said they did. And while 68 per cent of senior citizens considered themselves bright and alert, only 29 per cent of the younger sample believed the elderly were alert, Harris said.

"It is not hard to predict that we shall see a wave of militancy among senior citizens as their numbers rise," Harris said.

Scott, Mansfield join committee to watch CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's oversight subcommittee on the Central Intelligence Agency will be expanded to include Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and GOP leader Hugh Scott, it was announced today.

The announcement by Sen. John C. Stennis, chairman of the CIA subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee, came after a bid was made Wednesday by Senate liberals to restrict the activities of the CIA abroad.

The Senate accepted an amendment to the foreign aid authorization bill, before it was sent back to committee, that would have banned the agency's covert operations in foreign countries, unless the President declared them to be in the interest of national security.

RTD strike bill dies in Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill designed to end the seven-week strike by 4,000 bus driver and mechanics in the Southern California Rapid Transit District has died in the Assembly.

The measure did not come to an Assembly floor vote Wednesday because the Senate had adjourned and no vote in the upper house would be possible.

Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades, said if the strike was not settled by this weekend, he might ask legislative leaders to reconvene the session "so the Senate can do its job."

The Assembly Labor Relations Committee Wednesday approved the bill (AB4537) by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, on a 6-2 vote. But by the time the bill reached the Assembly floor, the Senate had adjourned.

The measure would have provided a seven-day "free" negotiating period before the employes returned to work during a 75-day cooling-off period.

Kenneth Hahn, president of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, told the committee that if no legislative action was taken to end the strike, the board might ask Gov. Ronald Reagan to call the legislature into special session to resolve the issue.

The bill was opposed by representatives of the striking unions who called it a "strike breaking measure."

The bill would have allowed removal of seven members of the RTD board of directors if no progress was reported in collective bargaining during the cooling-off period.

Another measure to cut off a $150,000-a-day state subsidy to the RTD died in the Assembly Transportation Committee.

Assembly also trims Reagan money

Pension bonus plan is axed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California legislators returned to their re-election campaigns today, boasting they finally passed a bill to end the big pension "ripoff."

The measure would repeal extravagant early pension benefits for lame-duck lawmakers, chop in half Gov. Ronald Reagan's $30,000-plus annual pension and sharply reduce retirement checks for other top state officials.

Culminating a four-day special session called in response to public outrage over the pension bonanzas, the Assembly and Senate Wednesday passed the bill with only one "no" vote and sent it to Reagan's desk.

The governor's press secretary, Clyde Walthall, said Reagan would sign the measure "within a few days." The provision slashing his own pension "doesn't cause the governor any problems," Walthall added.

Punctuated by bitter partisan harrangues, the election-time session saw lawmakers try in vain to override 19 of Reagan's 174 vetoes, an anonymous bomb threat at the Capitol and sergeants-at-arms trying to "arrest" absent sc[illegible] in "Keystone Kops" fashion.

On the [illegible]ctic day, the Assembly also [illegible] measures designed to remove the political heat from their future pay raises and to help end the seven-week strike against the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

The session was called last week by Reagan strictly to deal with the early retirement bonus for lawmakers. Democrats expanded the issue into slashing retirement benefits for Reagan and other constitutional officers.

The pension bill (AB7) by Assemblyman Bob Wilson, DSan Diego, passed on an overwhelming 71-0 vote in the Assembly and a minimum 27-1 vote in the absenteeism-plagued Senate.

Sen. Lawrence Walsh, D-Downey, who had expected to receive a $500-a-month pension starting next year, cast the only "no" vote.

The only debate occurred when Senate Republican Leader George Deukmejian complained that Democrats had refused to permit a public hearing on the measure.

"I hope we are not all going to be embarrassed again in the future when it is brought to light that this bill is going to operate in some ways we don't expect," the Long Beach lawmaker said.

But after the session ended, lawmakers were quick to issue news releases extolling their action.

Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, said he was "proud" of the measure, pointing out that it also would grant the bonus benefits to widows of legislators who leave office this year but die before the retirement age of 60.

Sen. Omer L. Rains, a Ventura Democrat and Senate sponsor of the bill, praised the legislature for "at last responding to the angry cries of the people," who he said were "ready to end the political careers of those who vote in favor of such pension rip-offs."

The bill would cut Reagan's pension from about $33,000 to approximately $18,000 by repealing huge cost of living increases built into the governor's retirement plan.

In the same fashion, it also would greatly reduce the pensions of other state constitutional officers.

The roundly criticized early retirement plan for lawmakers permitted legislators with four years service to collect pensions immediately regardless of age if they leave office in a reapportionment year, such as this.

Nine lawmakers had been certain to qualify for the early pensions, including former Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys. The cost for the nine would have been $900,000 between now and the time they reached 60.

In the unlikely event all of 61 eligible legislators were to be defeated or quit this November, the eventual cost could have skyrocketed to $5.9 million.

Efforts to kill Reagan vetoes fail

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — They huffed and they puffed, but Gov. Ronald Reagan's final heap of vetoes still stands.

Two days of concentrated, and even sometimes bipartisan, efforts in the legislature to override Reagan collapsed Wednesday when the absentee-ridden Senate turned up one vote short.

Left intact after adjournment were all of the Republican governor's record 198 "cut, squeeze and trim" vetoes this year, including measures to provide millions of dollars in inflation relief to schools and the elderly.

Four overrides were rejected in the Senate; five in the Assembly, which was a turnabout from the previous day when a bipartisan majority of assemblymen voted in quick order to reverse nine Reagan vetoes.

In the scramble for votes, angry senators called for a search and the arrest of colleagues who were not in attendance. A few were vacationing, one as far away as Greece.

"What are the sergeants-at-arms doing to find these members," demanded veteran Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach.

"I'm sure they're doing everything they can," replied the presiding officer, Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose.

"I'd be glad to take a subpoena to Greece," volunteered Sen. Ralph C. Dills, D-Gardena, referring to vacationing Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland.

The effort netted a single senator—Democrat Alan Robbins of Van Nuys, who was 200 feet down the hall in the Assembly chamber.

Seven of 39 senators were absent. Perhaps a dozen more attended only part of the daylong proceedings.

There also were partisan overtones. The search was initiated by Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, and aimed partly at his GOP election opponent, Sen. John L. Harmer, who was campaigning and not officially excused from the Senate.

Dymally sought to force Harmer to fly from Southern California to cast a vote on an override, but the Senate adjourned only minutes later.

Here is a rundown on Wednesday's override attempts:

—Schools. Appropriates $74 million to help schools meet rising costs. Defeated in the Senate 25-6, short of the 27 votes needed. SB1502-Dills, D-Gardena.

—Elderly. Reduces property taxes $60 million a year for the elderly. Defeated in the Senate 26-6. AB417-Wilson, D-La Mesa.

—Contracts. Provides for payment to public work's contractors when subcontractors work in dispute. Defeated in the Senate 19-12. AB3330-Powers, D-Sacramento.

—Mobile—Grants owners of mobile homes new rights in dealing with trailer park landlords. Defeated in Senate 15-10. AB4326-Keene, E-Eureka.

—Choke. Requires restaurants to have available "choke saver" devices for patrons. Defeated in Assembly 42-5, short of the 54 votes needed. AB2696-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

—Prison. Provides for state reimbursement of trial costs in cases where inmates escape from state prisons. Defeated in Assembly 20-6. AB2573-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

—Television. Establishes a public telecommunications council. Defeated in Assembly 20-8. AB492-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

—Ambulance. Allows some counties state reimbursement for ambulance service provided indigents. Defeated in Assembly 31-22. AB218-Quimby, D-San Bernardino.

—Aged. Prohibited inspection fees on federally-subsidized housing for the elderly to cut rents. Defeated in Assembly 33-22. AB4186-Kapiloff, D-San Diego.

Blaze ruins two model mobile homes in valley

A fire of undetermined origin Wednesday night swept through two model mobile homes parked in the Old Mission Trailer Sales lot at Ramona Avenue and Holt Boulevard in Montclair, causing an estimated $22,000 damage, firemen reported.

Firemen said they received a call about 6:45 p.m. from a service station attendant who said a mobile home was on fire on Holt Boulevard. When they arrived, a 24-by-60 foot furnished mobile home was engulfed in flames. The fire quickly spread to a second model mobile home nearby before firemen could bring the blaze under control.

Fire inspectors said the fire apparently began in the center portion of the larger of the two mobile homes.

Three youths hurt, one critically, in car crash

Three young persons were injured, one critically, when their small car flipped end-over-end and crashed into a field near Base Line Road and Fruit Street, La Verne Wednesday night.

Passenger Michael Cline, 15, 9245 Mills Ave., Montclair, was the most seriously injured. He had a skull fracture and back injury and was in critical condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit.

The driver, Karen A. Miller, 19, 122 N. Pflueger St., Glendora, suffered a broken pelvis. She also was in the intensive care unit, but in satisfactory condition.

The third person injured was Todd Polley, 15, 4684 Olive St., Montclair. He was in satisfactory condition today at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Fontana. His brother, Terrance E. Polley, also 15, did not require immediate medical attention.

Police reported that Miss Miller was driving westbound on Base Line when she swerved to avoid an animal in the road. The car struck a curbing, plunged into a drainage ditch and then flew into the field.

Miss Miller and young Cline were thrown from the vehicle during its careening. Firemen were sent to the scene to remove the other two persons from the car.

Storm front here a dry one

A storm front moved through the valley areas this morning leaving nary a sprinkle or drop of measurable rainfall as predicted earlier.

This puts the valley four months into its officials rainfall season with a dry scoreboard. But the weatherman explained that October is that kind of month: "One that brings threats of storms but leaves only drizzles and Santa Ana conditions that raise temperatures to the mid 90s."

Although it sometimes rains late in October, December through March are considered the "wet months" in valley areas, according to Wilbur Shigihara of the National Weather Service.

The forecaster said he expects a high today of 77 and a warmer 80 degrees Friday. Temperatures over the weekend are also expected to be in the low 80s with nighttime lows in the mid 50s.

Woman, 60, is victim of rape

A 60-year-old woman living alone was raped Wednesday night by a man who forced his way into her Northeast Ontario home through a bathroom window.

The woman said she had just gone to bed about 9 p.m. when she heard a noise in the bathroom. When she went to investigate with a flashlight she was confronted by a man who forced her back into the bedroom with a pocket knife. The man reported threatened to kill the woman unless she submitted.

Police described the man as being about 20 to 25, 5 feet 8, 150 pounds. The woman suffered a small laceration on her neck.

Judge orders psychiatric report on bomber suspect

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Two psychiatrists were appointed Wednesday to determine whether Muharem Kurbegovic, the alleged "Alphabet Bomber," of killing three persons in an airport is competent to stand trial on charges bomb blast.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Choate also delayed Kurbegovic's arraignment and plea until Oct. 23, pending completion of the psychiatrists' reports.

Kurbegovic, 31, is accused of planting a bomb in a locker at the Los Angeles International Airport Aug. 6 that killed three persons, injured 35 others and caused extensive damage to the international departures terminal.

Kurbegovic allegedly identified himself as Isaac Rasim, military commander of Aliens of America, in tape messages to the media. He allegedly planted the bomb at the airport and another at a bus station, which was deactivated before it could go off, to emphasize his demands that all immigration and sex laws be abolished.

Kurbegovic, a Yugoslavian immigrant, was dubbed the "Alphabet Bomber" when he allegedly said he was going to spell out in blood across America the lettered sequence of the group he claimed to represent.

"I'm going to advise him not to communicate with the doctors," said Gerald Chaleff, deputy public defender, who opposed the appointment of the psychiatrists.

Chaleff said he wanted to make a more complete investigation of the case before he would advise his client to cooperate with the doctors.

During court proceedings Wednesday, Kurbegovic scribbled furiously on a white note pad and handed his jottings to his attorney.

Kurbegovic has maintained, through handwritten notes, that he is mute. He has been held without bail since he was indicted by a county grand jury Sept. 25. At that time, the district attorney's office said it would seek the death penalty.

Chaleff stepped in as Kurbegovic's attorney after Daye Shinn pulled out of the case Wednesday after the defendant told him he had no money.

Shinn currently awaits prosecution for perjury in connection with leaked information to a reporter during the Charles Manson murder trial.

Union opens up physical exams to area residents

Physical examinations are available to the public through Communications Workers of America Local 9588.

Examinations will be given weekdays through next Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 675 W. Bonita Ave., Pomona.

The cost for a complete physical is $47.75 for adults and $37.75 for children 13 to 18. Cash and major credit cards will be accepted. Children under 12 will not be examined.

Those who wish to take advantage of the service must call 983-9651 for an appointment.

Steve Olney, president of the local, was the first person examined when the service began Wednesday morning.

A staff of professional personnel with Multiphysic is performing the examinations. Each examination takes about 40 minutes.

Olney said the primary purpose of the project is to provide health care for employes of the General Telephone Co. who are members of the local. The local has 2,800 members in the area between Pomona and Palm Springs.

Crash seriously hurts area youth

A 17-year-old La Verne youth suffered severe neck lacerations Wednesday night when the car in which he was riding ran off Stephens Road in La Verne and hit a tree.

Richard Fehrenback of 5003 Cadley Drive was listed in satisfactory condition at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. In addition to neck injuries, he also suffered a possible concussion and spinal injury.

The driver, Hans Peter Ceelen, 16, of 1254 Ruggles St., La Verne, suffered lacerations to his hand and was treated at the hospital and released.

Highway patrolmen said that Ceelan was southbound on Stephens Road at too high of a speed to negotiate a right-hand curve north of Brydon Road. The car skidded off the pavement, went through a wire fence and hit a tree.

Police credited with saving man who slashed his wrist

Pomona police officers Dale LeFleur and Robert Thomas were credited with saving the life of a man who slashed his wrist in a suicide attempt early today.

The victim called and said he cut himself because his wife had left him. LeFleur and Thomas arrived first and administered first aid in a hallway while awaiting an ambulance.

The man, 27 years old, was taken first to Pomona Valley Community Hospital, where he was treated, and transferred to County-USC Medical Center for surgery.

A hospital physician said later that without the prompt action taken by the two officers, the victim probably would have bled to death. He was reported in fair condition today.

VALLEY BRIEFS

County makes deal on 31 patrol cars

SAN BERNARDINO (CNS) — The County Board of Supervisors has approved the purchase of 31 new cars for the Sheriff's Department in order to save almost $12,000.

In a letter to the board, Sheriff's Inspector James K. Harvey said Ford and Chevrolet were increasing their prices by about $350 per car in 1975, but said they could obtain the needed cars from the American Motors Co., at 1974 prices.

The board approved a total of $155,575 for the purchase of the cars plus 21 multi-channel radios for the new vehicles.

Valley cities to get $760,000 in tax aid

The State Board of Equalization has announced that valley cities will receive more than $760,000 in the September allocation of sales and use tax receipts.

The city of Pomona will receive a total of $308,150, down from last year's allocation of $311,775 for the same period.

Other valley cities will receive: Claremont, $27,362; La Verne, $16,725; San Dimas, $18,123; Walnut, $6,739; Chino, $52,369; Montclair, $147,942; Ontario, $117,273; and Upland, $68,756.

Head-on collision injures two drivers

A Seal Beach man and a Chino woman were injured Wednesday afternoon when two cars collided head on on Central Avenue in front of the California Institution for Men's front gate in Chino, police reported.

Mrs. Hilda Van Veen, 21, of 16347 S. Mountain Avenue, Chino, was listed in satisfactory condition today at Chino General Hospital with multiple injuries. The driver of the second car Leonnard Matsuk, 21, of Seal Beach, was given emergency medical treatment for minor injuries at the Chino hospital and later released.

Police reported that the Seal Beach man's car was attempting to turn left onto Merrill Avenue when the crashed

Gas station hit by two robbers

Two men, one with a revolver, walked into an Ontario service station at 1724 S. Euclid Avenue in Ontario Wednesday night, and robbed the attendant of a small amount of cash and receipts.

The attendant was counting the nights cash receipts when the men ordered him to give them the receipts and the cash in the open safe. Both robbers fled on foot.

Record freeze in Midwest

Earliest snowfall of century in East

By United Press International

Syracuse, N.Y., residents went to work and school in an inch of snow which fell early today, and Pittsburgh, Pa., got a dash of early morning snowfall, the earliest to arrive in this century.

A record freeze in Ohio probably brought an end to the corn and soybean growing season throughout the state, according to agriculture officials.

"What didn't get it last week got it last night," said Homer Carter of the Ohio Agricultural Crop Reporting Service. "That ought to finish off the growing season."

Similar reports came from Illinois and elsewhere in the Midwest.

Record low temperatures put this Oct. 3 into history with Milwaukee, Wis., and Lexington, Ky., recording a chilling 27 degrees and the Chicago area mercury dropping to 26 at DuPage County Airport.

More record lows were set at Indianapolis, Ind., Buffalo, N.Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., Louisville, Ky., and Binghamton, N.Y.

The unseasonable cold, the product of an air mass which nestled in over the area several days ago, brought temperatures down to the lowest ever on an Oct. 2 Wednesday in Grand Rapids, Mich., South Bend, Ind., Charleston, W. Va., and Binghamton.

Snow coated portions of the lower Great Lakes, the extreme upper Ohio Valley and the northern Appalachians. Up to four inches fell Wednesday in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Frost and freeze warnings remained in effect early today for the Ohio Valley, middle Mississisippi Valley and the central and southern Appalachians.

Snow also was expected in northern and western New York and the mountain areas of Maine and New Hampshire. A travelers advisory was issued for the Adirondack Mountains in New York.

Temperature records tumbled in scores of communities in Nebraska, South Dakota, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Administration emphasis on conservation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is considering energy conservation measures that include heavy taxes for excessive use of gasoline, electricity, natural gas and other fuels.

The measures generally would provide tax relief for energy-thrifty Americans with incomes of $15,000 or less, government officials said.

One of the proposals, a "refundable fee" of 20 to 30 cents per gallon of gasoline, for motorists who drive less, drew an angry public response Wednesday.

"The switchboard was jammed all day," said a spokesman for the Federal Energy Administration. "People were calling us and their congressmen to oppose it."

Other proposals under consideration are:

—Excessive use surcharges if consumers use more natural gas and electricity than they did the previous year.

—A tax credit for homeowners of up to 40 per cent of the amount spent for insulation, storm windows and other energy conserving expenditures.

—Legislation to require large energy consumers to develop conservation programs and follow them. Voluntary projects sponsored by the Commerce Department last winter generally failed, one FEA official said.

The proposed "refundable fee" on gasoline was disclosed by FEA Administrator John Sawhill in Washington and Deputy FEA Administrator Roger Sant in San Francisco.

Under the Sawhill plan, which FEA officials said has "circulated at the highest levels in the White House," motorists would pay what amounts to a tax of 20 to 30 cents per gallon when they buy gasoline.

The government then would give each motorist $100 back each year. It would be paid to them through their employers, at the rate of $2 per week added to their pay checks.

With a 20 cent tax, a person who drives 10,000 miles a year in a car that gets 20 miles per gallon would break even, paying $100 in tax and getting $100 back.

If he drove less or his car was more efficient he would make money. If he drove more, with his car gulping gas, he would lose money.

Thus Americans would have incentive to save gasoline. According to one version of the plan, even Americans who do not drive at all would get $100, providing the biggest incentive of all to those who walk.

Reacting to earlier reports of a gasoline tax, Sen. Edward M. kennedy, D-Mass., said: "Let's start rolling back the prices for gasoline before we start new taxes."

Both Johnson and Martinson are members of the Academy. Johnson's best-known work in English is the novel "Return to Ithaca." and Martinson is best known for the novel, "The Road."

Martinson, a former sailor who went to sea at the age of 14, has had only four books translated into English. He became known to a wider audience in 1956 with "Aniara" which was later made into a Swedish opera. Other books in English include "Cape Farewell," and "Flowering Nettles."

During his earlier years, Martinson sailed the high seas for many years as ship's boy, stoker, coal heaver, cook, tramping for thousands of miles in India, Europe and South America, using his experiences in his writings.

In later years he displayed another side—a preoccupation with nature in all its forms, from the microscopic to the cosmic, with an interest in botany, zoology and physics.

A sense of emergency

'Silent suffering' people will demand controls--Schlesinger

HOUSTON (UPI) — Historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. said Wednesday Americans will demand government controls on the economy if inflation isn't checked by 1976.

"People won't stand for four more years of silent suffering," Schlesinger told a group of financial analysists. "They will demand action and control of the economy through the federal government."

Schlesinger said he expects the Ford administration to do little to stop inflation beyond recommending continuation of present economic policy, which he said consisted of reducing government spending, tax gimmicks to encourage investment and a slight easing of interest rates.

"The idea that you can control a $14 billion economy by lopping $7 million to $10 million off the federal budget as Ford proposed implies a small tail wagging a large dog," he said. "And reducing the interest rate and prayer won't be enough.

"We need time to determine and tackle the underlying causes of inflation. I predict the country will soon come to feel it's time for total and direct control over wages and prices."

Schlesinger said a sense of emergency would produce public acceptance of wage-price controls.

"And double-digit inflation is beginning to create a sense of emergency," he said. "Controls will only work under national commitment to compliance, adminstrated by people who believe in controls and administered with equity.

"Where market forces set prices is one thing. But, in fact, prices are set in collusion by big business and big labor. And if prices are going to be fixed, then the public interest ought to be represented."

Rocky hints annoyance at delay of nomination

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nelson Rockefeller Wednesday suggested in his first major speech since nomination as vice president that he is somewhat annoyed with the prospect of Congress delaying his confirmation until after election day.

Filling in for President Ford at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, and here at a meeting of UPI editors and publishers Wednesday, Rockefeller never directly criticized the Democratic controlled House and Senate.

In fact, when asked directly if the delay bothered him Rockefeller responded, "I have total confidence in the committees and in the Congress — whatever their decision may be."

But in his speeches he showed a gentlemanly annoyance at the announced intention of the House Judiciary Committee and the Senate Rules Committee not to take up his nomination before recessing Oct. 11 for elections.

Rockefeller said he was in a "suspended state —I'm almost halfway through hearings that have been suspended until after elections —so I don't know what my status is. So my ability to speak is somewhat limited."

Rockefeller recounted how the President has asked him to take over the leadership of the National Commission on Privacy —a job Ford held as vice president.

"I said it's kind of late," Rockefeller said chuckling, "mine's gone —I have answered questions on everything from my personal finances to the state of the economy."

The main target of Rockefeller's remarks was Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who was the former governor's toughest questioner at last week's Senate hearings.

Rockefeller received an enthusiastic reception from 23,000 students at Brigham Young and warm applause from the 400 editors and publishers at the UPI convention.

In his speeches, Rockefeller proposed that the Western world merge its technical knowledge with the money amassed by the Arab oil countries in efforts to combat the world food shortage.

He said such an endeavor would help to balance the world economic situation and reduce inflation at home.

But he said it would require a joint effort of the world's democracies, the Communist countries and the Arabs, perhaps under the direction of the United Nations.

LITTLE MEN OR BIG TRUCK?

The University of Nevada, Las Vegas football squad had a brief workout Wednesday in the bed of this Terex 33-19 Hauler, which goes on display at Las Vegas Convention Center Monday. With a payload of 700,000 pounds, the truck's bed could move double the aggregate weight of all National Football League players. Over-all length is 66 feet, 9 inches, or merely the lenth of a couple of first downs.

Mideast populated areas threatened with attack by Israeli-Arab weapons

By United Press International

Israel has threatened to shell heavily populated areas in Egypt and Syria if the two Arab countries use their new Soviet-supplied missiles to attack Israeli towns.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin warned Wednesday that Scud missiles in Egyptian and Syrian hands "constitute a threat to population concentrations" in Israel.

"I believe the only answer to the Scuds is to say that if you use them against civilian populations, then your civilian populations will be hit," Rabin said. "There is no need to detail how they will be hit."

Rabin made his remarks in a speech at the town of Qiryat Shemona during a day-long tour of Israel jittery northern border region.

Military sources predicted stepped-up guerrilla raids across the border to press Palestinian bids for recognition at the United Nations and the Geneva Middle East peace conference.

Although Israel has never acknowledged that it possesses comparable surface-to-surface missiles, the London-based Institute of Strategic Studies said last month Israel is producing a number of Jericho missiles.

Both Cairo and Damascus lie within the Jericho's range, said to be 280 miles. The Scud missiles have a reported range of 60 miles.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said in Washington Wednesday that unless Israel withdraws from occupied Arab lands "within six months there could be war."

Yamani also said the price of oil depends on progress toward an Arab-Israeli agreement. "I assure you if we can solve the Israeli problem, the price of oil will come down," he said.

He said the Arabs would reimpose their oil embargo against industrialized nations if fighting erupts again in the Middle East.

House cuts funds for Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House that was ready to impeach Richard Nixon has decided that his resignation does not entitle him to $850,000 in public funds for the transition to private life.

It voted 317 to 72 Wednesday for a supplemental appropriations bill which would give Nixon only $200,000 and insisted that no taxpayers' money be used to transport the White House tapes to California.

The House appropriations committee proposed giving Nixon $398,000, but by a 342-47 vote, the full chamber subtracted $145,000 of the $245,000 request for the first six months out of office and by a 321-62 margin, removed $53,000 from the $153,000 earmarked for his second six months.

Both amendments were offered by Rep. Joseph Addabo, D-N.Y.

The action was likely to have an effect on the Senate. Its Appropriations Committee scheduled a meeting behind closed doors on its subcommittee recommendations to give Nixon $328,000 in transition money.

Cattlemen, politicians argue over calf slaughter

STEPHENVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Ranchers and politicians shouted and argued beside an eight-foot-deep pit —the politicians calling for a postponement and the financially strapped cattlemen explaining why 500 months-old animals must be shot to death.

A telegram arrived from Gov. Dolph Briscoe suggesting the ranchers donate unwanted and expensive calves to charity instead of shooting and burying them.

"We could give them to charity but charity couldn't raise them either," said Bill Fanning, who brought six calves to be killed Wednesday. "They haven't been alive long enough to raise a debt.

"You can't eat these calves now and by the time you raise them to where you can eat them —six months —with all the feed and equipment they're worth less than they are now."

A bulldozer pushed dirt from the depths of the burial pit and the crowd shouted for the machine to stop in order for the speakers to be better heard.

"The price of milk and the price of feed is about the same," said W.L. Payton, a Stephenville dairy farmer. "A pound of milk I sell buys me a pound of feed and there's no way you can make it that way.

"It takes $140 to $150 to produce a calf to six months and at the six months they are being sold for $75."

Texas Agriculture Commissioner John White pleaded with the ranchers to reconsider.

"I believe if you go ahead and kill those calves there's going to be such a public reaction that we can't get anything done.

"I tell you my heart really is with you, but there ought to be a better way."

White called on the cattlemen to give their animals to Boy's Ranch.

"If you donate these calves to a boy's ranch, the government will just have to subsidize those ranches," cattleman W. L. Flowers replied. "We are not here to donate. We're trying to say something else."

White finally convinced the cattlemen to delay the slaughter for two weeks, but the overwhelming majority of the ranchers who listened predicted the calves would be killed sooner or later.

"Last month I lost $600 and that was the first time in a half a century I have not made a profit," Payton said. "It's going downhill now and there is no way it's going to get better."

Holds out olive branch to Israel

Soviet doing about face?

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet affairs experts said today the Kremlin, after years of growing hostility toward Israel, has held out an olive branch signalling the prospect of a policy change.

Twice in succession statements from the Communist party and the government have gone out of their way to acknowledge the "independent sovereignty" of Israel and to foreshadow the "development of relations with it, broken off since 1967.

Soviet affairs experts said these statements must be seen as high level signals of a shift in Moscows Middle East policy and as a word of advice to militant Arabs that they must abandon plans for the destruction of the state of Israel.

This message, they said, must be read especially against the background of Moscows recent talks with the Palestinians.

The first hint came in the current issue of Communist, the official publication of the Soviet Communist partys policy-making Central Committee.

"The Soviet Union is not hostile to the state of Israel as such, it said in a survey of the Middle East. What Moscow opposes is Israel's policy of annexation and the flouting of international law, Communist added, after urging Arab governments to range themselves behind Russia to force concessions from Israel.

The theme was taken up in public and more explicitly shortly afterwards by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in his speech before the current United Nations General Assembly in New York.

"The Soviet Union also stands for the existence and development of Israel as an independent sovereign state," he said.

The absence of polemics against Israel's alleged policy of aggression and expansionism added to the significance of the statement by the man who, from past experience is not apt to extend a peace feeler without a specific decision by the higher councils of the Kremlin, the experts said.

Nevertheless, no quick change in Moscow's Middle East policy was anticipated.

The olive branch toward Israel —still very tentative and delicate —may, in the view of the experts, reflect Moscow's wish to improve its stance at the projected Middle East peace negotiations.

Huge tax on gas wouldn't hike supplies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A proposed 30 cents a gallon federal tax hike on gasoline might reduce consumption, but it won't increase supplies, the vice chairman of the Standard Oil Co. said Wednesday.

George M. Keller, speaking at a news conference, was responding to a suggestion made Tuesday by an official of the Federal Energy Administration that a "conservation fee" be attached to the cost of gasoline, hiking it some 30 cents to about 85 cents a gallon for regular.

"This particular device would very definitely have some effect on reducing demand," Keller said.

"On the other hand, it would do absolutely nothing to increase the supply, whereas I think the actions of the free market would do both."

58 per cent of county voters are Democrats

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — More than 58 per cent of 3,227,393 persons registered to vote in the county are Democrats, while 34.6 per cent are Republicans, Registrar-Recorder Leonard Panish reported Wednesday.

A breakdown of individual parties include 1.87 million or 58.42 per cent Democrats; 1.1 million Republicans; 13,489 American Independent; 13,938 Peace and Freedom and 14,293 belonging to other parties. Some 183,433 persons declined to state their political affiliation.

'Gold check' only worth 10 cents

BELL GARDENS, Calif. (UPI) — It was anything but a "gold check" for Harold Smith.

Smith, 62, who receives $248.20 in Social Security Disability each month, wanted to see if he could get additional assistance to help pay for the $30 or more he spends on medicine each month.

He went to the Social Security Administration office and applied for supplemental income, called "gold checks," he said.

Smith, who was forced to retire from his job with Chrysler Corp. in 1969 after a heart attack, received his first "supplemental" check Tuesday.

It was for 10 cents.

"I used to pay way over $100 a week out of my salary in taxes," Smith complained. "Now I just get 10 cents. "It's kind of embarrassing to take a 10 cent check to the bank."

Arabs new capitalists of world—Rocky

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Vice Presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeler Wednesday described the inflationary impact of the Arab oil countries' price increases as "the most major revolutionary change that's taken place in the world without a war."

"It's had an impact on every aspect of life all over the world," Rockefeller said in an address to 23,000 students at Brigham Young University.

"The action of the Arab countries has resulted in a $65 billion per year tax on the world—that's in addition to the cost of the oil," he said.

"In one year, their accumulation (of money) is more than all American investments abroad," he said. "They don't realize it yet, but the Arabs will end up as the new capitalists of the world."

Rockefeller made the speech at the request of President Ford, who was originally scheduled to appear at the university and later in the day at the United Press International Editors Conference in San Francisco.

Ford was forced to cancel the speeches when his wife Betty was hospitalized with breast cancer last weekend.

Rockefeller was greeted at the airport by about 50 persons and as he drove from the streets, about 500 elementary school students, some of them carrying American flags, lined the roads.

The only sign of protest was one man at the airport with a sign: "Welcome big brother."

Rockefeller was met by Utah's two senators, Democrat Frank E. Moss and Republican Wallace F. Bennett, and by Gov. Calvin L. Rampton, a Democrat, and Mormon church president Spencer W. Kimball.

Talking to reporters on the flight from New York City, Rockefeller appeared unconcerned about Congress' delay in acting on his nomination until after the November general election.

"I have total confidence in the committees and Congress— whatever their decision may be," Rockefeller said when asked if he was annoyed by the delay.

At the airport, Bennett, who is retiring at the end of the year, congratulated Rockefeller on being "assured" of confirmation.

"Well, I'm glad you're so confident, but I've got to be a little more cautious," Rockefeller said. "If you win by one vote, you're happy; it's like an election."

In his speech, Rockefeller said the world food shortage was one of the biggest problems to be resolved in curing inflation.

"It's an international problem, and we can help by increasing U.S. production and by building storage facilities to meet famine," he said.

"But other nations must be helped in producing enough to feed their own people."

"The Arabs are going to have to help finance this," he said. "They've got the money—and it has to be done under the auspices of the United Nations to give the Arabs the security they need for their investments."

Cooperative education growing

On-the-job training part of the college curriculum

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — At Ohio State University recently, President Ford called for some changes in higher education.

Adding his voice to growing criticism of programs that prepare students for careers and-or jobs that do not exist, the President urged the academic world to mix a little better with the practical.

Cooperative Education is one plan that blends hands on experience during the school years—"the practical"—with academics. And students are paid during the getting of the "practical" experience.

Among those cheering President Ford's challenge to the nation's colleges and universities is Stewart B. Collins of Philadelphia, Pa.

Collins is director of cooperative education at Drexel University and executive secretary of the Cooperative Education Association.

"The Cooperative Education movement is advancing at such a pace that it is hard to keep count," Collins said in a telephone interview.

"Some 370 schools were into it three years ago and now there are around 600. If President Ford puts his approval on the movement, it will grow faster."

Simply put, cooperative education combines a quality academic curriculum with the excitement and rewards of on-the-job experience for which the students are paid.

The movement at college level was started by the University of Cincinnati in 1906. Northeastern University in Boston began cooperative programs in 1909. Between then and 1919, joining the movement were Drexel University in Philadelphia, the University of Detroit in Michigan, the University of Akron in Ohio and Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

The Drexel Plan and those at the pioneering cooperative education institutions, by contrast, is a requirement of most of the undergraduate programs.

It is a five-year program at the college of engineering, at the college of science, at the college of business and administration.

Collins said Drexel operates one of the largest cooperative education programs in the nation, with students alternating periods of study at the University with periods of employment in business, industry, government and the professions.

Students spend from 11 to 12 quarters (a quarter is a three-month period) in college, and three to seven quarters in cooperative training during their four or five years at Drexel.

In each of the sophomore and junior years, for example, students spend six months at college and six months in a job.

Collins said the average pay is $125 a week and the range of weekly pay is from $80 to $200 a week, depending on the student's area of specialization and the degree of his skill.

There are more than 1,000 employers involved in the Drexel program, including some outside the country. For example, at this moment and until January, Drexel juniors Cheryl Hall and Louisa Hanshaw are in Florence, Italy, working with famous designer Emilio Pucci. It is a cooperative education assignment that began last June.

Both girls are majoring in retail management.

Within a one year period, Drexel placed more than 3,300 students with 1,250 employers in 29 states and seven foreign countries.

The cooperative education plan also means education may be financed on a pay-as-you-go basis. Almost half of the total tuition costs was paid out of earnings from employment through the cooperative plan. This past year, Drexel students earned a total of $8.5 million.

'Fifi' second most deadly hurricane

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hurricane Fifi, which reportedly killed between 7,000 and 8,000 persons in a stormy rampage across northern Honduras, ranks as one of the most deadly hurricanes of the century.

The only higher death toll caused by a hurricane —or a typhoon, as the storms are called in the eastern hemisphere —occurred in the Bengal region of eastern India, with 11,000 fatalities in 1942, according to the World Almanac.

Other disastrous hurricanes hit Galveston, Tex. in 1900, killing 6,000 persons, and Cuba and Haiti in 1963, taking 6,000 lives.

Border watch for aliens intensified

WASHINGTON (U... The Immigration and ...lization Service is shifting personnel from other duties to the "on the line watch" along the Mexican Border to try to stem a growing tide of aliens crossing into this country illegally.

INS Commissioner Leonard F. Chapman Jr. said Tuesday he is making this move and other changes in the service to meet the most pressing problems with what he calls an inadequate budget.

"Because of shortages it has become necessary to decide between operating all INS programs ineffectively or shifting resources to the highest priority programs, which is what we have done," Chapman said.

Chapman has repeatedly warned Congress that the "inundation" of illegal aliens entering the country threaten to create a "national crisis."

To try to get better enforcement along the 1,000-mile Mexican Border —main focal point of the illegal entry problem —INS is boosting the manpower of the "on the line watch" on the Mexican border from 630 positions to 1,082, an INS spokesman said.

The "line watch" ranks in the past have been spread so thin that the officers were able to respond and investigate only about one third of the warning signals they received from an array of electronic sensor units along the border, the spokesman said. With increased manpower, he said, "we hope for 90 per cent."

Some of the added manpower along the border will be personnel removed from interior points where they had been checking ranches, farms, groves and factories for the presence of illegal aliens.

"We hope to deter more from crossing, but once they cross the first line of defense, they will have a better chance of escaping detection," Vern Jervis, INS public information officer, said.

To beef up manpower at inspection stations along the Mexican border, the INS is drawing on 22 one-man interstations on the Canadian border, Jervis said. If the Customs Office does not take them over, they will be closed and the minor traffic routes they serve will have to be barricaded, Jervis said.

Dairy co-op to pay $230,000 fine in conspiracy

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The nation's largest dairy cooperative, whose former president and a top lobbyist have admitted conspiring to bribe John Connally, agreed to pay a $230,000 fine, but denied Texas officials could prove violation of state antitrust laws.

Associated Milk Producers Inc., with 40,000 members in 14 states, also promised to stop coercing dairy farmers, milk haulers and processors into doing business exclusively with the giant milk cooperative.

Texas Attorney General John Hill filed suit against AMPI June 24 accusing the co-op of monopolizing milk marketing, waging price wars, coercing farmers, haulers and processors and of trying to control milk prices in federally regulated market areas and thus discriminate against non co-op members.

AMPI lawyers agreed to pay $100,000 immediately and $10,000 per month for 13 months.

Hill said the settlement was based on an agreement reached and signed Sept. 13 in Washington. Hill said, however, AMPI tried to renege on the agreement just before Tuesday's court session.

"I guess they just realized I wasn't going to change my mind," Hill said after AMPI attorneys agreed to honor the settlement.

State District Judge Tom Blackwell signed the judgment against AMPI and termed it fair and just.

Co-op lawyers argued the court order should not prohibit AMPI from manipulating milk price subsidies to induce dairy farmers to join the cooperative. But Hill refused to drop the inducement language.

The settlement prohibits AMPI from refusing or even threatening to refuse to deliver or market the milk of any dairy farmer who ends his membership. AMPI also agreed to send written notices to each of its 1,200 Texas member dairy farmers and milk haulers notifying them of the court judgment.

Harold S. Nelson, the former head of the co-op, has pleaded guilty to conspiring to bribe former Texas Gov. Connally to help persuade former President Richard M. Nixon to raise federal milk price supports in 1971. Jake Jacobsen, a former Connally associate and AMPI lobbyist, has pleaded guilty to giving Connally a $10,000 bribe.

Sick of violence

Cardinal: No. Ireland not in religious war

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Cardinal William Conway of Northern Ireland said that his country is not beset by religious war and the great mass of its population is "utterly sick of the violence and passionately pray for peace."

Conway told Pope Paul VI and the World Synod of Bishops that "the image of a whole people steeped in violence and fighting a religious war in the 20th Century is fundamentally false and one hopes that it will be recognized as such throughout the world."

Conway said "it is a political and social conflict" and that "in fact, relations between the Churches (Catholic and Protestant) as such are very good." He said one significant aspect of the situation "is the fact that in modern society tiny groups of ruthless men can keep a whole population in turmoil."

He said much less than one per cent of Northern Ireland's population actually engaged in the violence.

Turned back on Nixon

Maryland candidate lost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Much is being made of the theory that Rep. Larry Hogan lost the Maryland Republican gubernatorial primary because he jumped the gun on the impeachment of Richard Nixon.

Hogan is the GOP House Judiciary Committee member who created a 24-hour sensation by announcing the day before the public hearings on impeachment began that he had decided to vote for impeachment.

Many political observers, not just Republicans, [illegible] move as a not too subtle play by Hogan to put himself in the role of "Mr. Clean" in what he was expecting to be an uphill general election contest with Democratic Gov. Marvin Mandel.

Maryland Republicans responded Sept. 10 by giving the nomination to Louise Gore, the state's GOP national committeewoman.

Instant analysis on election night concluded that Hogan lost because he deserted the President at a time when most Republicans were hold ing the line for him. The fact that all of the committee Republicans and virtually all in the House eventually were prepared to vote for impeachment was not considered a factor.

The result was taken by some analysts as a simple act of political punishment against a party member who stepped out of line. Hogan's own comments after the election tended to encourage that view.

Maryland Republicans could have been punishing Hogan solely because he turned on his president out of season, but the circumstances of the primary make such a conclusion somewhat questionable.

First, there was the nature of the campaign Hogan waged. His only primary opponent was Miss Gore, but he campaigned as if he had no opposition.

Instead of seeking out Republicans in the state to tell them why they should choose him as their nominee or even why he abandoned Nixon, Hogan apparently assumed that he would win the primary without strain and used his campaign principally to attack Mandel.

State employes

Credit cards for phoning canceled

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Some 13,000 state employes carrying government telephone credit cards today were directed to cancel them and use new procedures when making long distance telephone calls.

The order by the Department of General Services followed a critical report by the state Auditor General which charged there were "inadequate controls" resulting in excessive telephone costs. Telephone calls ranged from a few miles to points around the world.

From now on, the department order said, when credit cards are necessary because of fiscal requirements, justification shall be submitted to the department.

The cancellation of the cards applies to all state, state college and University of California employes. It does not affect legislators or judges.

The memo indicated that employes should charge long-distance calls to their office number through an operator. When using a credit card the caller gives the operator a credit card number and the number he wishes to call.

"Inadequate controls by the Communications Division of the Department of General Services over the issuance to and use be state employes of telephone credit cards permit their misuse and have resulted in excessive telephone costs," said the auditor general's report issued a month ago.

The management memo, although it had the cover letter to the auditor's report attached, said the state leased line telephone system has been expanded and "there is no longer a need for state telephone credit cards."

In a survey of some 5,000 employes in Sacramento, including legislators, the auditor general found in a month's time that national and worldwide credit card calls totaled 87 hours at a cost of $2,703.

The calls were made between California and other points such as Japan, Switzerland, Hawaii, Jamaica, Mexico City and Acapulco. Of these calls the auditor's office said there were seven from Japan by a Water Resources employes for $411. Another employe had three from Switzerland for $185.

The auditor general estimates there are 10,558 state employes who have telephone credit cards plus another 3,000 college and university employes. But auditors said there is no centralized listing of telephone credit cards and it is hard to determine just how many are in circulation.

Some of the excessive costs, according to the auditor general's report, resulted in state employes using the more expensive credit card calls when the less costly state lease line was available.

In a one month survey of the 5,000 Sacramento-based state employes, the auditor general found telephone credit card bills over $50 totaled $29,673.

"Except for a few instances where special billing may be necessary because of fiscal grant requirements or special fund requirements, there is no longer a need for state telephone credit cards," the memo said.

SOMETHING FOR THE FUTURE — Harry Steitz, gas attendant at a service station in Willow Grove, Pa., uses a pump that measures fuel by the liter instead of the gallon. It's an experiment designed to introduce the American public to the possible nationwide conversion to the metric system.

Test at the pumps

14.3 cents a gallon --in liters, that is

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (UPI) — The woman motorist did a double-take when she saw the unit price on the gasoline pumps in a service station in this suburban Philadelphia community: 14.3 cents.

But her surprise and pleasure quickly turned to disappointment when the attendant explained the gas was being measured, pumped — and priced —in liters. It takes 3.7 liters to make a gallon.

"That's un-American," she snorted.

Another motorist complained, "It took me 40 years to learn one system and now it will take me another 40 years to learn a new one."

But the two disgruntled motorists were in the minority among patrons of the Sun Oil Co. station which has been cooperating with the state Bureau of Standard Weights and Measures in a three-month experiment that began recently.

The experiment is designed to introduce the American public to the possible future nationwide conversion to the metric system.

"Eighty per cent of the customers really like it," said attendant Sam Wilson, 26, of Philadelphia. "They figure they are getting the same amount and aren't getting cheated.

"Those who don't like it are mostly older generation who find it kind of hard to change," he said.

"It is coming," said Walter Junkins, director of the state bureau. "Every year for the past five or six years, somebody in Congress has proposed that the country go on metric system.

"It looked like it was going to pass this year, but it was defeated. It will come up again,' he added.

George Santosusso, 29, of Brookhaven, Pa., manager of the station, which is a Sun Oil training center for sales personnel, said one island of pumps still works in gallons —"just in case anybody rejects" the liter experiment.

"But no one has completely rejected it or driven over to the other island," he said.

"Usually they look two or three times when they see the smaller price," Santosusso said. "But then we hand them a leaflet explaining the conversion scale, and they usually like it as long as they don't have any figuring to do."

"You don't get cheated,' said customer George Berringer, 70, of nearby Horsham, Pa. "Theyre just measuring different."

Federal order cuts down on chemical use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New government orders will sharply reduce the amount of potential cancer-causing chemicals now being used by the plastics industry and farmers.

The Labor Department's new regulations cutting to almost zero the amount of vinyl chloride gas to which factory workers may be exposed was challenged by the plastics industry.

An official of one company said the rules would throw 2 million people out of work and said the firm would take legal action against the rules.

The Environmental Protection Agency, delayed by two months by a challenge from Shell Chemical Co., ordered a halt to further production of two pesticides, aldrin and dieldrin. The two chemicals are used on about 10 per cent of the nation's corn crop.

EPA chief Russell Train said the pesticides pose an "imminent hazard" of cancer in humans and are particularly dangerous to infants because of their consumption of dairy products especially likely to have residues of the chemicals.

"Residues of aldrin-dieldrin are present in virtually every member of the U.S. population," Train said.

The new vinyl chloride rules from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration of the Labor Department came after several months of growing evidence that workers exposed to the widely used plastics industry gas were developing a rare but fatal form of liver cancer.

Under the new regulations, workers may be exposed to no more than one part per million average over eight hours after Jan. 1 and no more than five parts per million in any 15minute period.

Firestone Plastics Co. said Tuesday the rules put the industry "on a collision course with economic disaster." An official of the firm said the restrictions would "throw 2 million jobs down the drain."

That figure is the total number of persons employed in the plastics industry. Only several thousand work in factories where the raw gas itself is made before it is turned into polyvinyl chloride and later turned into everything lion in any 15-minute period.

Body of kidnaped woman found in car

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — FBI agents acting on an anonymous tip have found the body of the kidnaped wife of a bank executive in the trunk of a car abandoned in a wooded suburban area.

FBI special agent Joseph Sylvester said an autopsy would be performed on Mrs. Jean Reville, 48, to determine the cause of death.

Mrs. Reville apparently was kidnaped Monday morning on her way to work as a nurse at University Hospital from her country home near the community of Hephzibah.

Eatonton Reville, 53, vice president and manager of a branch of the Georgia Railroad Bank and Trust Co., said he was stopped on his way to work later Monday morning by three men wearing ski masks.

He said the men told him his wife was locked in the trunk of their car and they demanded a ransom.

Reville said he drove directly to the bank with the men following him. He said he emptied an undisclosed amount of money, reportedly around $30,000, into a plastic bag and gave it to them.

The bank executive whispered to an employe as he was leaving that, "My wife is being held for ransom," and the employe notified a security officer who called the FBI.

Reville, who wears a back brace as a result of a recent hip operation, later was found unharmed in the trunk of his car. He was hospitalized in fair condition.

An intensive search was launched for Mrs. Reville, who was described as in poor health.

Sylvester said authorities received a tip Tuesday night that led to the car in a wooded area three miles off a highway in the suburban community of Martinez.

Tacoma unemployment

Count on port expansion

By ROBERT McDANIEL

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — The 20th Century has been hard on Tacoma.

Once the premier port on Puget Sound and headquarters for much of the West Coast timber industry, the city is now plagued by a decayed downtown area and chronic unemployment.

Unemployment in the Tacoma metropolitan area which includes all of Pierce County, when measured for both severity and persistence, was tops in the nation earlier this year.

Allen Goodwin, planner of the Tacoma area office of the state Department of Employment Security, said that as of last May, Tacoma was one of two cities rated highest in unemployment of the nation's top 150 labor markets.

He attributed the problem to the nosedive five years ago of the Boeing Co., and continued high interest rates which are stifling the timber and lumbering industries.

While Boeing has come back, Tacoma has not, Goodwin said.

He said the city is not getting much help.

"We've been screaming our heads off about it for the past four years," he said. "But sometimes we can't get anyone to listen."

Goodwin said a partial answer to the unemployment problem could be more government aid.

"President Ford has announced plans for public service jobs in areas of severe unemployment and Tacoma should qualify under any criteria," he said.

Government already is the largest employer by far in the Tacoma metropolitan area.

However, the situation is not totally bleak.

The large available labor force and huge chunks of unused prime industrial waterfront land have resulted in an $800 million project in the city.

The Ralph M. Parsons Co. chose Tacoma over established ports in Houston and Los Angeles as a manufacturing and staging area for material destined for Alaska's North Slope oil field.

W.C. Nations, Parsons' resident contract manager, said the firm plans to hire more than 2,000 workers in the near future.

He praised the port of Tacoma staff headed by Roy A. Perry, for putting together a package guaranteeing Parsons 90 acres of waterfront land.

Nations said that because of the available labor Parsons plans to bring in only 110 persons to handle administrative tasks for a total work force of about 2,500.

Optimism also was expressed by H. Dewayne Kreager, president and board chairman of Pacific First Federal Savings and Loan, one of the largest such institutions on the West Coast.

He said the combined ports of Tacoma and Seattle, 30 miles to the north, should be the biggest on the West Coast in the near future.

He said shipments to the Alaska oil fields would play an important part in the expansion.

"It may take Tacoma a little longer to catch up with Seattle, because it is not as well known, but it will come," Kreager said.

"Unfortunately, Tacoma resisted becoming part of the metropolitan Puget Sound area for so long that it let its downtown area deteriorate terribly," Kreager said.

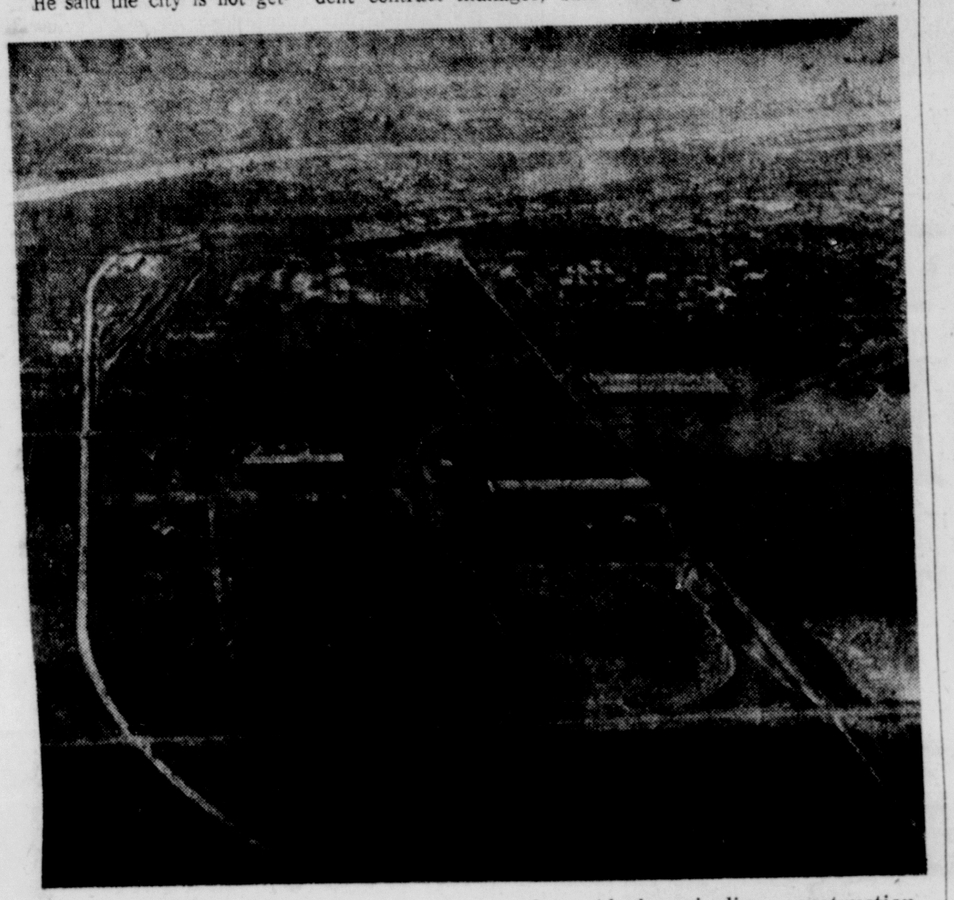

"For instance there isn't even a hotel of any consequence in downtown Tacoma," he said. Kreager said a large part of the problem stemmed from the fact that much of Tacoma was once controlled by a very few families.

He aid the holdings are now split and tied up in trusts making urban renewal a slow and painful process.

Kreager said the city took it hard when most of the timber industry moved corporate headquarters out of town.

However, he praised a restoration project underway to provide a downtown shopping mall. Another plan would convert the city's historic railroad station into a shopping center.

"I personally think Tacoma is probably five years away, but we can begin to see the visible signs of it coming back," Kreager said.

TACOMA boasts huge chunks of vacant land near port which could spark industrial development. Coupled with anticipated port activity when Alaska pipeline construction gets into full swing, city leaders hope port and land development will spark economic recovery.

Cigarette smoking

Why teen-agers light up

A Close Look at the Teen-agers Who Smoke Cigarettes — and Some Reasons They Light Up, Editor's Note: Following is the second of three dispatches on cigarette smoking among young Americans.

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Among teens as a whole, the number who smoke —and that means one or more cigarettes per week or one or more per day — is 15 per cent of the teen-age population.

By age 18, however, almost one third of the boys smoke and one quarter of the girls do.

These rates stay steady through the college years and don't change too much for adults. Results of a recent national Campus Opinion poll show that 25 per cent of college students smoke five or more cigarettes a day.

But of those who said they do not smoke, about one in three reported that they had, at one time, smoked. This indicates, to the keepers of the statistics, a bright side to the smoking picture. To wit:

"A large number of students may be starting to smoke and then quitting."

In its 1974 study of teen-age smoking, the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health smoking found that cigarette smoking among teenage boys increased between January of 1968 and January of 1970.

It dropped back by January 1972 toward the 1968 level and at the beginning of 1974 it remained near the same level.

Among girls, however, there have been small increases for each year surveyed.

In its "Teen Age Self Test on Smoking," the Public Health Service gives some opinions of teen agers on smoking.

Among teen agers who smoke, some opinions go like this:

—57 per cent think that teen agers who smoke cigarettes regularly cannot quit any time they like.

—30 per cent of teen agers who smoke think it is a stupid thing to do. The other 70 per cent think it is a smart thing to do.

—77 per cent of the teen agers who smoke feel it is better not to start smoking than to have to quit.

—Half of those who smoke feel students who smoke are more popular. And the other half of those who smoke feel students who smoke are less popular.

—72 per cent of the teen ager smokers don't think cigarette smoking makes a teen-ager feel grownup.

—Half of the teen agers who smoke said they hoped their children, when they have them, won't smoke.

—68 per cent of the teen agers who smoke said they think cigarrette smoking slows them down in sports.

—52 per cent of the teen ager smokers feel smoking cigarettes helps them enjoy life more. And 48 per cent said that isn't so.

—77 per cent feel cigarettes are a form of air pollution.

Flint unemployment

Leads nation in jobless

By CHARLES W. BELL

FLINT, Mich. (UPI) — This city that Buick built is filled with men like Larry Frank, men who wait day after day without much hope for the business rebound that will put them back on the assembly line.

"You know what they say," Frank said. "GM sneezes and the assembly line gets a cold."

The 22-year-old Frank, married two years and the father of a 4-month-old daughter, caught his cold last Jan. 27 —when General Motors laid off thousands of men at the depth of the energy crisis.

Frank is still waiting for a job.

So were 30,200 other persons at the end of August.

That figure represents 15.1 per cent of the city's work force and gives Flint the unwanted distinction of first ranking in the government's list of unemployment trouble spots in 150 major U.S. cities.

The trouble in Flint (pop: 193,317) is obvious.

It is the home of Buick and as Buick goes, so goes Flint — and since the energy crisis, Buick has not gone well.

Buick sales in the 1974 model year hit 492,000 compared with an annual average of 640,000 over the past five years. One of those years, 1970 saw sales slump to 487,000 because of a prolonged strike by the United Auto Workers.

General Manager George R. Elges said sales should reach 650,000 during the 1975 model year, but Larry Frank and a lot of other people think he is overly optimistic.

"I got my doubts," Frank said.

If sales do not surge up, Flint is in trouble.

General Motors employs about 70,000 persons in the area and contributed more than $1.5 billion to the area economy last year. The city represents the largest concentration of GM employment and production in the world.

Although the city, located 60 miles north of Detroit on the once bustling Flint River, boasts 342 manufacturing concerns, only 76 employ more than 100 persons.

Buick started in Flint in 1903, when the city already was known as "The Vehicle City" because of its large carriage and wagon production. It was from Flint that W.C. Durant organized General Motors in 1908.

As part of its brave new look, Buick is advancing a new slogan —"Starting here ... Starting now."

And it is making a bid for the popular small car market with the Skyhawk, a luxury subcompact that is the smallest car in 60 years to carry the company nameplante.

As bad as things were earlier this year, when unemployment soared to 18.4 per cent in March, many residents remember when things were even worse.

"In 1958, there were a couple of weeks there when about one out of every three workers was out of work," said a waitress at the downtown Halo Burger diner. "It was really rough."

Leonard Van Dam, manager of the Flint area Employment Security Commission, agreed 1958 was bad.

"But," he said, "it didn't last as long then. It just goes on and on now."

Still, there are signs of vitality and affluence.

The stores lining the city's red brick main street are filled with shoppers and the annual United Fund drive hopes to exceed last year's record $3.52 million in contributions.

But the brightest sign is a $60 million project in the city center, still blighted in many respects by rundown and abandoned buildings.

The project is a new 38-acre University of Michigan campus targeted for completion in the early 1980s. City officials see it as a solid, bright and new focus on the city itself.

There also is a paradox in the plants.

"We sent a guy over to Chevrolet for an interview and they hired him," Van Dam said. "He worked three hours overtime the first day."

In fact, he said, seven of the 10 GM facilities in the area are working overtime.

But this is traditionally the good time, with October unemployment falling as low as 2 or 3 per cent because of the rush to build new cars.

"November is the make-or-break month," one auto executive said. "If people are buying more Buicks, we'll know by then. If not, then I would hate to see Christmas in a lot of homes."

Van Dam oversees an operation that paid $7.1 million in unemployment benefits in August, a month when 2,383 persons in the Flint area exhausted their regular benefits.

Another 718 persons exhausted their special extended benefits and now must go on welfare if they do not find jobs. The welfare load already is heavy, with 10,000 persons receiving Aid to Dependent Children payments alone.

Larry Frank does not want to go on welfare.

"I just want a job," he said during one of his weekly visits to the employment office. "Any job I can do."

What job is that

"Well, GM, I guess," he said. "That's where all the jobs are."

Girl drives into wall to kill self

LANCASTER (UPI) — An 18-year-old girl apparently killed herself by driving her car into the side of a concrete block building, sheriff's deputies said Tuesday.

Deputies said Karen Ann Lang was killed Monday when her car accelerated across the Antelope Valley fairgrounds and crashed into the wall of a building that houses La Familia Continuation High school.

Deputies said she apparently had been upset over a fight with her boyfriend.

M'Vittie, VanderPoel hold low-key political session

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

Those expecting a verbal slugfest were disappointed Wednesday night when two candidates for the 65th Assembly District seat appeared together to discuss the issues.

There was no real debating between Democratic nominee Bill McVittie and Republican Pete VanderPoel, although they did disagree on some crucial points.

McVittie and VanderPoel did not carp at each other, or spend time debating face-to-face. The discussed questions raised by the audience calmly, and agreed on answers more frequently than they disagreed.

The encounter took place at a dinner meeting sponsored by the Ontario-Upland branch of the American Association of University Women at the Magic Lamp Inn, Cucamonga. It was one of a series of appearances the two candidates are making together.

Perhaps the most controversial issue raised was the matter of abortion. McVittie favored a woman's right to "control her own body" but VanderPoel said he "couldn't buy" the concept of allowing abortions.

The law should recognize an individual's right to an abortion, McVittie said, but VanderPoel disagreed. Except in cases where the mother's health is involved, VanderPoel would not favor abortion.

McVittie, who has been under fire for allegedly aiding in illegal payments to deputy county registrars, was asked whether the "adverse publicity" has hurt his campaign. (A misdemeanor complaint was filed last week in court, charging him with extending illegal 40-cent payments for every Democratic voter registered.)

The 35-year-old McVittie said that, to the contrary, the publicity has "helped me more than ever." He indicated that since VanderPoel did not agree to spend an equal amount of funds on the campaign, he has been unable to seek out as much publicity as his opponent.

He called the charges against him "silly" and predicted the matter will be dismissed in court within two weeks.

VanderPoel was also forced to handle a difficult question when asked how he could represent the local area when he is "so closely aligned with the diary industry." (He owns a Chino dairy.)

"I can't be expected to carry the sins of the dairy industry across the nation" he responded, indicating much of the controversy over milk has been concerned with practices in states other than California.

He declared that the dairy industry gave more money to Democrats than Republicans, and the average contribution was $5 to $10 per dairy man.

"I'm proud to be a dairyman," VanderPoel stated. "I'm financially independent, and could be independent in Sacramento."

VanderPoel claimed there are very few state legislators who are dairymen. "But 57 attorneys sit in the legislature. You tell me who has the special interest group in Sacramento."

McVittie, a Chino attorney, did not respond to VanderPoel's inference.

The two candidates agreed, however, on the need to curtail "tremendous profits" of oil companies. Depletion allowances on oil are "uncons[illegible]able," said McVittie.

Asked which legislative committees they would like to serve, if elected, McVittie favored a committee concerned with air pollution, and VanderPoel, committees on education and agriculture.

McVittie and VanderPoel said they both would favor passage of a bill and override of the governor's veto to provide unemployment compensation to farm workers. Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed the bill several times.

On the issue of rapid transit, McVittie said, "Before we spend a lot of money on it, we have to sit down and decide which system would be best."

VanderPoel favored rapid transit as a solution to "moving people from one area to another."

ASSEMBLY CANDIDATES MEET

Opposing candidates in the new 65th Assembly District race shake hands at a dinner program Wednesday in Cucamonga, sponsored by the Ontario-Upland branch of the American Association of University Women. On the left is Bill McVittie, Chino attorney, who is the Democratic nominee. On the right, Peter VanderPoel, a Chino dairyman, the Republican nominee. Each spoke 5 minutes, then answered questions.

Cal Poly parley will probe science fiction, its impact

"The World of Science Fiction and its Impact on Higher Education" will be the theme of a two-day conference Saturday and Sunday at 9 a.m. at Kellogg West on the Cal Poly campus.

Guest lecturers and authors will present papers and will speak on the process of writing science fiction and the directions it may take in the future, according to seminar coordinators, Dr. Stanley Cook and Dr. Stephen V. Whaley of the Cal Poly English and modern languages departments.

Harlan Ellison, author of more than 25 science fiction works, will speak at the Saturday session. His writing credits including television programs Star Trek, The Outer Limits, Alfred Hitchcock Hour and the Untouchables.

Lecturers presenting papers include David Ketterer, Sir George Williams University at Montreal; Willis McNelly of Cal State Fullerton; Mary S. Weinkauf, Dakota Wesleyan University; Jim Stupple, Cal State Fullerton, Ronald D. Tweet, Augustana College; Emory Maiden, Appalachian State University; Joseph F. Patrouch, Jr., University of Dayton; and Robert Reilly from Rider College.

Sunday's program will include presentations by authors Robert Silverberg and Suzette Elgin. Silverberg's science fiction works include the novels "Downward to Earth," "Book of Skulls", "Great Ghost Towns of the West", and "The Cube Root of Uncertainty".

Miss Elgin is author of several science fiction novels including "For the Sake of Grace", "The Communipaths", "Furthest," "Abba and Modulation in All things."

Workshops and a panel of writers and speakers will conclude the two-day program. Two quarter units of university credit are offered those attending the total seminar.

City doubts state estimate, seeks new population count

Officials in the City of San Dimas are unhappy with a recent population estimate that showed an increase of only 75 persons and have asked the State Department of Finance to conduct a special census in November.

The special census will begin Nov. 11 and will cost the city $6,457. Census workers will visit each household in San Dimas.

City Manager Robert Poff said the last population estimates by the state have been inconsistent with the city's own figures.

Poff said the city staff estimates a population of 18,000 persons. The state's estimate was 17,200 persons, only 75 persons more than the last official census taken in 1970.

The federal government takes an official census every 10 years. During the intervening years the State Department of Finance makes an estimate of population figures.

"As California distributes a large portion of its revenue to cities on the basis of census data, officials here feel that the city may not be receiving its full share," Poff said.

Poff asked for the cooperation of all residents during the special census.

Conflict grows between supervisor, West End over transportation plans

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

West End officials voiced annoyance during a lengthy meeting Wednesday of the San Bernardino Associated Governments over allegations from County Supervisor Daniel Mikesell that the West Valley Transit Service Authority has decided on a taxi transit service.

Two other supervisors—James Mayfield from the first district of San Bernardino County and Dennis Hansberger from the third—made it clear that Mikesell stood alone in his opinion which was delivered angrily during a supervisors board meeting this week. Mikesell also attacked the structure of the regional transportation plan for the county which calls for SANBAG's executive board to act as director of the plan.

All concerned agreed that the problem could not be dealt with unless Mikesell attended meetings. Hansberger suggested a face-to-face confrontation with the second district supervisor in a special meeting next Wednesday morning on his charges against the West Valley Transit Service Authority and SANBAG. Mikesell did not attend Wednesday's session.

"It should be noted that the newspaper headline 'Supervisor Irked by Transit Moves' has supervisor singular, not plural. The West Valley situation will be resolved. I am optimistic that something can be resolved under the operation of SANBAG for this is the best way to go. There may be some merit to his (Mikesell's) point of view, but it lacks something if he's not here to express those feelings in person," said Mayfield.

Mikesell had sent word to the group that he would be in Sacramento and unable to attend the meeting.

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair pointed out that the West Valley unit was considering a proposal for a demand-response service, called dial-a-ride but no decision had been made. Alan M. Voorhees and Associates has prepraed a plan calling for five fixed bus routes in the West End.

"We have not rejected the plan by Voorhees. Our supervisors (Mikesell and Robert Townsend of Chino) have not always been there at meetings of WVTSA. We're not ready to make a decision until we find out what the alternatives are. We want to be flexible in providing service to this area as the East Valley has. We're going on schedule, according to the plan.

"I see no reason for one agency or representative to be upset that we're looking at alternatives. This is our prerogative," asserted Hayes.

Councilman John McCarthy of Upland said only one meeting had been scheduled on a Monday, responding to Mikesell's allegation that the West Valley planned meetings when aware he would be unable to attend. He reported that all other meetings had been held on Thursdays when Mikesell was free.

"We're all in the same place. We're not that elusive if he wants to find us," Mrs. Eileen Carter, Chino councilwoman, quipped.

Although delaying the adoption of a resolution which outlined the role of the SANBAG executive board of directors of the county plan, the representatives said the delay was only to hear Mikesell's argument and did not insinuate any disappointment in the present approach to county transportation.

Mayfield said that all agencies had agreed with SANBAG serving as umbrella of the operations. "We'd have to reverse that decision. And to use his expression, I don't think he has enough votes to do it.

"He's coming from a whole new direction. He wants to restructure the transportation plan we started out on a year ago," Mayfield stated.

Mikesell had also charged that the cities refused to give allocations of their funds from Senate Bill 325 to the regional transportation effort. Wes McDaniel, executive director of SANBAG, distributed cost distribution and approval sheets for the first stage of implementation which showed that 10 cities out of 14 had approved approximately $1,942,708 for regional transportation efforts.

Although the county has committed itself to picking up the tab on the $785,000 linkage system, it has taken no action, as have the cities, to approve any joint powers agreements or commit itself further.

Mayor W.R. Holcomb of San Bernardino commented "The county has a place to play in helping cities, but unless we sit down and start in the same direction, we'll be off in different directions and it'll be difficult to come back together."

Mikesell advocates a commission of city and county officials as directors of policy and funds for regional transportation. Under this plan, the county would operate all buses.

Lions will celebrate Community Service Day

SERVICE TO NEEDY

In recognition of International Lions Community Service Day, members of the Pomona Host Lions will distribute canned food to the needy people of Pomona through the South Hills Neighborhood Service Center on Tuesday. Looking over the canned goods above are, from left, Floyd Stone, president of the Host Lions, the Rev. Ivan Walks, pastor of the South Hills Presbyterian Church, and Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire. Lepire has issued a proclamation in recognition of the day of service.

Valley Lions club members will distribute canned goods to the needy, recycle glass and aluminum for charities and provide public information on emergency procedures in recognition of International Lions' Community Service Day on Tuesday.

Lions from Pomona, Claremont, Diamond Bar and Chino will join with Lions throughout the world in observance of the day by participating in humanitarian service projects.

As a special project for Community Service Day, Pomona Host Lions will aid in the distribution of canned food to the needy in south Pomona through the South Hills Neighborhood Service Center and the Rev. Ivan Walks, pastor of the South Hills Presbyterian Church. Lions will collect food to take to the center for distribution.

Continuing two weekly projects, Pomona Host Lions will also transport blind valley residents from their homes to the Braille Institute in Los Angeles and donate blood to the Red Cross Bank on the service day. The Lions provide the service for the blind each Tuesday.

Pomona Breakfast Lions will use Community Service Day to continue their work on the club's annual Haunted House project at Pomona Valley Center. The exhibit will be open for Halloween and proceeds will be used for local charities.

Newspapers and aluminum will be collected for recycling by the Pomona Uptown Lions and aluminum and glass will be collected for recycling by the Claremont Lions. Proceeds collected by the clubs will be used for valley charities.

Flood victims in Honduras will be assisted by a collection of canned food by the Diamond Bar Lions. The Lions will deliver the food to the Honduran Consulate in Los Angeles.

Chino Lions will use the service day to distribute cards with artificial respiration instructions on one side and emergency phone numbers on the opposite side. Two thousand printed cards will be distributed to businesses, banks and stores and offered free to the public.

Simons students now selling candy

Students at Simons Junior High School in Pomona are conducting their annual candy sale to raise funds to pay for school assemblies, field trips and equipment.

They will be canvassing neighborhoods in the community through Oct. 11, with the assistance of their teachers.

Credited with saving seven lives

Valley airman takes part in 11th civilian rescue mission

First Lt. Steven P. Clark, son of retired Army Major and Mrs. Richard H. Clark of 1037 Corinthian Way, Pomona, recently participated in the emergency transfer of a seriously ill hospital patient as part of the pararescue service the Air Force provides the civilian community in Idaho.

A helicopter pilot assigned to Detachment 22, 48th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron, Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho, Lt. Clark is a member of MAST—Military Assistance for Safety in Traffic—a program in which military helicopters and medical corpsmen aid local health and law enforcement agencies.

Originally designed to help auto accident victims in remote areas of the state, the program has been expanded to include emergency transportation of the sick and injured — some of these victims of hunting and hiking accidents in mountainous terrain.

Lt. Clark and his fellow crew members utilize the fast medical evacuation techniques learned in Vietnam, where battlefield mortality rates were far below what they were in Korea and World War II.

The lieutenant has flown 11 MAST missions and is credited with saving seven lives.

A 1968 graduate of Ganesha High School, he earned a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering from the Air Force Academy where he was commissioned in 1972.

His wife, Kristy, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Finch of Monument Colo.

Opinion

People, people everywhere

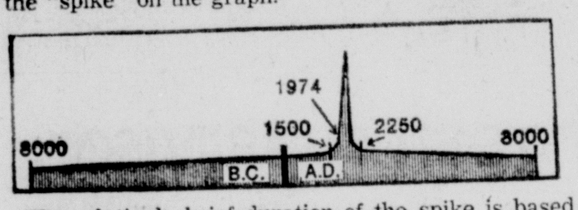

Mankind is currently experiencing a phenomenon known as the "great demographic transition."

This is the change from a high worldwide birth rate balanced by a high death rate, which prevailed for thousands of years, to the continuing high birth-rates and low death rates in most of the countries of the world today, to an eventual return to a balance between a worldwide low birth rate and low death rate.

In the current issue of Scientific American, a number of experts examine various aspects of the phenomenon. It began a couple of centuries ago and will, of necessity, be a transitory stage when viewed against the long run of human history.

It has to be, because if the present unprecedented rate of world population increase were to continue, in less than 700 years there would be one person for every square foot on the surface of the earth. In 1,200 years, the human population would outweigh the earth.

As the graph below shows, throughout most of man's past, world population growth was just above replacement level, about 1-10th of 1 per cent a year. It is currently about 2 per cent a year, resulting in the "spike" on the graph.

The relatively brief duration of the spike is based on the prospect — which is by no means a certainty — that the world will attain replacement level of fertility ("zero population growth") in the 21st century.

It must be emphasized that the graph shows the world's population growth rate, not absolute population. Though the growth rate in, say, A.D. 2250 is expected to be about what it was in A.D. 1500 — close to zero — barring some tremendous catastrophe, total world population in the 23rd century will inevitably be far above what it was in the 16th.

Four centuries ago, there were less than 500 million people in the world. Today there are 4 billion.

Even if zero population growth could be achieved by the year 2000, such is the momentum that has been built up in the present stage of the demographic transition that the world would still reach a population of 8.2 billion by the middle of the next century, with more than 90 per cent of the additional 4-plus billion being born in the underdeveloped countries.

Politics of litter

What good are anti-littering signs if most people don't think they apply to them? Or ugly looking litter barrels which may, in themselves, be an eyesore? Or $100 fines for littering if they are seldom enforced?

Not very much says University of Wisconsin sociologist Thomas Heberlein who has found that many people simply don't seem to regard their littering acts as littering.

More specific signs, such as "Paper is litter, don't throw paper out of your car," is one of his suggestions for attacking the highway litter problem.

Another is brighter, more attractive, "fun to use" cans that encourage the litterer to re-use them.

As for those stiff fines, they make an officer want pretty definite proof before he arrests someone. But not only is littering not an obvious act, like running a red light, it is not as dangerous to other motorists. Thus litterers rank far down on the policeman's priority list of offenders.

Lower, more realistic fines might increase the likelihood of more arrests and hence better enforcement of the anti-litter laws, thinks Heberlein.

We think he thinks smart.

A suggestion

A suggestion that is worth consideration by all of us in the news media industry, and by the public, has come from a rather authoritative source.

Speaking before a special breakfast staged in her honor in New York recently, Katharine Graham, the outspoken publisher of the outspoken Washington Post said:

"The press as a chronicler of events, not a participant, is essential to the functioning of a democratic society."

Assuming the wire service quote is accurate, "participant" most certainly is the operative word. Some will say that the Post was a major participant in the event called Watergate. Others will insist it was an investigator and chronicler.

Precise definition of "participation" is not at all easy. Considered, sincere editorial advocacy or opposition is an important and benign form. Advocacy or opposition by creation of "news" is cancerous. Between those opposite boundaries lies a middle ground of decision that can be poignantly difficult to make.

Cramming junk down our throat

Two years before retiring I bought a new pickup knowing that this would be the last new car I would be able to afford.

This truck came factory equipped with anti-smog device. I baby it along and keep it in perfect time, therefore it gives very good service and gas mileage.

According to law I had a new anti-smog device installed. Since then the engine misses and runs rough until warmed up, also considerable less gas mileage. Another big ripoff for the big oil companies? ..I do know its a big ripoff of my monthly pension check!

Thirty five dollars plus one dollar and fifty cents tax doesn-t put much food on the table at today's prices. I would glady donate that amount or more for something constructive such as crime prevention so we citizens would feel safer in our homes and on our public streets.

Anyone with common sense knows a car that is out of tune and uses more gas will kick out more exhaust fumes.

I'll venture to bet that none of our fearless leaders from our governor on down who voted for this bill are required to have this device installed.

I was always of the opinion we the public elected these officials to represent us not to cram this sort of junk down our throat. — H. T. McIntyre, Pomona.

Tell it like it is

Congratulations on your editorial in the Sept. 25 paper! We need more leaders of public opinion to tell it like it is. "National security" and "patriotism" are covering up far too much dirt in our land. We are too blinded by such slogans as: "America, love it or leave it", and "My country, right or wrong". Ours is rapidly ceasing to be a government "of the people, and by the people, and for the people". And, as you have pointed out, all sorts of clandestine operations are being carried on in the name of "national security".

And with political decay comes moral decay, as shown in the great increase in crime. Honesty and virtue are thrown aside in the pursuit of the dollar.

The question is: Who should we blame? Dishonest leaders? A disinterested populace? Too many luxuries?

Anyway, keep up the good reporting. The old propaganda line must be challenged, and we do need to know, so that we can act accordingly. —Willard F. Wiles, Pomona.

The Christian Children's Fund

WASHINGTON — The renowned Christian Children's Fund, like the old lady who lived in the shoe, has so many children it doesn't know what to do. Worse, the fund doesn't know what it did with $25 million, which was raised to feed, clothe and educate needy children around the world.

As part of his study of charities, Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., asked the General Accounting Office to investigate the Children's Fund. The GAO's secret report to Mondale may prove unsettling to the sponsors who monthly contribute $12 apiece to help one of the 188,000 children on the needy list.

The government auditors discovered, for instance, that the fund sinks $2.4 million of the charity money into advertising to raise still more money. The ads, showing tattered tots with pitiful faces, are heartrending. The solicited sponsors are given the impression that only the neediest are helped.

This is not exactly true, according to the GAO. In the Philippines and Colombia, where the GAO made on-the-spot checks, the neediest are ignored "because they are often undernourished and, as a result, cannot study effectively."

As a field office supervisor for the fund put it, somewhat uncharitably, "sponsors are pleased with a success story." Children too far gone in poverty need not apply.

The sponsor is urged to give his "child" a special gift on birthdays and Christmases. But the secret GAO study found in Kenya, for example, that only 25 per cent of the gift money ever reached the designated children.

"The sponsor of one child in this project sent $34 to be used as a special gift," reported the GAO. "The child received $4.28, and the project retained the rest."

In Greece, money was set aside to support a school which folded up. Some of the money was simply stashed in a bank depository, with no accounting given.

As a similar school project in Hong Kong, 118 children were supposedly being assisted by the fund. When the GAO checked it found none of the children were even enrolled. The school was pocketing the cash.

Supervision of the spending was catch-as-catch-can. Of 68 children's projects in Kenya, only six had been inspected as required. In the Philippines, only 46 of 78 projects had been evaluated; in Hong Kong, only 11 of 21; in Mexico, 44 of 147.

Mondale, distressed at the findings, plans hearings shortly. Not only the Children's Fund but other charities will be put under the spotlight. For example, the Foster Parents Plan, according to the GAO, "will not accept the most needy families in an area because they feel they are less likely to achieve (the) goal of becoming self-sufficient."

Footnote: The Christian Children's Fund conceded they were short of project inspectors. A spokesman said that as fast as GAO turned up deficiencies, the Fund began corrective action. The fund said there was no evidence of misappropriation of money, only of inefficient procedures. A Foster Parents spokesman said "we cannot help all the needy so we help those among the neediest with a fighting chance."

WATCH ON WASTE: While President Ford is calling upon Americans to tighten their belts, the Smithsonian Institution is spending $4 million a year on obscure research projects.

A $70,000 project was approved this year, for example, for the study of wild boars in Pakistan. The study is supposed to help Pakistan control the wild boar population.

The Smithsonian has also funded an $11,540, two-year research project to classify a species of bisexual Polish frog. This expenditure is explained as an effort to "allow Polish and American scientists to share the latest techniques in species identification."

A good many impoverished Americans might be more interested in eating than classifying frogs.

Footnote: The money for these far-fetched projects is appropriated from surplus foreign currency owned by the U.S. government.

Letter on parochial school aid

WASHINGTON — Neil McCaffrey, publisher-president of the Conservative Book Club, has written this columnist a lengthy letter offering the opinion of one concerned Catholic parent on the issue of public aid to parochial schools.

As a non-Catholic, of course, I have no business, or intention of, getting involved in the intradenominational religious controversies of my Catholic friends. On the other hand, as a taxpaying citizen, I think McCaffrey's views pose some interesting questions. Questions that deserve airing — which, as I understand it, is what the column-writing business is all about.

What inspired McCaffrey's letter, you see, was a recent piece here on the bitter textbook battle between parents and public school authorities in Charleston, W. Va.

"Would you be surprised," McCaffrey writes, "to hear that a parallel situation now exists in parochial schools? You even have the same cast of characters, but wearing different clothes. A self-styled elite of educationalists — all bitter idealogues, whether liberal or radical — have for the past dozen years been busy rewriting the Catholic religion. Like their opposite numbers in the National Education Association, they have a stranglehold on the educational process in Catholic schools."

According to McCaffrey, at such times as conservative Catholic parents like himself have tried to break this "stranglehold" — that is, to object to "liberal or radical" control of school curricula — they encounter the same disdainful treatment from parochial school authorities as have parents dealing with public schools in places like Charleston, W.Va.

The result, says McCaffrey, has been a different form of protest. No picketing in the streets, but withdrawal of conservative Catholic financial support from parochial schools.

"In the old days," his letter continues, "when Catholic schools were worthy of the name, they concentrated on basic education, and Catholic parents gladly made the sacrifices to keep their schools open. But when Catholic educationalists began to pursue the same errors that brought the public schools to their present dismal state, many Catholic parents concluded that, while parochial schools were costing more, their products were worth less. Thus, when these parents understandably began to resist paying double for liberal-radical educationalists' indoctrination, Catholic schools began to close."

"Hence the current panic among Catholic 'educators,'" argues McCaffrey. "They can't sell their product in a free market. After all, why should Catholic parents sacrifice to see the faith they were brought up in consciously undermined?"

This is why, my conservative Catholic correspondent concludes, "the Catholic educational establishment, their sinecures threatened, beats desperately on the door for federal and state handouts. I hope they don't get a dime. After these pseudo-Catholic schools wither on the vine, maybe we could get back to having some real Catholic schools."

A controversial point of view, one sure to be hotly disputed by many of McCaffrey's co-religionists. But just so there's no misunderstanding on the point, the writer of that letter is neither a kook nor an intellectual throwback to the Dark Ages.

Neil McCaffrey, as I say, is a concerned Catholic parent. And like the protesting public school parents of Charleston, W. Va., he represents a position which those charged with teaching our young, whether in public or parochial schools, can ignore only at the peril of the educational system they serve.

Just in jest

As this is being written, a 5 pound bag of sugar has increased in cost from 81 cents to $1.86 since January 1, and the price is still rising. This fantastic increase in sugar costs has proved to be something of a problem for the manufacturers of candies, soft drinks and gums, who are now faced with the necessity of either raising the price or cutting down on the size of their products.

But thus far one manufacturer, who supplies gumballs for the one cent vending machines, has to all intents and purposes managed to hold the line both on price and size as well. His gumballs still sell for one cent and look as big as they ever did even though they do have larger hollow centers.

Aides influence Ford's decisions

WASHINGTON — President Ford is in danger of becoming a prisoner of his White House staff.

Although old friends get through to him, the staff limits the President's contacts, taking care to restrict those who will oppose plans they favor. They program his movements in a way to influence his actions and decisions or keep him so busy he does not have time to intensively question their judgements. They bring back word from the bureaucracy that things they do not want done cannot be done or they produce evidence of a public consensus for programs they favor.

This scenario is not new of course. To an important extent, Presidents Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Eisenhower too, were prisoners. President Franklin Roosevelt, originator of the White House staff system, escaped imprisonment primarily because he was adept at playing one man against another. President Truman was partly successful because he delegated so much authority to cabinet officers. Even the most willful staff — and Mr. Truman had that — could not seriously affect most decisions.

Mr. Ford's situation appears to be worse than that of his predecessors, with the possible exception of Mr. Johnson.

When Roosevelt set up the modern White House staff system years back, the move was hailed by experts as saving the presidency. The problem then, as now, was that the federal bureaucracy had become so large, unwieldy and entrenched that it moved under its own power with little regard to the president — any president — or his wishes.

The White House staff thus was created to provide the president with men and women expert enough to penetrate that bureaucracy, find out where the levers were and get the action the president wanted. They were also to give the president independent viewpoints on proposals from the departments and bureaus. Things didn't work out that way.

Mr. Kennedy was forced to make endruns around his own staff. He spent a great deal of time putting his own men into key posts up and down the line in the major departments. He then dealt with them. This technique, curiously enough was attempted by Mr. Nixon's chief assistants, H. R. Haldeman and John Erlichman with quite unfortuante results. Mr. Johnson relied on a host of personal contacts he had built up in his years as an influential senator.

It was clear to Presidents Kennedy, Truman and Johnson that the White House staff had become a mini-bureaucracy on its own with a momentum difficult to control and heavy with vested interests. The problem is heavy even when a president of one party is succeeded by a president from the opposition. Though there can be a house cleaning, once in place the new group itself becomes a semi-independent living body not completely subject to a president's will, as witness Dr. Kissinger's manipulation of Mr. Nixon in foreign affairs. The problem is more serious when a vice president succeeds a president of his own party in midterm and inherits the old staff. Mr. Johnson was convinced the Kennedy White House group he took over repeatedly sabotaged his efforts, as indeed it did. There are reports Ford is suffering the same problem with members of the old Nixon entourage eager to hold on to power. They have a backlog of experience in the White House to outmaneuver Mr. Ford's newcomers, few of whom are noted for their political savvy.

ANN LANDERS

Kosher cookbook with helpful hints on how to keep hubby happy. Enjoy!

Dear Ann Landers: I just received a cookbook from our Temple Sisterhood. It had many recipes from the best cooks in town. My favorite recipe is enclosed and I hope you will print it. It is called "How to Preserve a Husband."

First, use care in selection.

Get one that is not too young, but tender and healthy. If you choose one recklessly, it may not keep.

Don't put in hot water. This makes them turn sour.

Sweeten with smiles and spice with patience. All varieties will respond.

To insure a wonderful consistency, stir gently — never beat. And don't leave unattended for long periods of time.

To add a delicious flavor, sprinkle generously with praise and appreciation.

The poorest specimen may be improved if you follow these instructions and will keep for an unlimited number of years in any climate. — Tested by Yours Truly

Dear Truly: I'd like to add one small suggestion: Frequent exposure to cold temperatures has been known to damage this dish permanently. Keep a small, steady flame going at all times.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 and in need of help. Please. Please.

I babysit and work summers so I can have nice clothes. My sister Louise (age 15) weighs about 10 pounds more than I do. She is a slob. (Spills things on herself, etc.) Every time my back is turned Louise wears something that belongs to me. Last night she ruined my new white blouse by spilling grape-juice all over the front. Two weeks ago she split my good navy slacks right up the back.

When I complain to Mom and Dad they say I shouldn't be selfish, that sisters should share. ("It is better to give than to receive.") I am sick of those canned phrases and believe I'm getting a very rotten deal.

Can you say something that might help me get some justice around here? — Amy

Dear Amy: I'll try and I hope I succeed, because I agree — you ARE getting a very rotten deal.

Your parents should back you up and instruct Louise to keep her cotton-pickin' hands off your clothes. If they refuse, I suggest that you buy a pasteboard wardrobe, put a padlock on it and wear the key around your neck.

Dear Ann Landers: The other day I was in my parents' bedroom and noticed a column of yours, under the glass top of my mother's nightstand. It was about a father who was trying to be a pal to his son. The kid was using drugs and the father didn't know what to do about it. You advised him to tell the kid to "shape up or ship out." That's exactly what my parents told my brother to do.

Well, he shipped out, said he wanted to make it like my father did, on his own. Now he is renting an apartment with a friend and working his way through college. My parents are very proud of him.

I learned a valuable lesson from watching my brother. I want nothing to do with drugs. It makes me sick to see some of my friends going down the drain because they got hooked.

I'm glad my folks wrote to you and took your advice. I thought it was about time I said thanks. — Grateful 17

Dear 17: It was good of you to let me know how well things turned out at your house. Now I'll say thanks.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Nuthing's sacrid with kids around

By Erma Bombeck

"I'm not sure," I said to my husband, "but I think one of the kids has been using my typewriter."

"What makes you say a thing like that?" he asked.

"Because there's a pound of erasures on the carriage, the margins are set at infinity, and there's an anchovy stuck between the Y and T keys."

"Are you sure the kids did it?"

"I'll know for sure when I get the films developed from the hidden camera," I said.

He shook his head. "I swear I don't know what's with you and that typewriter. You're so possessive!"

"You say that after what happened to my first typewriter?"

"I don't remember," he said.

"Well, I remember. I bought an old clunker of a typewriter to put by the telephone because we could never keep a pencil there. The first night your son picked up my 85-pound machine, stuck it behind his ear and walked off with it."

"I still don't remember," he said. "And when did it get to be YOUR typewriter?"

"The day I discovered it was the only thing left that hadn't been taken over by the children."

"You're being dramatic."

"I never complained about sharing my scissors, my transparent tape, my rubber bands and my deodorant. I am used to illegal siege and search of my closet and bureau drawers.

"The other day when I picked up my toothbrush and it was wet, I didn't even whimper. When I left the breakfast table to answer the phone and returned to see my son picking my bacon out of his teeth, I didn't throw a tantrum. And when I climbed into my car yesterday and it wasn't there, I sat there on the garage floor and was amused. But this is MY typewriter!"

"You are jumping to conclusions," he said. "Just because your typewriter has been tampered with, you assume it was one of the children. How can you be so sure?"

I sat there stunned. "All I know is that I just wrote a letter to Mother on it, you know? And it was freaky, you dig? I mean like the letter grossed me out and I don't know what's happening, man, but if they don't bug off, I hate to think what I'll write tomorrow."

"Your point and game," he said dryly.

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

All calories have the same value

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—My husband and I have an argument concerning calories. He claims one can eat even 500 calories in fat, butter, or sweet cream, and not get fat—sick maybe, but not fat. I disagree very much.

He is five feet six, weighs 210 pounds and is 67. He is trying to lose weight and says it doesn't matter what one eats as long as he doesn't overeat his 3,000 calories a day. I disagree again. Some days he doesn't eat at all, drinks coffee all day, to cut his appetite he says. I think this is wrong also. It's bad for your nervous system. He's very irritable when he drinks all that coffee. Who is right?

Dear Reader—I don't think he is going to lose much weight on 3,000 calories regardless of what kind of food it is, unless as you say, it makes him sick. He will probably need to cut down well below that level unless he is far more active physically than I would guess him to be.

The important thing is losing weight is how many calories you eat (whether it is fat, carbohydrate or protein), and how many calories your body uses. A calorie is a calorie whether it comes from protein food or carbohydrate. Think of it like your checking account. The balance, what you weigh, is always the accumulative result of what you have eaten and absorbed into your body against the amount you have used.

Those crash days on a diet are not a good approach. The goal of a diet is to lose excess fat safely and keep it off. Your husband would do much better to be on a well-planned, balanced diet, low enough in carolories for maintenance once he has gotten down to the desired level. Too much coffee can be harmful.

For more information you can write to me at P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019 and ask for the booklet on Losing Weight. Send 50 cents to cover costs.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About 30 years ago a doctor advised my brother-in-law to stop smoking or else his legs would give out on him. But he refused to quit so now after walking one block he must stop to rest, and he is unable to drive his car because of his weak legs. Did cigarettes really cause his legs to get that weak? If so how?

Dear Reader—Probably. There is a particularly rapid form of obstruction of the opening of the arteries that is stimulated by tobacco. It is called Buerger's disease. As the opening in the arteries in the legs fills up it becomes impossible to increase the blood flow to them.

When you walk or run or use a muscle you must increase the blood flow to deliver oxygen and more nutrients. When you can't do this the leg muscles develop severe cramps or pain. By resting a few minutes to allow the circulation to catch up with the needs of the muscle the pain usually goes away. The muscles lose their strength and deteriorate. As obstruction progresses some people develop gangrene and require an amputation. The disaese can affect the hands, too. It is absolutely essential for these people to quit smoking.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

11 steps toward beating inflation

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dear Mr. President:

In your closing remarks at the recent Economic Summit Conference you urged all Americans to "make up a list of 10 ways you can save energy and fight inflation."

And you asked us to send you a copy.

That was a peachy idea, Mr. President. If there is anything we Americans love to do it is make up lists.

Shopping lists, Christmas lists, laundry lists, list of unlisted phone numbers —most of us live by the list and die by the list. And for good reason.

Making a list gives us the illusion of being on top of the situation. "If you can list it, you've got it licked," is our motto.

I say this is an illusion because generally we never get past the top two or three items on the list.

Still, if a list makes us feel we are getting the handle on inflation, it's a good thing. So here's mine:

1. Some economists think we are heading for another depression. If so, the government presumably will set up 1930-style soup kitchens.

To save energy, these kitchens should serve vichyssoise, which doesn't need heating.

2. Chilling bottles of wine wastes energy. Drink only varieties that are served at room temperature.

3. Help drive down cooking fuel costs by eating tartare steak, which is made with uncooked ground beef.

4. Shoe leather, which is terribly inflated, can be saved by learning to take bigger steps.

5. Avoid unnecessary trips to see the doctor. Find one who makes house calls.

6. Night football games waste tremendous amounts of electricity. That can be avoided by playing the Monday night NFL games in Honolulu where it is still daylight at 9 p.m. EDT when the games start.

7. At 10 cents a stamp, postage contributes to inflation when you pay bills by mail. Wait until they send a bill collector after you.

8. Heat rises. Ergo, you can save heating fuel by moving your thermostat to the ceiling.

9. Turn off electric goose quill sharpeners when not in use.

10. Pre-heating an oven for frozen TV dinners wastes energy. Buy brands that already have been preheated.

And if I may be permitted a bonus suggestion, Mr. President, I've heard that so many summit conference delegates flew here in private planes they caused a traffic back-up at National Airport.

So you can help fight inflation by not having any more anti-inflation summit conferences.

Barbs

It's always Christmas season on our street. Rudolph the red-nose lives just a few doors away.

Smile: As transparent as the cheese slice in a stadium sandwich.

For some reason, this whole week has been composed of Fridays the 13th.

Beyond the blue horizon lies the usual smog.

It's very easy around some shops to get fired with enthusiasm.

Heartline

800-543-2393

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions—fast. It costs you nothing. Call Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. or write Heartline, 8514 North Main St., Dayton, Ohio, 45415. Remember, Heartline pays for all calls on its toll-free number . . . 800-543-2393.

Heartline: I will retire next year at age 65. My name on my birth certificate is different than the name on my Social Security card. My parents died in an automobile accident when I was quite young and I was raised by my grandparents and used their name. How can I prove my correct name to Social Security..? — M. N.

Answer: You should get two witnesses who will verify you are the person named on the birth certificate.

Heartline: ..I am 68 years old and I heard that there is an organization that needs the services of retired executives. I ran a corporation for 36 years. Is there such an organization..? — E. C.

Answer: Yes. SCORE by name (Service Corps of Retired Executives). Write to ACTION, Washington, D.C. 20525.

Heartline: I've worked 20 years under Social Security and I am now going to retire with 20 years in the Air Force. I would like to know if drawing Social Security will affect my military retirement. . — B. T.

Answer: No, it will not affect it in any way.

Heartline: My credit standing was damaged by my ex-spouse. She kept charging things in my name. I now have that problem solved, but I want to know what I can do at age 73 to reestablish my good credit. — I. C.

Answer: You should contact your local Credit Bureau and they will tell you the steps to take to reestablish your credit rating.

Heartline .: I live in Philadelphia, Pa. I cannot get anything done because my phone never stops ringing. I have the same number as you have. Help! — H. M.

Answer: Sorry to have created such a problem for you. Your local phone company will change your number at no charge to you. In order to reach Heartline, no matter where you live, please dial the full number starting with 800.

College founded on lecture earnings

Only one university, so far as I know, was founded with funds raised on the lecture circuit. Do you remember Dr. Russell H. Conwell? He was the fellow that repeatedly delivered that Acres of Diamonds talk. It tells of an ambitious young man who went to South Africa to seek his fortune in the diamond fields, then returned home broke only to find an oil well in his backyard. The doctor recited that tale more than 6,000 times on the peas-and-chicken tour. To make $4 million. He put it up to establish Philadelphia's Temple University.

WHEN SHEDDING their skin, snakes shed the outer film over their eyes, too.

MAYBE the main reason any woman can wear turquoise is it tends to change color in accordance with the wearer's complexion.

SUGAR RAY

Q. "How many boxing matches did Sugar Ray Robinson fight? And win?"

A. Fought 202. Won 175.

ONE OUT OF EVERY 20 men, who is both age 40 and single, can be expected to get married within the next 12 months. Only one out of every 45 women, who is both age 40 and single, can be expected to wed that soon.

BIG DEPARTMENT STORE ran a computer study of 1,000 Christmas gifts. To learn that exactly 323 were for women, 302 were for youngsters, 127 were for men, and the rest of the presents were unclassified. That sampling was thought to be large enough to indicate fairly well how holiday gifts are distributed nationwide.

COUGAR

Some connoisseurs contend that no meat on earth has a richer and more delicate flavor than cougar steak.

IN A GOOD YEAR, it takes just about eight weeks for a healthy cornstalk to push out a root system that end to end would reach seven miles, I'm told.

HISTORIANS have identified three men as "The Pen," "The Tongue" and "The Sword" of the American Revolution. Can you name them? Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry and George Washington, respectively.

EIGHTY-SEVEN PER CENT of everything you know came to you through your eyes. Only 7 per cent, through your ears. But 3.5 per cent, through your nose. And 1.5 per cent through your sense of touch. With 1 per cent through your taste. Or so the science boys estimate.

Alcoholics' children overlooked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Children of alcoholics can suffer serious emotional damage and yet, a nursing professor says, the youngsters are often neglected by specialists treating the ill parent.

"Growing up with an alcoholic father, mother or both has many psychological and sociological implications for a child," said Sharon B. Sloboda, assistant professor at the Catholic University School of Nursing.

"The normally shared activities of family life are denied him," she said. "He witnesses, from the beginning, the fact that his parent does not live by society's rules. Discipline is often inconsistent so that he does not know what is expected of him."

Sloboda said in a report in the current issue of the medical journal Hospital and Community Psychiatry that for such children, "a parent's alcoholic behavior may be direct, swift and devastating in its effects..."

Sloboda said researchers have found that children of alcoholics often have personality disturbances demonstrated by signs of hostility, impulsiveness, depression and sexual confusion.

"The depression in this case is the result of a basic feeling of anxiety and may surface as feelings of irritability or worthlessness, a fear of the future, poor appetite, insomnia and even suicide attempts," the article said.

Sloboda said other reports have shown that the son of an alcoholic father may have feelings of helplessness and develop fear, hatred and revenge fantasies toward his father.

"Afterward he may feel guilty and fear retaliation for his thoughts," she said. "Such anxiety-producing feelings can cause difficulties with authority figures in adult life.

"Because the father's behavior is so inconsistent, a son may become overdependent on his mother. His feelings and thoughts about both parents may become confused and ambivalent, resulting in his turning against them. The son may also come to blame his mother for his father's drinking, thereby associating masculine independence with drunkenness."

Sloboda said the daughter of an alcoholic father may hate and fear him and side with her mother. Or the daughter may continue to love her father and blame her mother for his drinking.

The report said fewer studies have dealt with alcoholic mothers although one researcher has said that when a mother is alcoholic, the children suffer irreparable damage.

Unemployed benefits bill given okay

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill designed to assure that extended unemployment insurance benefits continue to be paid to 101,000 Californians through next April has unanimously passed the Senate.

The proposal (SB2452) by Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, was approved Tuesday on a 30-0 vote and sent to the Assembly for expected quick action.

The bill would continue in operation the joint federal-state extended unemployment insurance benefit program until April 30, 1975, if California maintains a 4 per cent insured unemployment rate.

"High unemployment in the construction industry makes this legislation essential," Nejedly said, noting that the Reagan administration has estimated that 101,000 workers would receive the extended benefits.

Total costs of the measure was estimated at $44 million, half of which would be paid for by the federal government and the other half by California employers through the state unemployment insurance program.

Group against all-year school plans meeting

"Parents for Improved Education," a group of Chino parents who oppose the current form of the year-round school program, will hold its second meeting Friday at 8 p.m. in the board room at the district office, 5130 Riverside Drive.

Goals of the group are expected to be set and officers elected. Appropriate committees to further the goals will be organized. Persons concerned about the year-round program are invited to attend the meeting.

Phone company asks rate hike of $83 million

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pacific Telephone Co. has asked for rate increases of $83.8 million which would mainly affect long distance calls within California.

Under the application to the State Public Utilities Commission Monday, the cost of a three-minute, station-to-station call from San Francisco to Los Angeles would go up from $1.20 to $1.42.

The company said it needed the rate increases to meet the increased costs of wages and salaries resulting from bargaining agreements reached with its employes in August and September.

The company also asked for higher charges for establishing new and additional services, for moving and changing telephones and for number changes asked for by the customer.

The monthly rate for extension telephones in residences would be increased from $1 to $1.25.

The company asked for the new rates to be put into effect immediately on an interim basis until the commission makes a final decision after holding public hearings.

'Old Man River' too cold; he will try again

LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — Roger English conceded Monday that it is too cold in September to play Huck Finn without a raft.

English, 24, who runs a nostalgia shop here, set out Aug. 6 from Minneapolis to swim the 1,876-mile length of the Mississippi River in 65 days. He wanted to break the 175-day record set in 1930 by Fred P. Newton of Clinton, Okla.

After covering 1,300 miles to Memphis, spending 8-10 hours a day in the water, he gave up last Wednesday, English said, because of the onset of cold weather. "It was just unbearable. We started too late," he said.

He will start again next year on July 1, he said.

Postal tie-up

Santa's Finland woes

HELSINKI (UPI) — Santa Claus will disappoint children all over the world this year unless someone comes to his help and quickly. The Finnish post office says it can't handle Santa's mail.

According to tradition, Santa lives on Korvatunturi Mountain in Finnish Lapland, and every year children from all over the world write telling him what they want for Christmas.

And each year Santa has sent a personal letter postmarked from his home thanking the children for writing.

But this year Santa's helper, Mrs. Liisa Jantunen of the Post Office information department, says the administration chiefs have decided not to give her the added help Santa's mail needs. And she says she can't do it by herself.

Last year the post office received 3,000 letters from abroad addressed to Christmasland, Reindeer Street, Joyland, Toyland, and the North Pole among others and all of them were answered in Santa's name by Mrs. Jantuen and a staff of five.

"The lack of manpower in the post office is the only reason to stop this service," she said. "I sincerely hope some organization in Finland will take this over," she said.

Santa's mail has already begun arriving this year but the post office has not decided what to do with it. But the mail won't be answered.

VICE president designate Nelson Rockefeller is in Utah and California this week campaigning for Republican candidates. He replaced President Ford who cancelled trip when his wife underwent cancer surgery.

Jury selection drags on

Ehrlichman pleads 'double jeopardy' to 2 of 5 charges

DENENDANT Robert Haldeman, loaded down with briefs, arrives at U.S. District Courthouse.

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman claimed Wednesday he cannot be prosecuted on Watergate coverup charges, saying the principle of double jeopardy invalidates two of the five charges against him in the two-day old cover-up trial.

With jury selection proceeding slowly in the courtroom, Ehrlichman's lawyers filed an "affirmative defense of double jeopardy" with trial judge John J. Sirica claiming their client cannot be prosecuted for the cover-up conspiracy because of his earlier conviction in the Ellsberg burglary case.

Sirica, meantime, warned prospective jurors they could be jailed for contempt of court if they fail to declare their true feelings about the case during the jury selection process expected to last several more days.

Ehrlichman, a former presidential adviser and one of five defendants in the cover-up trial, was convicted in July of conspiracy and perjury in the 1971 burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrists office by White House "plumbers."

His lawyers did not say why that conviction would bar prosecution for the cover-up, but it appeared they would argue that the Ellsberg breakin and the Watergate cover-up were all part of the same conspiracy. The constitutional principle of double jeopardy means a person cannot be tried twice for the same crime.

The lawyers said only that Erhlichman is "constitutionally immune from prosecution" for the first two counts of the indictment against him, which charge conspiracy and obstruction of justice in the cover-up.

He also faces three charges of lying to federal investigators but the double-jeopardy contention did not extend to those charges.

Ehrlichman was sentenced to 20 months to five years imprisonment on the Ellsberg conviction but has appealed and has spent no time in jail.

Federal procedure requires that a complaint of double jeopardy must be claimed at the time of trial. It was unclear whether the trial must be delayed while this legal issue is resolved.

Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, meanwhile, filed another legal brief saying the government "may prove at trial" there were others involved in the conspiracy beyond those indicted or named co-conspirators by the grand jury.

Former President Richard M. Nixon is one of nearly two dozen persons named unindicted co-conspirators in the plot. Jaworski gave no indication who else he may seek to prove was involved.

ARRIVING at Watergate trial is defendant John Ehrlichman accompanied by his wife and attorney. Trial opened third day today.

Kentucky Senate race

Neither party has edge

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — The biggest barrier facing Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., in his bid for a second term may be the practical politics and the sheer numbers of Kentucky Democrats.

A Republican must attract Democratic votes to win a statewide election in Kentucky, where there is a nearly 3-1 Democratic margin in registered voters. And even without the lingering clouds of Watergate, the Nixon pardon and inflation, which have hurt him, Cook is facing a usually unified Democratic party where everyone apparently has something to gain by the election of his opponent —Democratic Gov. Wendell H. Ford.

The state Democratic party basically is split among followers of Ford and Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll. But Carroll would become acting governor if Ford is elected to the Senate, and would be in a strong position to be elected to a full term in 1975. Thus Carroll and his supporters have been among the strongest campaigners for Ford.

Ford has been hitting the economic issue hard, blaming the current inflationary problems on a lack of direction from the national administration.

Cook retaliates by pointing to Kentucky's record biennial budget, calling Ford the biggest spender in the state's history.

Both men have attacked the other's record in office. Ford charges that Cook has been aloof from Kentuckians and their problems, while Cook contends Ford has given lucrative state contracts to his political cronies.

Cook also has hammered away at a General Accounting Office report which found apparent violations in a Democratic fund raising drive last year.

An emotional issue of the campaign has been a construction of a proposed dam in the scenic Red River Gorge area of south central Kentucky. Ford is for the $32 million project, Cook opposed.

Ford has had to wade through pickets opposed to the dam, and both sides concede the governor's stand has cost him votes.

Strategists feel Cook gained considerably by the resignation of former President Nixon, lost ground again on his pardon, but came out with an overall plus effect.

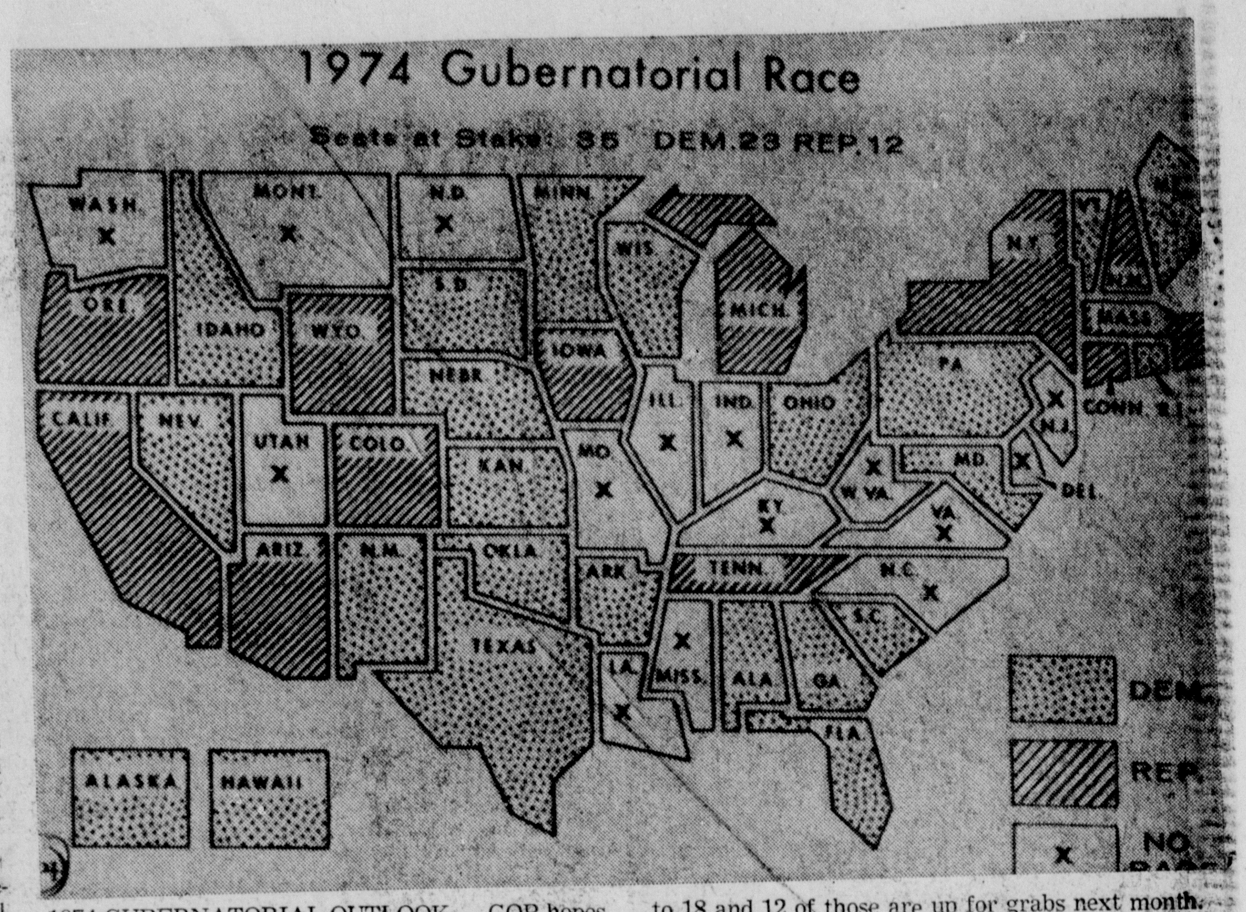

The Kentucky voter has paid little overt attention so far to the Senate race. Part of the apparent apathy may be due to dissatisfaction with politics in general, but another reason could be the lack of hot congressional races.

The only district where there is any kind of contest is in the fourth —an elongated district streching from Louisville along the Ohio River to urban northern Kentucky.

There incumbent Republican M.G. "Gene" Snyder is facing a spirited and vocal campaign from Louisville attorney Kyle Hubbard, seeking his first elective office.

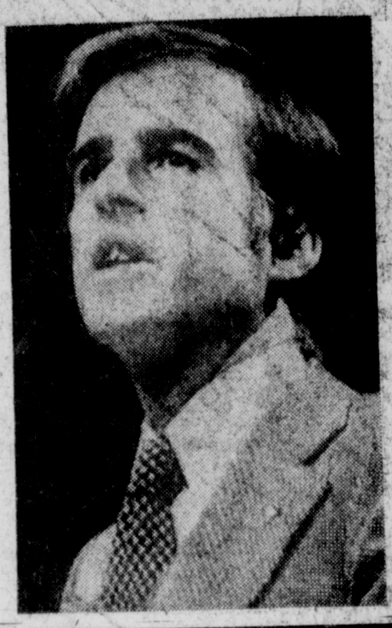

While Hubbard is inexperienced in the political ring, his family has voter appeal. Older brother Carroll, a two-term state senator, upset veteran congressman Frank Stubblefield in the May Democratic primary in far western Kentucky's first district.

Carroll Hubbard is expected to easily win in the heavily Democratic district, while other incumbent congressmen, Republican Tim Lee Carter and Democrats Ron Mazzoli, Carl Perkins, John Breckinridge and Carl Natcher, are expected to have little trouble.

1974 GUBERNATORIAL OUTLOOK — GOP hopes for more governor's mansions do not appear good in next month's election. From a high of 32 of the nation's 50 statehouse front offices during former President Nixon's popular years, count has shrunk to 18 and 12 of those are up for grabs next month. Democrats say they have a fighting chance to recapture governors' races in the giant industrial states of California, Massachusetts, Michigan and New York in Nov. 5 general elections.

California's hot governor's race pits Houston Flournoy (left) against former Gov. Edmund Brown's son, Edmund G. Brown (right). Stakes are leadership of nation's most populous state. So far, polls show Brown well ahead of Flournoy based mainly on Democratic registration ratio of 3 to 2.

But both are also using slick media campaigns — for Garn, the image of a conservative man of experience, and for Owens, that of youth and new ideas.

Garn, 41, has peppered the landscape with billboards stating he is "decisive, aware, candid, mature, a straight talker. . . and bald."

His disappearing hairline made the billboards after a poll conducted for him showed that most voters imagined a mature, balding, man when they thought of a U.S. senator — like Bennett, who hardly has any hair at all.

Owens, 37, has held monthly 30-minute "town meetings" on statewide television, walked between cities in his district and even worked a day in a coal mine to publicize his youth, energy and willingness to get out and talk with the people.

Owens was the early favorite in the race, leading the mayor by nearly 10 points in polls conducted last spring.

But the situation changed during the summer months when, as a member of the House Judiciary Committee, he voted four times in favor of impeaching Richard M. Nixon.

Recent polls show Garn about 10 points ahead of Owens — but neither man with a clear majority. Owens blames his impeachment votes.

"Nobody likes an accuser," he says.

"That's just his political excuse," replies Garn. "I've been gaining on him all year. The turnaround came the week I was nominated at the state GOP convention by more than 88 per cent."

Garn was picked by state and national GOP leaders early in the campaign. Bennett, 76, broke one of his traditions — he has served 24 years — and endorsed Garn weeks before the July nominating convention, much to the chagrin of four other Republican candidates.

The national GOP senatorial committee also singled out Garn as its choice nearly six months prior to the convention.

President Ford, who has visited the state twice this year, has scheduled another trip to Salt Lake City on behalf of Garn Nov. 2 — three days prior to the election.

But Owens also has his big names, including Speaker Carl Albert, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, actor Robert Redford and singer John Denver.

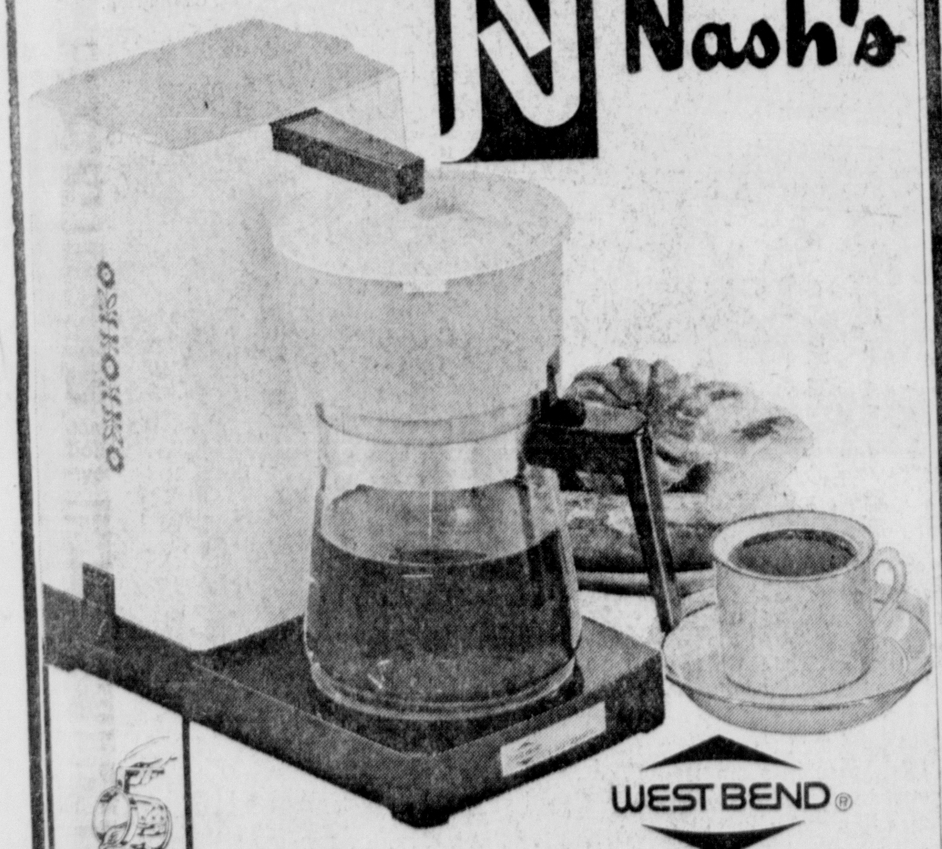

Redford helped Owens raise several thousand dollars more in Utah with a benefit showing of his movie "The Sting" and with a concert at the actor's Sundance resort featuring Denver.

Throughout his campaign, Garn has criticized the federal government for interfering in the affairs of local governments and has called for a "return of power" to the local level.

He has attacked Owens as a "federalist, while I'm for local rights."

Owens has countered by pledging to spend one week out of every month in Utah listening to the people — a practice he followed during his term in Congress. He has also criticized Garn for his conservative economic policies.

U.S.-Soviet trade

Congressmen could help

NEW YORK (UPI) — American businessmen feel trade with the Soviet Union would double in five years if Congress grants the Soviets favored trade status.

Legislation now is moving through Washington that would lift restrictions on trade with the Russians, and many believe Congress will act favorably since it appears the Soviet Union has softened its position on emigration of Jews.

E. Douglas Kenna, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said in a recent interview the trade bill would be passed this year.

"This 'most favored trade' status is a misnomer," he said. "All it means is equal trade status, and basically we feel we should trade on an equal basis with everybody."

Kenna will lead a delegation of 15 top U.S. corporate executives to the Soviet Union Oct. 11 for a one-week promotion of better trade relations.

The businessmen, including Richard C. Gerstenberg, General Motors chairman, Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp. and IBM Chairman Frank T. Cary, are members of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade anb Economic Council.

The council was established a year ago with join directorship and offices in New York and Moscow. The Soviet directors toured the United States and met with their American counterparts early this summer.

The United States will export about $1.6 billion in goods to Russia this year, up from $600 million two years ago. U.S.S.R. exports into the U.S. market have increased from almost nothing to $300 million.

"We think in five years — with most favored trade status —trade between the two countries will be in the $5 billion range; without it, it will stabilize at about $2 billion," Kenna said.

The trade imbalance probably will remain in the United States' favor because of the nature of the socialist political and economic system that discourages marketplace production in favor of government planned production.

"They don't want to come in and try to market autos and watches as the Japanese do," Kenna said. "They are not really market oriented."

Furthermore, he said, the Soviets are not interested in getting involved in selling items that might suddenly catch on in the faddish U.S. market and then not be able to meet demands without upsetting long-term production allocations.

The greatest potential for increased U.S.S.R. exports to the United States, Kenna said, lies in paper products, including newsprint, a commodity in increasingly short supply.

The Soviet market, on the other hand, is receptive to American-made heavy equipment and computers.

But, said Kenna, it won't be easy even in these fields because of competition from Japan, Great Britain and West Germany.

"I was in Moscow recently," he said, "and it looked like downtown Tokyo."

Furthermore, he said, "the Russians are very hard negotiators and shoppers. They may be the toughest in the world. But once the deal is made it is absoutely inviolate, and their credit has been triple A right along."

American businessmen also will have to learn to deal with the Soviet bureaucracy, which Kenna likened to a "big sponge —you throw things in there and they never come out."

"Our experience has been that the guys who get to the very top are very bright and capable people," he added. "But, just as here, you get down a notch or two, and they are not quite so capable."

Window on the World

Fear weakened Kissinger position

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Middle Eastern and Communist diplomats are worried about what they term signs of a weakening of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's position. They are expressing anxiety that any scaling down of Kissinger's role could impair both the future of detente between the superpowers and effect adversely the uneasy situation the Middle East. Their argument is that it was Kissinger's uniquely strong position in the past which helped considerably toward progress in both spheres in difficult circumstances. The diplomats said government leaders in Moscow and in the key Middle East capitals will be watching Kissinger's performance during scheduled talks in coming weeks and draw their conclusions whether a chance is in the offing.

Spain

A castle in Spain may be in the future for two Spanish leaders when king-designate Prince Juan Carlos ascends to the vacant Spanish throne. Monarchist sources report that Juan Carlos, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's designated successor, may deed Madrid's Pardo palace to Franco or his heirs as a token of Spain's gratitude to the Caudillo when he becomes king. The sources also say Juan Carlos may invite his father, Count Juan of Barcelona to return from Portuguese exile and live in the historic castle of Aranjuez. Don Juan still considers himself Spain's rightful king. He also is a critic of the Franco regime.

100,000 other worlds?

Outer space life

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The folks who live at the stars are smarter than we are. Everybody agrees on that.

But Prof. D. R. Bates of Queen's College, Belfast, is the first scientist to suggest that they might be too smart to want to spend a lot of money making contact with the comparatively stupid people on Earth.

What could we teach them?

Bates gave the overheated advocates of a vast project to contact life in outer space an ice cold shower at the recent convention of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

They were, he said, the lineal descendants of a scientist named Gauss who suggested in 1820 that fields and forests in Siberia be planted in squares and triangles so that the star dwellers would dealize their earthly cousins knew geometry.

And of another scientist named Von Littrow who in 1840 proposed digging a circular ditch ten miles in diameter in the Sahara desert, filling it with kerosene and setting it afire at night to alert the citizens of the distant galaxies that they were not alone in the universe.

Not to mention the time and money the U.S. Navy spent in 1924 trying to pick up signals from Mars which in that year was particularly close to earth. And Project Ozma of 1960 in which the National Radio Astronomy Laboratory at Greenbank, W.Va., fruitlessly locked on to a couple of silent stars only 60 trillion miles away.

None succeeded and no one should have expected them to succeed, Bates said, every syllable wounding those addicts of science fiction who accept it as an article of faith that there are civilizations on stars all over the heavens.

Bates said many scientists seem to agree on an estimate of 100,000 technological communities in the galaxy. He said he doubts this figure and is not even sure there is any life out there, but so as not to confuse the issue he would not challenge the theory at the moment.

"Having indicated my reservations I shall take 100,000 to be the number of technological civilizations in the galaxy and proceed," he said. "Two points may be noted.

"Firstly, if contact were made it would be expected to be with a technological civilization far older than ourselves.

"Secondly, distribution of stars in space shows that the time for a signal to travel the double journey between us and the nearest technological civilization woud probably be rather over 500 years."

Bates said he could not see anyone maintaining interest in a conversation in which it took 250 years to ask a question and 250 more years to get the answer. In addition, there are 10 million possible wave bands that could be used and even if earth and a star tried to get in touch with each other by radio telescopes it might take well over 1 million years to make the first contact.

"A very ancient civilization would have so little to gain by making radio contact with us that I do not think the government concerned would provide the financial support a signalling beacon would require."

PROTOTYPE train built for Canadian-Pacific Railway, arrived in Pueblo, Colo., this week for testing. High speed unit can hit curves 40 per cent faster than conventional trains. The aluminum coaches are 25 tons lighter than standard models.

Earth-space equilibrium

Balance 'switch hitting' needed

HOUSTON (UPI) — Passengers on Space Shuttle flights next decade may have to train their brains to easily cope with changes from gravity to weightlessness and back, just like some baseball hitters switch sides of the plate.

The inner ear balance mechanism is thrown off when man first goes into space and it must adapt to the new feeling, said Dr. Jerry L. Homick of the biomedical research division at the Johnson Space Center.

Upon return to earth, the mechanism has to change again, this time readapting to the balance clues the brain has always known.

The Shuttle flights will only be for seven or eight days and the short time period means the passengers will need to adapt to one environment and then another within a few days.

On the long-duration interplanetary flights at least several decades in the future, astronauts will probably have to be confined to bed upon their return to earth to let the inner ear get used to gravity again.

Dr. Lawrence F. Dietlein, deputy director of life sciences at JSC, said what the men must do is "train their brains" to react to either environment.

"It's like someone who is ambidexterious," Dietlein said. "He can shift from one hand to the other with no strong thought process needed. It becomes subconscious."

Homick said the returning Skylab astronauts last year all had trouble balancing themselves on rails and several could barely stand upright on the floor when they closed their eyes.

"For example, during the first few days following splashdown, all of the crewmen reported that the simple act of walking required a conscious effort," Homick said. "Also, nearly all of the crewmen reported that they had to be especially careful when walking around corners because they had a tendency to fall to the outside. This problem was described by a few of the crewmen as a sensation of forced lateral movement."

Homick said mild vertigo caused by head movements accompanied the balance problem.

He said it required up to 10 days for the pilots to regain their equilibrium.

Tennis elbow, anyone?

Would 'love' to find a cure

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — For as long as sports enthusiasts have been pelting fuzzy, round projectiles across string nets to apprehensive receivers, they have also been suffering from a mysterious malady called lateral humeral epicondylitis, or tennis elbow.

About one-half of the nation's estimated 20 million tennis players suffer from the affliction, which, in its worst form, can leave an Olympiad writhing in pain from the effort of picking up a teacup.

There are as many theories as to the causes and cures of the ailment —which results in inflammation and pain over the outer side of the elbow —as there are remedies for colds. Dr. James D. Priest, an orthopedic surgery resident at Stanford Medical Center, is taking a new approach to the problem of tennis elbow. He hopes to eradicate it by changing the equipment.

"If you can prevent the shock that occurs to the elbow during tennis, you may prevent the micro ruptures —or whatever it is that causes the pain," Priest says.

"We've found through some studies of average players that a difference in equipment — that is, the racquet used — means a difference in the production of pain and discomfort. Certain types and kinds of racquets —wood versus steel versus aluminum —cause different discomfort."

Priest says he and two Ph.D. engineers are working on design of a new racket that would allow less of a shock to the extremities, but because the racquet is being patented, he declined to give further details.

Priest says there are many different kinds of treatments such as cortisone shots, acupuncture and operations that do alleviate the pain of tennis elbow. The condition itself is in many cases self-limiting, lasting between three months and a year.

But he says that because no treatment has worked for all sufferers, tennis elbow had to be approached from a different angle.

GRAND OPENING

October 14th MONDAY

Fund-raising plan given a new twist

Students at Chino High School have come up with a new twist to the usual bike or walk-a-thon. They're calling it a charity-a-thon.

The event, to be held Saturday, is more of a job-a-thon.

Each student will be responsible for collecting a certain number of sponsors to pledge money for them to perform odd jobs in the community, says Dr. Terry Terril, school principal.

The charity comes in when one considers that students will be helping many persons who cannot do the jobs themselves, Terrill added.

"The idea originated from the numerous bike and walk-a-thons held by various groups to raise money," he explained. "It was believed the amount of effort used to pedal a bike 40 or more miles could be put to a more practical use by doing charity work for the community."

One purpose of the event is to raise funds for Associated Student Body) (ASB) activities and various clubs and organizations at the high school.

Persons interested in sponsoring a student should contact Pete Setlich, director of student activities at the high school, 628-1201, or Henry DeVries, ASB president, John DeAguiar, business manager or Julia Garcia, ASB vice president. Those wanting a job done should also contact the above-named persons.

Happiness . . . is getting a right answer at New York City's PS 12, a school which specializes in turning problem students into good students with the help of MIND (Methods of Intellectual Development), a self-testing system utilizing audio/visual techniques. In reading assistance (below), a student sees pictures of objects at the same time their names are pronounced that he hears their names carefully pronounced. Operating at their own speeds (lower left), students test themselves to isolate the particular problems of each.

Back in class, a teacher can deal more effectively with the individually diagnosed problems of his students.

Department offering tennis instruction

Semiprivate lessons sponsored by the Upland Recreation Department will commence the week of Oct. 7.

The semiprivate lessons, instructed by Mike Bechard, cost $10 for five lessons.

Family tennis is free.

Semiprivate lessons are those in which there are eight students in a class.

Registration is being conducted at the Upland finance department, city hall, 460 N. Euclid Ave., Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Drug-case hearing slated for Friday

Preliminary hearing for a 20-year-old Chino man accused of furnishing barbiturates to a minor has been scheduled for Friday in Chino Municipal Court.

Robert Phillips, originally booked on a grand theft charge, was arraigned last week for furnishing a 16-year-old Chino girl with barbiturates.

A complaint in connection with an alleged grand theft involving cash receipts belonging to the girl's parents was not filed by the district attorneys officer.

Phillips and the girl were arrested Sept. 25 by Chino and Ontario police officers at Ontario International Airport after $1,300 was reportedly taken from the girl's home.

Three Ontario officers and two Chino policemen were forced to undergo shots for hepatitis after the arrests, when it was discovered the girl had contracted the disease.

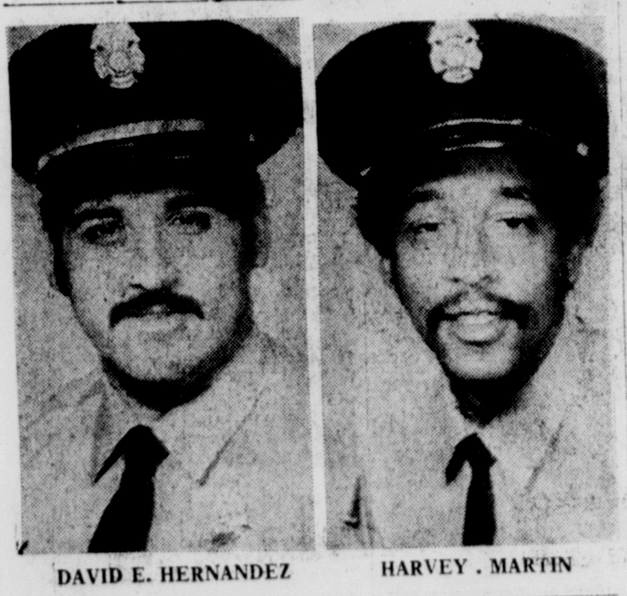

2 fire cadets are promoted

The Pomona Fire Department has announced that Harvey L. Martin and David E. Hernandez have been promoted to the rank of fireman.

Martin, 26, is a graduate of Woodrow Wilson High School in Los Angeles and has attended Cal Poly and Los Angeles City College.

Hernandez, 27, is a graduate of Garey High School in Pomona. He and his wife, Susan, and one-year-old daughter, Shaynt, reside in Pomona.

Both men joined the deparetment as cadets in April.

SON STILL ALIVE, SHE SAYS — Mrs. Jean MacDonald, who believes her son, George, 25, is still being held captive in a Laotian prisoner-of-war camp, holds Air Force photograph of her son as she talks with newsmen in Evanston, Ill., after a trip to Mexico City. Mrs. MacDonald said she will not be intimidated by State Department attempts to keep her from talking about the trip to Mexico where, she says, she received indication that her son is still alive in the camp.

Pickering asks solar system study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of America's leading planetary specialists has called for scientists of all nations to join together in a major, 10-year effort to explore the solar system.

Dr. William H. Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, Calif., proposed an International Solar System Decade modeled after other major international scientific efforts such as the International Geophysical Year which focused on earth and its space environment in the late 1950s.

Since then, space exploration has made major progress and there has been a growing interest among the scientific community in earth's planetary neighbors and in the role our planet has in the solar system. This interest has been sparked by recent American and Soviet space probes to Mars, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter.

"Now is the time to extend this interest into a full international program of exploration," Pickering said in an editorial in Aeronautics and Astronautics, a journal published by the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

Such an effort should be started soon, Pickering said, because an unusually favorable alignment of the planets during the next several years offers unique opportunities for probes from earth.

For example, 1979 is the best opportunity in a century to explore Uranus, the seventh planet out from the sun. He said late in 1981 is a particularly favorable time to launch a spacecraft to conduct an extensive exploration of giant Jupiter and 1981 and 1983 are the best years to send craft to Mars. In addition, Pickering said 1982 presents a rare opportunity to rendezvous with the comet Encke.

The U.S. space agency plans to launch two big landing craft toward Mars next year, send two smaller Mariner television probes to Jupiter and Saturn in 1977, and two atmospheric probes to Venus in 1978. But beyond then, the nation's planetary exploration plans are indefinite.

Pickering said some very important planetary missions, such as returning a sample of Mars to earth, may never be carried out unless there is a multi-nation concensus of approval and financial and scientific support from more than one country.

"Several nations have highly qualified and experienced individuals who are eager to work with their cultural counterparts in other nations and who would welcome the organizational and personal challenges that international cooperation in planetary exploration would entail," he said.

In addition, Pickering said the peoples of the world are taking an increasing interest in the planets and, "the more rapidly we share our newly acquired knowledge with the public, the more they appreciate the adventure."

Pickering said the coordination of data, both from ground based observatories and instruments in space would be an essential part of an international program to explore the solar system.

"The most efficient and most creative use of these data require that they be brought together so that scientists of all nations have easy access to them," he said. "Interpretative genius has no special birthplace."

Wiretaps produce

Regardless of the pros and cons on wiretapping, 812 court approved taps last year produced 2,306 arrests and 409 convictions, says Advance Industrial Security, Inc.

Smoker therapy

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ms. Mary Millsap, member of the American Association of Industrial Nurses, says "half the job in trying to help people stop smoking is in convincing them that you really care that they are hurting their health."

"Industrial nurses, because they are workers every day on the job, are more strategically placed than most other health workers to help the smoker who wants to quit," she added.

Chamber chief hits Congress' failure to check inflation

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It is the high cost of government that is squeezing the economy with inflation, but Congress won't recognize its responsibility to economize, the president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said Monday.

"The president can't control inflation," said Charles H. Smith Jr., of Cleveland. It is the job of Congress to cut bloated budgets, he said.

While attending President Ford's economic summit meeting during the weekend "I got no feeling from the congressmen that they were ready to accept that reasoning," he said.

The congressmen were talking about stimulating the economy instead of trimming the $5 billion Ford requested from the $305 billion federal budget for the current fiscal year.

New, deadlier flu strain is expected

ATLANTA (UPI) — A new and deadlier flu strain is expected to hit the United States this winter, according to the Center for Disease Control.

Dr. Larry Corey of the Viral Diseases branch of CDC said the Port Chalmers flu will spread over much of the nation after first being identified and isolated in New Zealand.

Corey said the Port Chalmers variety was the Type A strain of flu virus which is deadlier than the Type B flu prevalent in this country last winter. He said its effects were worse because it more often hits adults, compared to Type B which mainly afflicts children who are more able to resist the disease.

He said several cases of the Port Chalmers disease were isolated in Georgia and Mississippi during the summer, and it is expected to appear in the Southeast, Midwest, Southwest and Pacific regions this winter.

Two co-ops will cut beef prices by 18%

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Two cooperatives announced Monday they were reducing beef prices by 18 per cent in a move against inflation.

The announcement was made by the Consumer Cooperative of Berkeley, which operates 12 stores in Alameda, Marin and Contra Costa counties, and by the Consumer Cooperative of Palo Alto, which runs five markets on the San Francisco Peninsula.

"We're a customer-owned outfit and we can't afford to ignore our patrons," said Roy Bryant, general manager of the Berkeley organization.

He said he hoped to recoup some of the loss by having stores do more of their own butchering.

Prince in radio

TOKYO (UPI) — Prince Yoshihito, second son of Prince Mikasa, younger brother of Emperor Hirohito, started to work for the Japan Broadcasting Company Tuesday.

The Imperial Household Agency said Yoshihito, 26, would deal with international program exchanges for the network.

Yoshihito studied at the graduate school of the Australian National University from June, 1971, to November, 1973, after graduating from Gakushuin University in Tokyo.

A slick future

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — British Ambassador Sir Peter Ramsbotham says the next two years will be rough for England but predicts the recent discovery of oil in the North Sea will eventually make his country the richest in Europe.

"For the next two years we're going to have a difficult time," Ramsbotham said at a news conference here. "But what's going for us in three or four years and what will make us better off than any country in Europe is that we have found in the North Sea oil and gas deposits which some say are going to equal yours, minus Alaska."

Back-to-school night planned at Fremont

Back-to-school night will be held Oct. 16 at 7 p.m. at Fremont Junior High School in Pomona.

Principal Rafael H. Estupinian will welcome parents in the cafetorium, and explain the school program. Music will be provided by the Pomona Valley Community Chorus.

As is customary at Fremont, the program will be entirely bilingual to accommodate the Spanish-speaking parents.

Parents will follow their children's schedules, meet teachers and tour the campus.

5 master's degrees programs scheduled

Five programs toward master's degrees have been added to the fall schedule of La Verne College, Don Clague, dean of the graduate school, has announced.

They are marriage, family and child counseling, business management and communicative disorders, education with emphasis on school administration, and teaching with emphasis in science.

The programs require 32 graduate units and must be completed within five years.

Reception slated to honor author

Joyce Landorf, author of Christian books and a resident of Pomona for the past ten years, will be honored Friday evening at a reception to be held at Griswold's Inn in Claremont. The reception is in honor of Mrs. Landorf's latest book, "Mourning Song."

It deals with death and how to face it. Mrs. Landorf describes her reaction and the emotional problems she fought in accepting the death of her newborn son, her mother and her grandfather. "They all died within one year and nine months and I had to face that they were dead. But I was hostile and angry and I had to realize that this (death) happens to everyone and I'm not going insane," she said.

A source of her strength in dealing with the deaths of her loved ones was her discovery that all persons pass through a series of five distinct stages when they are faced with death — be it their own or that of a close friend or relative.

According to Mrs. Landorf, as outlined by Dr. Elizabeth Kubler-Ross, these are labeled denial, anger, bargaining, depression and acceptance. "Death denial is big in America," she said. "People don't like to discuss or look at the subject of death. But my book is honest and not dreadful."

"I think one of the first things people must understand is that when they lose someone they love they are bound to be angry. Angry at God or whomever for taking their loved one. I was truly angry," she said, "at the hospital where my son was born and at a lot of other people."

Mrs. Landorf added that people have to face this anger and once they understand why they are angry they are ready to accept. "Anger lasts in the bereaved a long tim and many times persons are mad and don't know why they're mad."

RESEMBLING EVEL KNIEVEL'S disappointing stunt earlier this month, aerodynamic researchers at Rockwell International in Los Angeles tested a new rescue system for the B-1 strategic bomber. High speed photographs show the system as follows: At left, a self-contained crew capsule is separated from the jet's fuselage in the event of an emergency requiring escape. The capsule is propelled 507 feet above the fuselage by two small solid fuel rocket motors which boost the capsule to an altitude where three parachutes are automatically triggered. The third photo shows the deployed chutes lowering the capsule, the last shows the capsule gently landing only 20 seconds from the moment the first sign of trouble developed.

Pair participating in confab on aging

Mrs. Josephine Smith of Claremont will be a keynote speaker at a two-day conference on "Changing The Image of Aging" which will be held Friday and Saturday at the Airport Marina Hotel near Los Angeles International Airport.

She will speak at the Friday luncheon meeting. Her subject is titled "Now Look at Me."

Her husband, Dr. Dwight Smith, will be a panelist at the conference. The panel will be heard both days. Its subject is "An Evaluation of Where We Are And Where We Are Going With Respect to the Aged."

Conference sponsors are the Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology Center at USC, Bakersfield College and the State Office on Aging.

It is a statewide event designed for post secondary and adult school educators.

Mrs. Smith, 75, a retired geriatric social worker, is teaching three classes this fall in the West End. She teaches nurses aides how to care for the elderly in a class at Shea Convalescent Hospital in Upland; how to write for profit at the Upland Recreation Department; and a class on how to understand elderly clients which will begin Oct. 10 at the Ontario Public Library.

Hospital plants sinister garden

Seventeen common ornamental house and garden plants which contain poison have been planted in a "Sinister Garden" at Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center in Fontana.

The educational idea was conceived by a Claremont pediatrician, Dr. Guy Hartman, a memberf of the medical center staff.

The garden is enclosed behind a metal fence at the front of the medical center. Each plant is labeled and keyed so visitors know which parts of each plant are poisonous and what symptoms occur if those parts are eaten.

Among plants exhibited, and their poisonous parts, are oleander, all parts; poinsetta, juice on leaves, stem or flower, sap in eye cause blindness; calla, all parts; azalea, all parts; lantana, berries; holly, berries; rhubarb, leaf only; yellow jessamine, all parts; iris, leaves, root and fleshy stalk; and daffodil, narcissus and jonquil, bulbs.

Dr. Hartman said about 300 times a year some type of potentially dangerous vegetation must be retrieved from someone's stomach at the center.

"Children under 4 are our most frequent patients," he explained. "This is the age of curiosity. These youngsters learn about their world by touching, feeling and tasting just about everything."

New reading project starts next Monday

The Demonstration Reading Project, a state-financed, model teaching program at Fremont Junior High School in Pomona, will begin an after-school session next Monday.

Teachers and aides will be on hand Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3 to 4 p.m. to assist students on an individualized basis, said Mrs. Cheryl F. Givens, project director.

"Everything we do at the center," said Mrs. Givens, "is designed to increase reading skills."

Activities planned this fall include games, tutoring, model building, harmonica lessons, movies, art lessons and crocheting.

All interested seventh and eighth graders at Fremont may participate.

Fremont's Demonstration Reading Project began 18 months ago. It is one of 18 such projects in California. Last year it was rated third in the state in a cost effectiveness study in which reading gains were compared to money spent.

Rafael H. Estupinian is principal at Fremont.

Bank okays 5% stock dividends

Directors of the First National Bank & Trust Co., with head offices in Ontario, have approved payment of a 5 per cent stock dividend.

The dividend consists of 28,065 shares of common stock to be issued subject to the approval of the comptroller of the currency and shareholders owning two-thirds of the outstanding stock.

The stock dividend would entitle each shareholder to one additional share for every 20 shares held at the close of business on the effective date approved by the comptroller of the currency, which is expected to be Nov. 19.

A special meeting for shareholders to consider the stock dividend will be held Nov. 5, at 10 a.m. at the Ontario office.

Preschoolers are offered story hour

A story hour for preschoolers will begin Friday at the Ontario City Library at 10:30 a.m.

Registration of children 3 to 5 is being conducted at the library or by calling 984-2758 extension 25. Sessions will be held each Friday morning.

A class for adults in the art of story telling with the use of a flannelgraph will also be offered on Friday mornings at 10:30 at the library.

Stroke group plans sale

A rummage sale sponsored by the Organizaton for After-Stroke Resocialization, will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Friday and Saturday at 346 Pomona Mall East, Pomona.

Funds from the rummage sale will go to support the organization's two activity centers, which are located at Ganesha Park in Pomona and at the Memorial Legion Park in Glendora.

For more information or donations of rummage, persons are asked to call 621-4209.

Fewer kids around the house in future

Women of child-bearing age plan to have 3 million fewer children in their lifetimes, the Census Bureau reports.

A survey of the projected decline in birth rates indicates that women between 18 and 39 years of age will bear about 2.5 children in their fertile years. The estimate is down from 2.6 children last year and 3.1 in 1967.

The youngest and best educated women in the survey indicated they would have even fewer children, the bureau said. Women 18 to 24 expected only 2.2 children compared with 3.1 for women 35 to 39.

The birth rate among younger women was also down from 1.2 in 1967 to 0.8 this year.

The survey also showed that career women expect to have fewer children and of those with children tend to have less than non-working mothers.

By race, the expected fertility rate and actual births were higher among Negro and Spanish-origin women than whites, the bureau reported.

By interpreting the family projections of married women in the survey completed in June, the Census Bureau estimated that there would be about 3 million fewer births to these women over their childbearing years.

The population survey follows the trend of recent studies which have indicated a declining birth rate in the United States.

The Census Bureau in August had estimated that population changes between now and 1990 will be moderate in comparison with the population explosion of the post-World War II period.

Although the women with college educations expected to have smaller families than those with grammar or high school educations, the bureau said the difference was very slight in the 18-to-24 age bracket regardless of education.

Among younger women the gap is only fractional but among women in their 30s child-bearing expectations vary by about one child per woman, the Census said.

Age of generalist back in business

NEW YORK (UPI) — The age of the generalist is returning in American business management.

"The demand today is for top executives who can maximize results to a degree that will cope with inflation, and for men who understand the inflationary impact," says Lester Korn, president of Korn-Ferry International, Inc., Los Angeles recruiting firm.

It appears the executive who can accomplish this is likely to be a generalist with intensive training but a very diversified background, according to a survey made by the staff of the magazine Dun's Review. He will not be a specialist in sales, marketing or production. Controllers, who are specialists in strictly technical side of finance management enjoy the least prestige among executives in today's difficult climate. This seems somewhat surprising in view in the large demand for accounting graduates reported for the past two years by campus placement offices.

However, after surveying a large group of companies, the Dun's staff found the goal of the really ambitious corporate executive today is to make $100,000 a year. It used to be $50,000 and back in the 1940s President Franklin Delano Roosevelt said $25,000 a year was enough for any American.

The Dun's staff discovered the specialist executives have little chance of making the $100,000. The first rate generalist has a good chance to make that and more.

Vice presidents in charge of sales and marketing, even in big companies, rarely get over $75,000 and very few production chiefs get more than $55,000, the study indicated. Only one financial vice president was in the $100,000-and-up bracket and most were under $50,000.

The next surprising discovery made by the Dun's editors was that, except at the very top level, the giant companies no longer pay the biggest salaries. More than two-thirds of the executives making $100,000 or more were in middle-sized companies —$100 million to $500 million in sales. And, regardless of size, manufacturing companies pay better than anyone else.

Although total executive compensation rose in 1973 to a record dollar level, it was up only 8.5 per cent over 1972, less than the current annual rate of money inflation, according to a survey disclosed recently by McKinsey & Co., a management consultant firm.

Another prominent recruiter, Robert Sbarra, vice president of Handy Associates, said inflation is influencing executives' demands on the company as well as the company's demands on executives. Sbarra said the smart executive now may get an income of $100,000 a year or more but he wants an ever larger share of it in non-taxable perquisites, rather than taxable salary.

"We are getting to be like the English," he said. "A smart English businessman looks at the 'perks' first and is often not frightfully interested in the salary. He wants interest free loans from his employer, free private school tuition for his children, a company car, club membership, free medical and dental service and free financial counselling."

In the United States, Sbarra said, demands for these perquisites are replacing demands for stock options because of the present depressing climate in Wall Street.

Another look backstage by Larry O'Brien

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Larry O'Brien has written his second book. The first was a set of instructions for assembling a political campaign that was so simple and successful that the Committee to Re-Elect the President thought he must be keeping something back.

So Gordon Liddy led his bungling burglars back to Watergate to bug the phone and learn the secrets of the Democratic National Committee chairman. This led to a series of events of some national interest and to the last chapter of O'Brien's autobiography, "No Final Victories. A Life In Politics From John F. Kennedy To Watergate."

O'Brien writes an entertaining book, studded with anecdotes about the Kennedys, Lyndon Johnson and a cast of lesser political lights. He also tells how he organized winning (and some losing) political campaigns starting with his own successful run for president of the bartender's union in Springfield, Mass.

It turns out to be, just as the O'Brien manual said, a job of nuts-and-bolts organization combined with the factors of good issues and good candidates.

"I believe," O'Brien says, "that effective organization can affect perhaps 3 to 5 per cent of the total vote, enough to win or lose a close election. I believe it made the difference in the Kennedy-Lodge (Senate) race in 1952."

Some of O'Brien's stories are new and well-told. Recounting how LBJ was trying to mollify a group of congressmen who objected to Veterans Hospital closings in their districts, O'Brien said the President told the group that one of the installations was a small town Texas VA hospital that had become "nothing more than a firetrap."

To ease economic distress in the town, he said, it would be used in the future as a Women's Job Corps Center.

Rep. Harold Cooley, D-N.C., quickly disabused Johnson of the notion that he had soothed the delegation with the question: "You gonna burn the women?"

"What?" Johnson said.

"You said it was a firetrap," Cooley said. "You gonna burn the women?"

Johnson sat down, saying "I didn't know we had Bob Hope in the audience."

But the usefulness of this book is the sense that O'Brien conveys that politics can be a rational and honorable calling. There is none of the Chotiner-Colson - Segretti type of tactic extolled here, and in fact O'Brien relates that when he and others tried to put together a mock Nixon-McGovern television debate in 1972, they leaned so far backwards to select film clips of the former president, that the project had to be abandoned.

"When the screening was over, McGovern ordered that the 'debate' must never be shown. Everyone agreed we had been too fair. Nixon had won."

O'Brien wants this story to be a defense of ethical politics and a spur to reform in the murky fields of campaign financing and political advertising —he damns both some of Nixon's anti-McGovern and Johnson's anti-Goldwater television spots.

And he says: "One of the reasons I've written this book is to show what the world of politics is really like, not an underworld of cloak-and-dagger activity, but a vast public arena in which men and ideas do battle and in which great deeds can sometimes be achieved."

Guard is shot in San Diego store robbery

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A department store robbery Monday netted two holdup men $55,000 and left an armed guard with a gunshot wound in the stomach, police reported.

Guard Clyde Bixby, 53, an employe of the Loomis Armored Car Service, was listed in stable condition at Villa View Hospital.

He was shot with a small caliber handgun by one of two men who accosted him as he was picking up receipts from the Walker Scott Co. store at the College Grove shopping center.

The police said Bixby was knocked to the ground, then shot once. His assailants escaped in a stolen car with a canvas bag containing about $8,000 in cash and $47,000 in checks. The car was found a short time later and police said they were looking for a yellow Rambler believed used as a second getaway car.

Average driver bad

Make licenses tougher for motorists to get?

For Americans, to whom owning "a set of wheels" is something taken for granted, knowing how to drive comes as naturally as knowing how to tune a color TV. It's a toss-up as to which is considered more difficult.

Getting a driver's license is one of our teen-age rites of passage. So all too many of us also consider it an inalienable — and unassailable — right. Calling somebody a "bad driver" is one of the more personal insults one could ever utter.

The simple truth is, declining highway fatality statistics notwithstanding, the typical American is not a good driver. More than likely, he or she is a lousy driver.

There are three ingredients in the highway safety recipe: The road, the vehicle and the driver. For nearly a decade, the greatest attention has been lavished on the vehicle, via federally mandated safety standards.

Most recently, however, there are signs that there will soon be a new target of concentration, the driver. Safety is, of course, a quite legitimate goal for automakers, an obligatory one in fact. But safety is a relative quality.

There can be no such thing as an absolutely safe car, no matter how many safety standards it meets. A car is either more or less safe. Further, if you agree that there is always the potential for an accident in a traffic situation the decision to drive on a public roadway is, in effect, a decision to court danger.

The hundreds of th[illegible]s who have been killed [illegible]e millions who have be[illegible] injured on America's streets and highways are testimony to that.

The growing interest in the driver as the key culprit in our continuing saga of death and destruction — and we're not talking about "the nut behind the wheel," but the average American man and woman, responsible, right-minded and an incompetent driver — is showing up in subtle and widespread ways.

At a recent seminary on auto safety sponsored by Mercedes-Benz, a panel of journalists examined the legal and engineering aspects of the problem. Next, the journalists zeroed in on the driver as the area where the most good can be done in improving safety.

They talked about better driver education programs, tougher licensing tests and even two levels of driver's license — one which would authorize the holder to operate vehicles only on surface streets, another for people qualified to drive on all public roads. This system would hopefully allow only good drivers on the freeways, parkways and interstate highways.

Out of the question? It's not very different from the system of licensing pilots, which is based on various levels of proficiency, experience and physical health.

This proposed scrutiny of one's "right to drive" is gaining currency in many places. In North Carolina, for example, 128 acres have been secured and $2 million appropriated by the state for the establishment of a National Driving Center. The Center's purpose is to examine the medical aspects of driving, including the driver's physical, mental and emotional behavior.

The first objective of the National Driving Center will be defining the driving task in medical terms. To accomplish this, biomedical telemetry equipment, such as was developed for the space program, will be used to monitor body functions of drivers on a special test track.

Eventually, the Center hopes to be able to identify the behavioral, social and medical characteristics of drivers who have accumulated a lengthy record of accidents and traffic violations, and from there develop appropriate rehabilitation programs. The concept was worked out in cooperation with medical, legal and insurance associations in North Carolina — hardly wild-eyed radicals.

In virtually every other part of the country there has been talk of requiring senior drivers, those 65 and older, to take an annual driving test to maintain their licenses.

What is it that's wrong with America's drivers? It starts with the way we sit, scrunched up against the steering wheel, hands draped from the top of the wheel rim like praying mantises. If you think about it, one cannot possibly make an evasive maneuver — steer out of an emergency — when so contorted. What's more, we seldom use our mirrors to look when changing lanes or merging.

Thrust into a "panic" situation, the first — and usually only — action we take is to stand on the brake pedal, when what really may be needed is a nudging of the gas pedal and a quick turn of the wheel. The complete list of errors is too long to include here.

It's an education problem. It's an attitude problem. Perhaps, it was best put by one of the participants at the safety seminar, "You don't have a natural right to take 400 horses out on the road. You have to earn it, and you have to be trained for it. You have to be equipped and prepared for it. Then you'd have a different sociological outlook on the license and the removal of it. Maybe there'd be fewer of them."

Unlucky one's last chance

The Olympiad game was over and the Unlucky Expert rushed up to us with his tale of woe.

He started, "I guess I am the only declarer in the entire continent who didn't make four hearts on board twelve."

"I guess you are," we replied. "What happened?"

"West opened the six of diamonds," was the first part of the reply. He continued: "I saw no reason to hop with dummy's king. Nobody leads away from an ace against a preempt. My queen won the trick and I promptly slapped the jack of spades on the table. East thought a while and played low so West won with the queen. He led back a trump and there was no way for me to avoid the loss of three spades and a diamond."

For once in our lives we have to sympathize with him. We doubt if anyone else anywhere in the world was faced with that low diamond lead.

However, we think that he should have run off all seven trumps after winning that first trick and see if East and West would have found the right discards.

Ford food plan hit by candidate

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — President Ford's foreign food aid program feeds foreigners at the expense of the American consumer, American Independent Party senatorial candidate Jack McCoy said Tuesday.

McCoy, 51, Carlsbad, said Ford was "putting foreign governments ahead of Americans" by promising to increase U.S. food aid abroad.

"We've already had one food shortage and increased food prices because of the Nixon wheat giveaway to Russia," McCoy said. "And because of droughts, many of our crops have been wiped out and we are faced with another food shortage.

"But President Ford goes to the United Nations and tells them we're going to help feed the world."

McCoy, a painting and decorating contractor and the father of 10 children, also attacked Republican and Democratic office holders as being in the pay of special interest groups.

If elected Senator, McCoy said he would vote against confirmation of Vice Presidential designee Nelson Rockefeller because "Rockefeller is the epitome of the special interests I'm talking about."

Stranger in saloon goes Unnoticed but his horse . . .

CHICAGO (UPI) — No one paid much attention to the tall stranger and his friends sitting in a tavern, quietly sipping beer.

It was a Saturday afternoon —a football afternoon.

"Then someone noticed a horse tied up in front," said Mike Miller, manager of the tavern in suburban Mount Prospect.

"It looked like something right out of Death Valley days. It was a mule or a pony. Some kind of small horse. And it was loaded with picks and shovels and skis. I thought it was a practical joke."

The horse was tethered to a chair in front of the tavern. Traffic bottlenecked on the street as people looked at the animal.

Not everyone was pleased. Someone called police to complain the horse was tying up traffic. It was also parked in a no parking zone.

"What do you think we do? Go around harassing people?" a patrolman was reported as saying. "Everyone took it in good humor, evidently, except the complainant."

The stranger finished his beer, said goodby to his friends, mounted his horse and rode off.

No one did learn his name, Miller said, but, "He said he was from Lancaster, Pa. He's traveling from there to Oregon."

Given Belfast, not Hong Kong; may sue army

GRATELEY, England (UPI) — Kevin Keogh joined the army to see Hong Kong and wound up in Belfast.

"I'm thinking of suing the army under the Trade Descriptions Act," which prohibits false or misleading advertising, his father, George Keogh, said.

"He was getting all excited at the thought of the Hong Kong night life," Keogh said of his 18-year-old son. "It was the glowing way the recruiting sergeant described Hong Kong that made him sign on for nine years."

Then, after basic training, Belfast.

"He hates the place," Keogh said. "It's different from what he was promised."

An army spokesman said "A soldier joins up to serve anywhere in the world. No promises are held out."

Ask Dr. Brothers

Gambling's no fun

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I didn't know when I married my husband three years ago that he was such a terrible gambler. We used to go to the races together and I thoroughly enjoyed them, but I didn't realize that this would continue and become a daily routine with my husband. The problem is, we're not rich. We're not even well off and I'm trying to raise a child on wages that never seem to come home but are being shot on some horse. When he does win (and that's rare) he doesn't save the money but bets again. — N.D.

Dear N.D.: Your husband sounds like a compulsive gambler and if he is, he needs help. No amount of nagging or even rational arguments about debts and economic needs are likely to move him, for he is probably overcome by an irresistible, urgent need to gamble that he himself does not understand.

Dr. Edmund Bergler, in "The Psychology of Gambling," says the gambler seeks and enjoys an enigmatic thrill which cannot be logically explained, since it is compounded of as much pain as pleasure.

There is no doubt that gambling triggers many emotions and is a compelling thing to the individual who is addicted to taking a chance. Often, it is not the winning or the losing, but the state in between when the outcome of the bet is still unkown that provides the biggest thrill. Once the gamble is resolved the excitement diminshed, but the true gambler reaches out for that excitement again and again whether he can afford to lose or not.

Studies of compulsive gamblers indicate that they suffer from many unresolved problems that are carried over from childhood in the form of conflicts with parents or other family members. Most gamblers have a deep-seated feeling of guilt and actually want to be punished. This is one of the reasons why even when your husband wins, he returns again and again until once more is a loser. Compulsive gamblers gamble in an attempt to ward off an impending depression. They are always on the brink of depression, which is intensified by their financial losses and their loss of self-esteem.

Compulsive gamblers are frequently childlike in many ways. Childlike, they think only good things can happen to them and they cling to this belief even when it's repeatedly proven false. Much of their life is spent in a fantasy world. They equate fate with God, and this they often relate to the omnipotent father of early childhood. Luck is a lady, a protective mother and a kind of saint. The real gambler bets not just for money, but because he is challening fate, the establishment, logic and an unfeeling universe.

Many gamblers, because of their deep-seated needs, would rather continue to play childish games than accept the responsibility that maturity demands.

Often, the childhood problems that create the compulsive gambler also create an individual who has difficulty feeling for others and giving of himself. There is a tendency to loveless sex and an inability to relate in a deep, meaningful way to women, or to anyone, for that matter.

Gambler's Anonymous has helped many compulsive gamblers and their families. They have also helped the gambler to stop long enough to get the psychiatric help he may need, and to begin to clear some of his debts. There is also an organization for the spouses of gamblers that you will find helpful. This is a problem you cannot handle without outside help.

TODAY'S Women

Taylor-Ocepek vows recited in church

Rosemary Ocepek and Jimmy Allen Taylor were united in marriage in a ceremony they composed during rites at the Chapel of the Bells in Ontario.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mario Gulizia of Pomona was escorted to the altar by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith of Torrance.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin with chiffon overlay accented with old-fashioned lace and lavender daisies. A headpiece of fresh flowers held the bride's veil which was accented with lavender daisies.

She carried a cascade of white baby roses, white daisies and lavender baby's breath.

Pat Lux of Ontario was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Shelly Newman and Cathy Balough of Montclair. Sandra Gulizia handled the guest book.

Candlelighters were Ed Strevli and Steve Williams.

The best man was Charles H. Smith and ushers were Bill Ketchum and Rocky Gravel. Lisa Lux was flower girl and Steven Williams Jr. was ring bearer.

Among the guests at the reception in the chapel hall was the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Lorraine McAlister of Blythe.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor honeymooned at Catalina Island and will make their home in Upland.

The Crowd Loves Jolly Time

Hernandez and Shanks vows said

A wedding at Padua Hills united in marriage Miss Leeanna Carol Shanks and Joe Dennis Hernandez.

The Rev. Roger Granados performed the double-ring ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Del F. Shanks of Upland and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Hernandez of Fontana.

The bride's ensemble was a silk organza gown with a hat. She carried a bouquet of roses, fern and baby's breath.

Mrs. Priscilla Bermudez was matron of honor. Miss Donna Hernandez was bridesmaid.

Joe Louis Bermudez was best man. Terry Shanks was the usher.

After a reception at Padua Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Hernandez departed for a honeymoon trip to San Luis Obispo. They are residing in Ontario.

MRS. JOE HERNANDEZ

Church of God setting for couple's marriage

After a honeymoon in San Diego, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harrison Thomas are making their home in Chino.

MRS. EDWARD THOMAS

The bride is the former Terri Lynn Schenkel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne A. Schenkel of Pomona. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Thomas of Pomona.

The Rev. J. E. Miller officiated at the couple's double-ring ceremony in the Pomona Church of God.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white, floor-length gown designed with chantilace on the sleeves and bodice. Small buttons lined the front of the gown. A head-piece of seed pearls and rhinestones held the bride's veil. She carried a spray of white roses and aqua mums with her great-grandmother's Bible.

Mrs. Cathy Spencer was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Raylene Thomas and Marcella Ford, sisters of the groom, and Lori Hendricks.

The flower girl was April Spencer and James Fraley was ring bearer. Don Schenkel and Paul Thomas, brothers of the couple, were candlelighters. A sister of the groom, Nancy Thomas, handled the guest book.

Larry Bollerman was best man. Ushers were Steve Schenkel, Glenn Hardcastle and Richard Thomas.

Among the 200 guests at the reception in the church hall was Mrs. Helen Lentz, great-grandmother of the bride.

JUDITH FENECK

Februray wedding planned

Miss Judith Lynn Feneck and Daniel Robert Lefevre will be married in February at St. Angela Merici Church in Brea.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Feneck of Diamond Bar is a graduate of Mt. San Antonio College and a stewardess for United Airlines.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lefevre of Costa Mesa, the groom-to-be graduated from El Camino College. He is employed by Boys Markets.

Pomona Juniors schedule meeting

Pomona Junior Women's Club has scheduled a membership dessert meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Karen Wolfe.

Membership in the club is open to women interested in community service who are between the ages of 18 and 35. Interested women may contact Mrs. Wolfe, membership chairman, at 623-9571.

Some of the projects that Pomona Juniors are presently working on are: helping at the Senior Citizen flu immunization clinics at Pomona Health Department, Oct. 17 and Oct. 24; multiplication teaching aide for each public elementary school in the city; serving and providing refreshments and babysitting at a sewing class for students in the Volunteer Vital English program; selling pool signs required by the county Board of Supervisors for residents in unincorporated areas. Anyone interested in obtaining a sign may call 623-4868.

Memorial program planned

The Claremont-Montclair Chapter of City of Hope will sponsor a dance program as a Cathy Hart Memorial benefit on Oct. 16 at 8 p.m. in the Montclair Starlight Theater, 5111 Benito Ave., Montclair.

The tap and ballet program will be titled "Stars of Tomorrow" and features students from the Cooperative Institute of Music and Dance of Pomona.

Cathy was a patient at City of Hope for 3½ years and a former ballet student. Many of the performers were her classmates. Proceeds from the program will go to the Children's Wing at City of Hope Medical Center in Duarte.

Tickets are available at the door or reservations may be made by calling 626-1729.

Dark and light

Deep, dark fashion colors in clothing this fall will create a big challenge for people with dark complexions. Help will come from lighter and brighter make-up bases and blushers.

Senior Citizens to meet

The Claremont Senior Citizens will meet at 11 a.m. Friday at Taylor Hall.

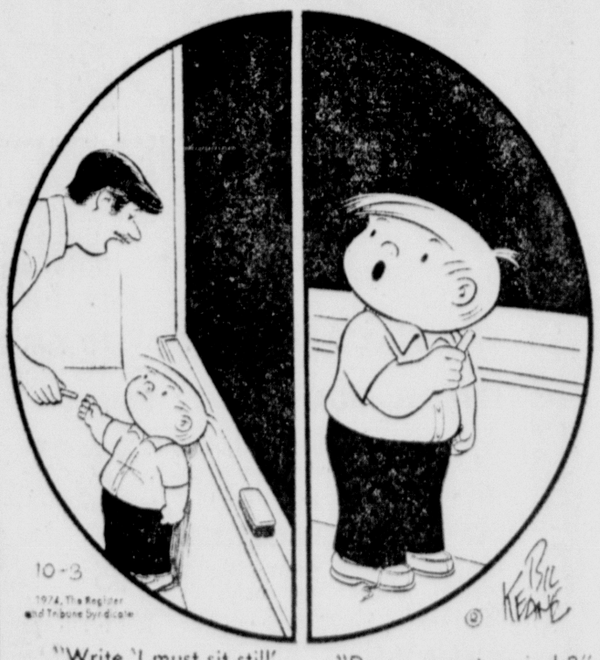

Mrs. Lucile Diefenbach will be in charge of the meeting and the group will play cards in the afternoon.

A potluck is planned at 6 p.m. Oct. 21 in Taylor Hall. Members will bring food for eight persons and their own table service.

Trips planned by the group are: Oct. 10, San Sylmar Treasure House; Oct. 23-30, Arizona and Carlsbad Caverns with stops at Phoenix, Tucson, Santa Fe, El Paso, Petrified Forest and Las Vegas.

There are still some reservations available. They may be made by calling 985-9244.

TRUMPET MAN — Jazz trumpeter Freddie Hubbard will headline the Jazz at the Shrine program at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, at 8 p.m. Saturday. On the card are Stanley Turrentine, Sonny Stitt, Kenny Burrell, and the Freddie Hubbard Quintet.

On television

NEW YORK (UPI) — "GE Theater" is back on television this season with more prime drama specials. The first is "Things in Their Season," scheduled as a 90-minute original by John Gay on Nov. 27 on the CBS network. Patricia Neal and Ed Flanders star in this play about a family running a modern farm, emphasizing the role of the wife-mother.

★ ★ ★

That successful British series, "Upstairs, Downstairs," will be back on the "Masterpiece Theater" program of Public Broadcasting Service beginning Nov. 3. There will be 13 new episodes about the wealthy British Bellamy family and its servants. The first series ended with the death of Edward VII.; the new series goes on from 1910 into the pre-World War I period.

★ ★ ★

An NBC News three-hour program for Jan. 9 will deal with the many facets of the current changing relationship between men and women.

GET ME TO THE CHURCH — Actress Valerie Harper uses the subway to get to her wedding in the CBS television series, Rhoda. She will be "married" in the Oct. 28 segment of the show. The new series has met with enthusiastic public and critical acclaim this season.

Two groups to perform at UCLA

The Southland Stingers and the San Fernando County Sousa Band will perform in UCLA's Pauley Pavilion at 8 p.m. Oct. 20.

The Southland Stingers already are known for their recordings of the ragtime tunes and waltzes of Scott Joplin.

The newly formed San Fernando County Sousa Band, also directed by George Sponhaltz, will now take its place as interpreter of another of America's legendary musical giants.

The Stingers received their impetus, not only from the ragtime rage that has overtaken the nation during the last couple of years, but also from the successful Academy Award winning motion picture, "The Sting," which featured Joplin music on the sound track.

Popular revival of interest in John Philip Sousa also seems imminent with the approaching Bicentennial Year of the United States. More than any other composer, according to Sponhaltz, Sousa is identified with a sense of national pride and partiotism.

"The San Fernando County Sousa Band will present his music, not in its military trappings, but in the spirit of the civilian bands that were a source of local recreation and culture in every American town before the age of radio," he said.

"I think of the Sousa revival," says Sponhaltz, "not as a search for the next musical fad, but as a musicological recreation of the Sousa band sound as it must have been known to millions of Americans for several decades.

"Sousa's own world-famous concert band used roughly one player to a brass part, but was staffed with heavily doubled woodwinds for the classical concert music — Wagner, Berlioz, Verdi — that it also performed."

Sponhaltz believes that today's high school and service bands have grown too large to recapture the lighter, non-military sound his new group hopes to convey. "We want to evoke the nostalgia of simpler times," he says.

Sponhaltz also hopes to reconcile, in the UCLA concert, the music of Sousa with the music of Joplin.

The Glendale Symphony, conducted by Carmen Dragon, will open its 52nd season with an all-Rachmaninoff program in the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 26.

The first concert will feature pianist Leonard Pennario, performing the Second Piano Concerto. Dragon will conduct the Second Symphony and the Vocalise.

This season the orchestra celebrates the 10th anniversary of Carmen Dragon as music director in addition to the 10th anniversary of the Music Center Pavilion itself.

Tickets can be obtained at the Music Center Box Office and all branches of the Mutual and Liberty ticket agencies. Tickets are $5.75 to $2.50. All tickets are half-price for students a half-hour before the concert.

LVC theater to open with Ibsen drama

Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" will open the new Dailey Theater of La Verne College Friday.

The futuristic entertainment center was built last summer. Because the lighting system has not yet been completed, an alternate system will be used.

Reservations at $2 to the public and 75 for students may be made by calling the college.

The cast includes Danny Bullard, Frank Ramirez, Michelle Rosen, Cindy Smith and John Trueblood. The play will be directed by Jack Woodruff, visiting professor of arts.

The play touches on women's liberation, unwanted pregnancies and hypocrisy.

Compensation for runs in hosiery

MAIDSTONE, England (UPI) — Meter maids will get $3.60 a year to compensate them for runs that appear in stockings and panty hose while on duty.

A spokesman for the Kent County Authority said, "Holes appear in stockings and tights in certain atmospheric conditions. The county analyst concluded that the holes were caused by air pollution from sulphur dioxide particles."

BEAUTIFUL BUGS

Over 625 mini-floats paraded through Disneyland recently as part of "Herbie Day," a contest open to Volkswagen owners entering just about any float they wanted provided a VW bug was somewhere under, or part of their creation. Some entries in the bug beautifying contest spent as many as 150 hours preparing their masterpieces. Among the more colorful entries were an edible vehicle, upper left, called the "bean bug" since it was covered by macaroni, corn, chili peppers, garlic, beans, peas and anything handy. A Groucho Marx look-alike, lower left, charmed the crowd of 8,000 as did the clever entry with the California gold rush theme, upper right. Uncle Sam, lower right, headed the motorcade.

Murder trial transferred

The murder trial of Adalberto Galaviz, 45-year-old Baldwin Park man charged with slaying a 15-year-old youth last May, has been transferred from Pomona into Los Angeles because of publicity the case received in the valley, authorities said.

Galaviz was ordered to appear in Los Angeles Superior Court Oct. 10 for further proceedings after Pomona Judge Francis J. Garvey granted the defense motion for transfer.

Attorney James C. Klein had sought the move, claiming that stories in the San Gabriel Valley Tribune and on a Los Angeles Spanish language television station had made it impossible to select an impartial jury from the valley area.

Galaviz, 3991 Big Dalton Ave., is accused of shooting to death Manuel Zarate of Baldwin Park after Zarate and two friends attempted to take gasoline from Galaviz' car parked in Galaviz' driveway.

Investigators charged that the suspect fired a shot from a high-powered rifle at the car containing the youths as they drove away and the bullet hit Zarate, killing him outright.

Fair officials are satisfied with attendance

While attendance at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona failed to meet earlier expectations, fair officials are satisfied with the 1,143,032 visitors who passed through the turnstiles.

The all-time record attendance was posted at 1,286,446 in 1972. The 1974 fair ended its 17-day run Sunday in 11th place since the 1948 fair.

Fair officials believe the Rapid Transit District strike was a major factor in curtailing attendance because the weather was good throughout the fair.

The over-all economic situation also was considered a factor, but that is somewhat belied by the all-time record handle of $15,069,194 at the race track pari-mutuel windows.

Track attendance was up by only one per cent over 1973, but the wagering increased by 8 per cent.

The fair's monorail carried 103,835 passengers while the grounds trams had 72,629 riders, an increase over the previous year.

That fairgoers are a hungry group is shown through commissary reports that 22,000 pounds of hamburger patties, 60,000 pounds of hot dogs, and 20,000 pounds of roast beef were served. And visitors used 45,000 pounds of sugar.

Kaiser will explore Bulgarian markets

OAKLAND (UPI) — Kaiser Industries Corp. has signed an agreement to explore the possibilities of marketing its products in Bulgaria.

The firm said that the agreement had been signed by Andrei Loukanov, Bulgaria's first deputy minister of foreign trade, and William R. Roesch, president of the $2.6 billion Kaiser organization.

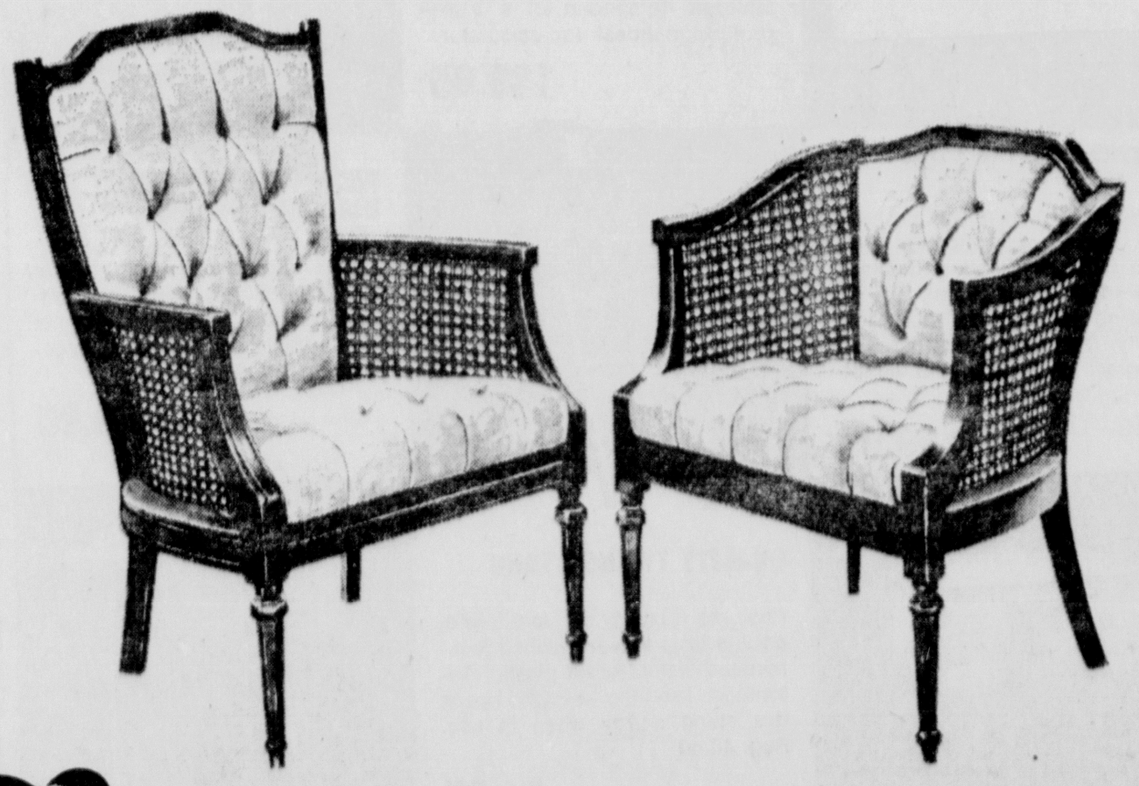

Involved would be the production of iron and steel, mining, cement, aluminum, manganese and coal.

In addition, there would be a study into the design and construction of port facilities, transportation and containerized shipping methods.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to the Qualified Voters of the POMONA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT that in accordance with the provisions of the Education Code of the State of California, an election shall be held on the 5th day of NOVEMBER, 1974, in said School District. The polls shall remain open between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. for the purpose of holding the said District election, consolidated with the General Election, the precincts, polling places and election officers for this District election shall be the same precincts, polling places and election officers for the General Election held within said District.

At this election the following is to be voted upon:

"Shall there be authorized an increase of the revenue limit per unit of average daily attendance in the amount of One Hundred Thirty Six and 00-100 Dollars ($136.00), such increase to be effective in the Pomona Unified School District commencing July 1, 1975, and continuing for an unspecified period of time, the revenues of which are to be used for general fund school purposes. This would constitute an increase for the school year 1975-1976 from approximately Nine Hundred Sixty Five and 00-100 Dollars ($965.00) to approximately One Thousand One Hundred and One and 00-100 Dollars ($1,101.00) per unit of average daily attendance.

"The proposed increase of the revenue limit of $136.00 per unit of average daily attendance will, if authorized, result in an increase in the estimated maximum general purpose tax rate of the District in the first year 1975-1976 from approximately $3.89 to approximately $5.33 for each one hundred dollars of assessed valuation of property."

SUBCOMPACT — The Gremlin, a four passenger car made by the American Motors Corp. carries into 1975 the styling that made it a best seller. Mechanical refinements include new electronic ignition, engine improvements for quicker warm-up and better economy, sturdier manual transmission.

American Motors concentrates on intermediate, smaller cars

American Motors offers an eight-model line-up of 1975 passenger cars that includes mechanical improvements, luxury appointments inside and out and a broad choice of optional high-style dress-up packages for the Gremlin, Hornet, and Matador.

The Javelin and Ambassador are not offered in 1975, said AMC Manager-President William V. Luneberg. "We see an increasing demand for intermediate and smaller cars in 1975 and have adjusted our product lines to allow full concentration on making the Matador, Hornet and Gremlin," he said.

The 1975 models will include the four-passenger Gremlin, two and four-door Hornet sedans, the Hornet hatchback, the Hornet Sportabout, the Matador coupe and the Matador four-door sedan and station wagon.

Among the major engineering advances for 1975 are a new electronic ignition system on all cars, optional overdrive units for Gremlins and Hornets with six-cylinder engines, catalytic converters, an all-new three-speed manual transmission and an engine modification designed to improve economy and reliability.

In addition, all 1975 AMC cars are designed to use non-leaded fuel and come with American Motor's exclusive buyer protection plan that guarantees repair of any factory defect in material and workmanship (except tires) at no cost to the consumer for a period of one year or 12,000 miles.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE NO. 2709

AN ORDINANCE OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, CALIFORNIA, AMENDING SECTION .560-A OF ORDINANCE NO. 1466, ALSO KNOWN AS THE COMPREHENSIVE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF POMONA, REQUIRING THE ALTERNATIVE FINDINGS OF EITHER EXCEPTIONAL CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH DO NOT APPLY GENERALLY TO OTHER PROPERTY IN SAME ZONING DISTRICT OR A SUBSTANTIAL RIGHT WHICH IS POSSESSED BY OTHER PROPERTY OWNERS IN THE ZONING DISTRICT.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Pomona, California, as follows:

SECTION 1. That Section .560-A of Ordinance No. 1466, also known as the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance of the City of Pomona, California, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"A. NECESSARY CONDITIONS BEFORE A VARIANCE MAY BE GRANTED.

The applicant shall set forth in detail on forms provided by the commission, the reasons for the requested variance; shall show thereon how the conditions set forth in this section are satisfied, and all other information as may be required by the commission. The commission , before it may grant a variance, must make a finding in writing that in the evidence presented the first three (3) of the following conditions exist in reference to the property being considered:

1. That there are exceptional or extraordinary circumstances or conditions applicable to the property involved, or to the intended use of the property, which do not apply generally to other property in the same zoning district and neighborhood, or that such variances necessary for the preservation and enjoyment of a substantial property right of the applicant, which right is possesssd by other property owners under like conditions in the same zoning district and neighborhood.

2. That the granting of the variance will not be materially detrimental to the public welfare or injurious to property and improvement in the zoning district and neighborhood in which the property is located.

3. That the granting of such a variance will not be contrary to the objectives of the master plan.

A variance may also be considered where it is alleged by the appellant that there is error in any order, requirement, permit, decision or determination made by an administrative official in the administration or enforcement of this ordinance or any ordinance adopted pursuant to it."

SECTION 2. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this ordinance, causing it to be published as required by law, and it shall thereafter be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after the date of its final reading.

APPROVED, PASSED AND ADOPTED this 23rd day of September, 1974.

Purchasers of contract documents shall be notified of and furnished with copies of such addenda, either by certified mail or personal delivery, during the period of advertising.

Proposal must be submitted on forms prepared and furnished for the purpose, which may be obtained at the Information Desk in the lobby of the Los Angeles County Road Department Administration Building, 1340 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033 at which office bidders may also purchase copies of the Plans and Specifications for the contemplated work for the price of $7.08 plus Sales Tax per set, not refundable. A mail address and a phone number must be left at the aforementioned office which the prospective bidder agrees is sufficient to reach him.

Each submitted proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a surety bond, payable to the County of Los Angeles in an amount equivalent to at least ten (10) percent of the total aggregate bid price of such proposal, as a guaranty that the bidder, if his proposal be accepted, will enter into and execute the awarded contract, and furnish the required bonds in connection therewith, in accordance with the terms of the aforementioned Specifications and Instructions to Bidders. In the event that a surety bond is submitted in lieu of a check, it shall be subject to the condition that the surety thereon be approved by the County Auditor and County Counsel.

The Board of Supervisors reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and to waive technical errors and discrepancies, if to do so seems to best serve the interests of the County.

Pursuant to the provisions of Sections 1770 to 1777, inclusive, of the Labor Code of the State of California, the Board of Supervisors has ascertained the general prevailing rate of per diem wages for each craft or type of workman needed to execute the proposed contract, and it will be required that not less than said rates be paid to all such workmen employed or engaged on the work. Complete wage rate schedules are on file at the offices of the Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department and are included in the contract specifications available at the Road Department.

The rate of compensation for any classification not listed in the schedule, but which may be required to execute the proposed contract, shall be commensurate and in accord with the rates specified for similar or comparable classifications or for those performing similar or comparable duties.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS: Bidders must satisfy themselves by personal examination of location of the proposed work and by such other means as they may prefer as to the actual conditions and requirements of the work, and shall not at any time after submission of the bid dispute, complain, or assert that there was any misunderstanding in regard to the nature or amount of work to be done.

The contractor to whom this contract is awarded will be required, before execution of the contract by the County Board of Supervisors, to file with the County Board of Supervisors surety bonds as follows:

A "Faithful Performance Bond" amounting to 100% of the total contract price is required for all contracts.

A "Payment Bond" (labor and material) amounting to 50% of the total contract price is required for all contracts which have a total contract price in excess of $10,000.

By order of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Los Angeles, State of California.

Dodge offers intermediate specialty car

The Dodge division of Chrysler Motors Corp. has introduced in its 1975 line-up the all-new Special Edition which will serve as an intermediate specialty car, a new series of Coronets, a richer appearing Monaco and a variety of economy, sporty and luxury Dodge Darts.

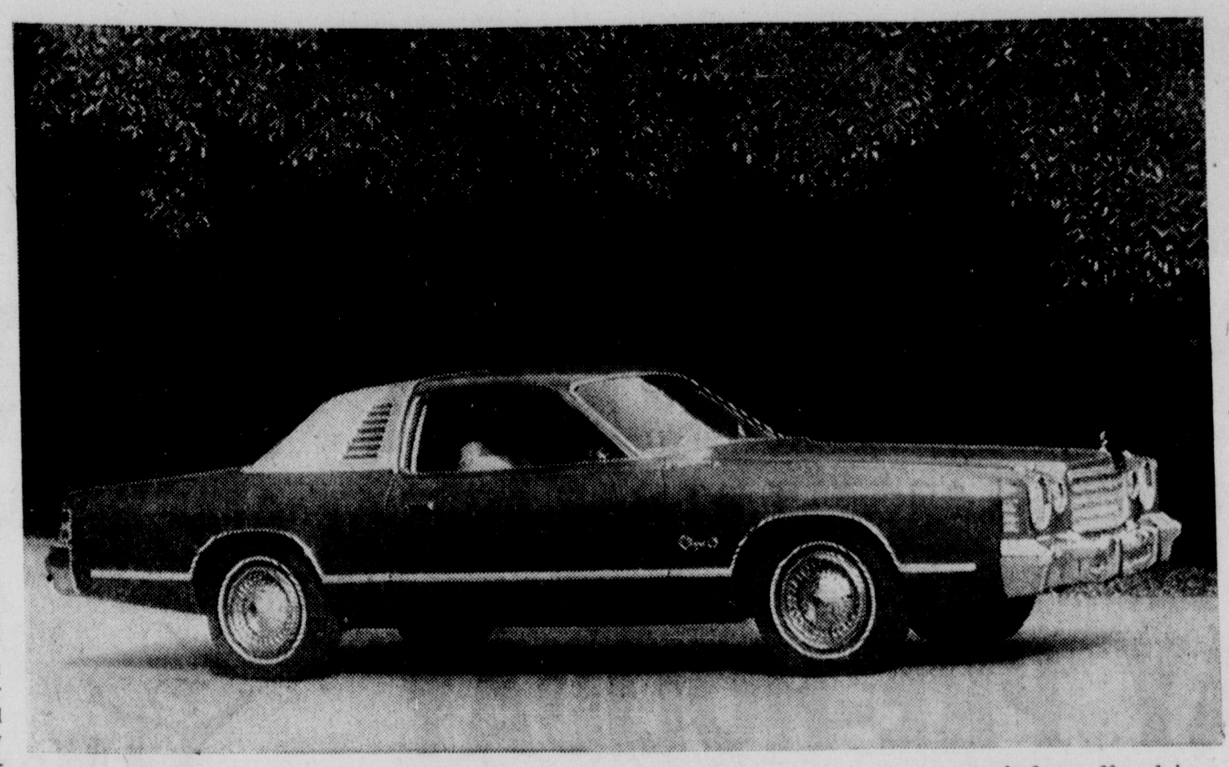

Intermediates this year will represent 11 of Dodge's 38 car models.

The latest edition to the Dodge line-up is the new Charger Special Edition, an exclusive Charger model for 1975. This two-door pillared hardtop offers its own luxury level velour upholstery, carpeted trunk, shag carpeting and such options as power seats, door locks, deck lid release, and an AM-FM Multiplex radio.

The Coronet presents a new image, too, with classically styled two-door hardtops, sedans and two and three seat wagons.

Sedans also come in the standard Coronet and Coronet Custom models. In addition there is a low-priced wagon, middle-of-the-line Custom two and three-seat wagons and the Crestwood two and three-seat wagons.

The Dodge Dart, as the division's volume line, continues to offer eight models.

AN EXCLUSIVE — The all-new Charger Special Edition is an exclusive Charger model for 1975. This two-door pillared hardtop represents a new level of elegance and distinction never before offered in a Dodge intermediate, including luxury velour upholstery and many power options.

These include the Sport and 360 Sport two-door coupes; Swinger and Swinger Special two-door hardtops; basic four-door Dart and Custom Dart sedans; and luxury two and four-door Dart Special Edition models.

While Dart exterior changes are nominal, there will be new grilles, exterior colors and paint strips, new interiors and new options added this year.

Monaco, returning to hidden headlights, also has a new grille and new front bumpers. The basic Monaco is now available in a two-door hardtop, four-door sedan and two-seat wagon. The middle of the line Royal Monaco features a range of body styles, including a two-door hardtop, four-door hardtop sedan and hardtop and two and three-seat wagons. To top off the Monaco line, the flagship Royal Monaco Brougham comes in a special luxury two-door hardtop version with fixed "opera" windows , in four-door sedan and hardtop versions; and in two and three-seat wagons.

Robbers shoot victim to death

NEEDLES (UPI) — An unidentified 22-year-old Denver, Colo. man was shot to death by two robbers Tuesday as he sat in the front seat of his van.

San Bernardino sheriff's deputies said a hitchhiker, who was asleep on the back of the van, apparently was not noticed by the robbers. The unidentified witness told authorities the robbers shot the victim several times with a shotgun before taking some of his personal property.

The witness said the bandits fled east on Interstate 40 in a gold colored van.

Southland off-shore oil is major pollutant to oceans

By AL ROSSITER Jr.
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A team of oil company scientists estimates that 11,300 barrels of oil seep into the world's oceans every day from natural seabottom sources.

About 40 per cent of this natural pollution is believed to come from sediments ringing the Pacific Ocean with offshore southern California one of the major contributors.

Reported oil seeps range in size from as much as 900 barrels a day off Coal Oil Point in southern California to only a few gallons daily at a number of spots off the coast of western Alaska. There are 42 gallons in a barrel.

Writing in Science magazine, five researchers from the Esso Production Research Co., Houston, said there also is evidence of large oil seeps in other parts of the world. Huge blocks of asphalt, for example, have been found floating on the Dead Sea and a 15-foot stream of asphalt, sediment and water flowed into the sea from Trinidad's Asphalt Lake before asphalt mining was started.

The scientists said Canada's vast Athabasca oil sands deposit is the remains of a giant marine oil seep.

Natural seepages on land have been reported since biblical times and such leakage from the ground was once widely used to find oil deposits. But only 190 marine seeps have been reported around the world.

"The limited record seeps is no doubt a reflection of the difficulty of observation in the marine environment as well as a function of the less extensive exploration of offshore areas as compared to onshore areas," the report said.

Far more marine oil seeps are expected to be found with greater investigation, especially in areas where some seepage into the sea has been observed.

The geologists and geochemists who conducted the study said most marine seeps are clustered along continents where sediments are at least 3,000 feet thick and where earthquakes can displace or crack oil bearing rock formations.

Offshore southern California meets the geologic criteria for high oil seepage potential as does the coast of Alaska. The geologically quiet east coast of the United States has a low potential for oil seepage.

The researcher said not all oil seeps come from commercial oil bearing formations. They said there has been extensive seepage along the northern half of Cuba and on the Philippine Islands but little petroleum has been found in those areas.

Other areas considered to have high potential of marine oil seeps are along the northern coast of South America and in the eastern section of the Bay of Bengal and offshore areas of Indonesia.

The scientists said their estimate of a daily marine seepage of 11,300 barrels of oil was "highly reasonable," but they said it may be on the conservative side. They said this estimate is based on the assumption that only a few other areas around the world are as seepage prone as southern California.

They said it is conceivable that as much as 113,000 barrels a day or as little as 3,800 barrels of oil could be seeping into the seas daily.

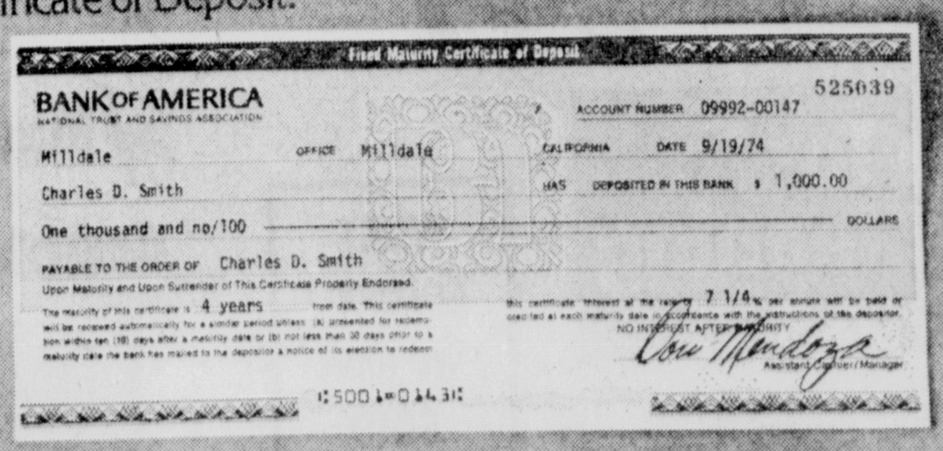

Irrigation

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — An estimated 10 million acres of land in Texas are irrigated for the production of cotton, grains, truck crops, pastures and other farm commodities. About 60 per cent of this land is on the High Plains of Northwest Texas where there is little rainfall. It also includes the rice growing area of Southeast Texas.

It would be nice to have a savings account that earns top interest.

It would also be nice to have a savings account you can dip into anytime.

With this in mind, we suggest you stop by your nearest Bank of America office.

We have Certificates of Deposit that earn 7¼% annual interest. All you need is a minimum investment of $1,000 for at least 4 years. Or as many as 10 years if you wish. Then no matter what happens to the interest rates, you've locked up that 7¼% interest for the time you specified. We must mention that Federal law prohibits withdrawals on Certificates of Deposit prior to maturity unless 3 months of interest is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the regular savings rate.

Which brings us to the regular savings account at Bank of America. The perfect place for the rest of your money. Because if you need it in a hurry, you can get it in a hurry. Put it in, take it out anytime. That's what we call flexibility.

IT'S OVER BUT IT ISN'T

The Pirates' Bob Robertson swings and misses for strike three for what should have been final out in ninth inning Wednesday but Cubs' catcher Steve Swisher drops ball to enable tying run to score.

Tribe names Robby

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Frank Robinson, the only person to ever win the Most Valuable Player award in both the National League and the American League, today was named player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, the first black manager in major league history.

"The only reason I am the first black manager of a major league team," Robinson said at a news conference here, "is that I was born black. I want to be judged by our play on the field not on my inexperience or any other factor."

Today's announcement was made by Indians General Manager Phil Seghi who had obtained Robinson from the California Angels to replace Ken Aspromonte, who was fired last week effective at the close of the season Wednesday night.

Also attending the news conference were baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Lee McPhail.

President Ford, in a telegram to Robinson, said the appointment was "a tribute to you personally, to your athletic skills and to your unsurpassed leadership in the sport."

Robinson, who said he was not a "miracle worker", said the Indian organization would "get a lot of questions and a lot of flack" for hiring a man who had never managed in the major leagues.

The Indians finished fourth in the American League East, won six games more than last season with the best winning percentage in six years with a 77-85 record, 14 games behind division-winning Baltimore.

"If we win it will be because the players do their best," said Robinson. "When a club does fail the manager should take the heat—and I will."

Seghi said "We chose Frank on his merits and his talents. He is a true leader."

Aspromonte said Wednesday night in Boston following the Tribe's victory in the season finale, that the club "did a helluva job. But who cares any more? I'm on the outside."

One problem Robinson apparently won't have is with star pitcher Gaylord Perry, who had said earlier the Indians couldn't afford both him and the new manager.

The terms of Robinson's contract were not revealed and Seghi was to meet with Perry today to iron out terms with the former Cy Young winner who was 21-13 this season after winning Wednesday night's game.

"I'd like to reach agreement," Perry said. "It's up to Seghi."

As for a brief flareup between Perry and Robinson last week following the firing of Aspromonte, Perry said: "That was in the heat of the moment. I just want what's coming to me in salary."

Perry had said he wanted at least $1 more than Robinson.

As for Robinson's appointment, Perry said: "I will be most happy to play for him. Everything will be worked out."

Robinson, in his new position, can achieve a number of distinctions in the next season, including:

—As designated hitter, he can reach his stated goal of 3,000 career hits and 600 home runs, a twin plateau equaled only by Henry Aaron and Willie Mays.

—He could become the first manager to lead the Indians to a World Series since 1954.

"I will not set up a lot of rules," Robinson said. "I believe in treating men as men. The most difficult part will be getting to know them —not their playing abilities, which I already know, but to know them as persons —what makes them tick and how to get the most out of them."

Pirates take East on zaniest play

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates won the National League East championship Wednesday night in one of the zaniest sports events ever staged at winter-chilled Three Rivers Stadium.

"It certainly was an unusual game," said Pirates Manager Danny Murtaugh with his traditional Irish penchant for understatement.

In a game halted twice because chilled fans were tossing empty whisky bottles and other debris at opposing players, Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen drove in Al Oliver with a 10th inning, bases-loaded dribbler to defeat the Chicago Cubs 5-4.

The victory sent Pittsburgh into the National League playoffs beginning here Saturday against the Western Division champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

The St. Louis Cardinals, who needed a Pittsburgh loss to keep their Eastern Division hopes alive, will not make up their Wednesday night weather cancellation at Montreal and officially finished 1½ games behind the Pirates.

"The way things have been going, it's been freaky all year," said Pittsburgh's Bob Robertson, who beat the Cubs Tuesday night with a pinch-hit homer and helped beat Chicago again Wednesday by being hit on the shoulder with an errant throw by Chicago catcher Steve Swisher.

Down 4-0 after the first inning, the Pirates had tied the Cubs in the ninth by scoring two runs without hitting the ball out of the infield. Sanguillen raced home with the tying run after Swisher dropped a swinging third strike by Robertson for what would have been the final out, threw to first and the ball bounced off Robertson's back into right field.

"It might have been the biggest strikeout of my life," said Robertson, who celebrated his 28th birthday Wednesday.

In the 10th, Oliver laced a one-out triple to left and, after intentional walks by Chicago reliever Ken Frailing to Willie Stargell and pinch-hitter Gene Clines, raced home with the winning run when third baseman Bill Madlock couldn't grab Sanguillen's dribbler on the second pitch by Oscar Zamora.

"I saw that he (Zamora) hung a slider and my eyes got like this," bubbled a champagne-soaked Sanguillen, making big circles with his thumbs and forefingers. "So I swing. I am so happy."

Chicago had tagged Pittsburgh starter Jim Rooker for four runs in the first on a leadoff walk to Rick Monday, a single by Don Kessinger, a runscoring single by Jose Cardenal, an error by Richie Hebner and RBI singles by Jerry Morales and Rob Sperring.

"It wasn't the weather," said Rooker, when asked if he was affected by the 38-degree weather. "I think I was a little more nervous than I expected to be. But when I went to the dugout after the first inning, I told them to score some runs because the Cubs were not going to score any more runs off me."

The Cubs never again seriously threatened Rooker but Pittsburgh's Frank Taveras scored the first Pirate run in the third inning on a ground out by Hebner and also the second on a throwing error by Chicago starter Rick Reuschel in the eighth.

The Pirates missed another scoring opportunity in the fourth when Richie Zisk was cut down at home plate on a controversial call following a pinpoint throw by Monday. They also were threatened with forfeit twice when the Cubs quit the field in the eighth and ninth inning because some of the 22,725 fans hurled bottles and debris at Cub fielders.

Home plate umpire Shag Crawford already had announced in the sixth inning that he would declare a forfeit against the Pirates if the debris-throwing were not stopped.

"Debris is a kind word," said Murtaugh, who walked into centerfield in the ninth and the unruliness ended when the organist played a chorus of "Danny Boy."

"It's the first time, to my knowledge, that the Pirates have had things thrown onto the field by their fans," said Murtaugh. "I don't think the Cubs, Pirates or the umpires wanted to forfeit a game as important as this."

Murtaugh said the Pirates would take today off and work out Friday at Three Rivers Stadium in preparation for their best-of-five series against Los Angeles. After games here Saturday and Sunday, the teams resume their playoff series next Tuesday at Los Angeles.

Poly makes some changes

There has been a big reorganization of Cal Poly's athletic department and it looks probable that the major source of finances will be different.

For the first time, Poly's athletic department is seperate from physical education. The university realized both departments have grown too much to be connected any longer.

Don Warhurst, who has been in charge of both departments, stays on as athletic director while Dr. Leo Teghtmeyer is the new head of physical education, which handles the academic picture.

"It was decided to divide the responsibilities," Warhurst explained. "We had 40 faculty members plus staff last year and it became too much for one administrator to handle. It was just stretched too thin. I feel we will be better off in the athletic department. I will be able to devote my full attention to it."

There are still some details to be worked out concerning facilities and equipment but Warhurst says things are being done in a cooperative manner.

Warhurst also has assistance from Darlene May, who has been appointed assistant athletic director for woman's sports. She shares responsibilities with Herb Adams, the assistant for men's sports.

The other big development concenrs money.

Thanks to a bill signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan last week, the state may finance "instructionally related activities" at the state's 19 state university and college campuses.

Final action will be taken on Oct. 16 by the trustees at a budget meeting.

Transfers support

The legislation, authored by Assemblyman Ray E. Johnson (R-Chico), permits the schools to transfer support for certain instructional-related activities from student fees to the state General Fund.

Estimates are the 19 universities will receive a total of $2.8 million from the state with $1.8 going to intercollegiate athletics. The rest will be used for music, dance, drama, publications and other activities.

Each of the campuses will receive an allotment based on enrollment.

Poly figures to receive $115,000 from the state with $80,663 going to athletics.

"Really, we won't get any more money this way," Warhurst explained. "It's about the same as we receive now from the students. It's just a different source."

The big advantage for athletic departments is stability and security. A sudden chance in student body officers won't affect the budget any longer.

A good example is Somona State, where the entire athletic program was wiped out because of the loss of financial help from the students.

"By its action, the state is recognizing the importance of these activities to the universities," Warhurst said.

Starters rest as Dodgers get 102nd win

HOUSTON (UPI) — Lee Lacy doubled home John Hale with one out in the 10th inning to snap a 4-4 tie and give Los Angeles its 102nd and final regular season victory Wednesday night as the Dodgers defeated the Houston Astros 5-4.

Dodger Manager Walter Alston, whose team won the National League West pennant Tuesday night, rested his regulars for Saturday's start of the playoffs against Pittsburgh.

Los Angeles' substitutes, though, did not hold a 3-1 Dodger lead in the fifth inning, which would have recorded Andy Messersmith's 21st victory.

Instead, Houston scored two runs off reliever Al Downing in the sixth to tie the score 3-3 on run-scoring singles by Cesar Cedeno and Cliff Johnson. Greg Gross' triple in the seventh drove in Roger Metzger for a 4-3 Astros' lead.

The hit was the second of three for Gross, a rookie who set a Houston Astros single season record of 184 hits.

Los Angeles scored the tying run on Tom Paciorek's sacrifice fly in the ninth, and won it in the 10th on Hale's single and Lacy's double.

Hank hits 733rd homer in his 'final appearance'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron apparently has ended his National League baseball career after 21 seasons but has indicated he may attempt to add to his home run record next season in the American League.

The 40-year-old home run champ closed out his playing days with the Braves on a dramatic note Wednesday night, slashing his 733rd home run down the left field line in his final at bat of the season.

"Knowing that was the last time, as an active player, I'll be playing in Atlanta Stadium, I'm glad I had a home run in my last appearance," said Aaron. "Sure, it's going to be my last game in Atlanta, no question about that."

But in reply to a question as to whether 733 would be his last major league home run, Aaron said, "I might hit my last one against Cleveland or Chicago (the White Sox). Who knows? I don't right now. It all depends."

Aaron said the home run, his 20th, thus making him the only one to hit 20 or more homers 20 straight seasons, "doesn't enter into my future plans at all. I always like that element of surprise. I like to surprise people. They expect me to say one thing and I say another."

Aaron said he will announce his decision to either retire or play again next year "in about 10 days. I hope something happens by then. I've got some things I need to do the next few days, then I'll stay home and try to think things over."

Aaron was asked if he would be happy as a "designated hitter" in the American League.

"I don't know, that's one of the things I have to think over."

Then, he was asked if he would like to play for the Milwaukee Brewers.

"I can't say," Aaron replied. "I'm still the property of the Atlanta Braves."

Aaron, needing one home run to tie Babe Ruth (714) when this past season began, hit his 714th in his first swing of the season (at Cincinnati) and his 733rd on his last swing of the season (against Cincinnati).

Sun's heroics almost too early

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

PORTLAND — There was a slight change in the Southern California script Wednesday night at Portland's Civic Stadium.

Instead of waiting the last 30 seconds, the Sun scored the come-from-behind touchdown that won the game with 1:56 left. It stunned the record crowd of 20,499 and gave the Sun a 26-22 victory over the Storm and a 10-4 record.

"I figured we made it too soon," laughed coach Tom Fears when asked if he was getting used to the last-second wins. "I thought they might rurn around and do it to us."

The game breaker came on a 35-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Tony Adams to wide receiver Keith Denson. It was the second time in four games the 5-9, 168-pound Denson had performed the feat.

In his first game with the Sun in Chicago Sept. 15, Denson was the recipient of an Adams' pass which gave the Sun a 31-28 victory over the Fire.

"Actually my primary job is to run back punts and kickoffs," smiled the slightly-built speedster. "But I sure enjoy catching those passes. I had a good receiving coach in college (San Diego St.), Rod Dowhower (Now at UCLA). Whenever we dropped one he made us run laps. I got so I didn't drop very many."

The Sun started its winning drive with 3:23 left in the game and trailing 22-18. Adams drove 68 yards in three plays, actually two, for the winning touchdown.

On the first play after a Storm punt, the Sun had only 10 men on the field. Not surprisingly, James McAlister was held to no gain.

On the second play, Adams hit tight end Ike Harris, who had just been sent in, for a 33-yard gain giving the Californians a first down on the Portland 35. The next play was the "Bingo" number.

Ryan easy choice for A.L. award

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nolan Ryan, who pitched the third no-hitter of his career for the California Angels Saturday, was the unanimous winner of the American League Star Parade for last week.

The righthander gained his 22nd victory of the season with the no-hitter, blanking the Minnesota Twins 4-0. He struck out 12 in becoming the sixth pitcher in major league history to pitch as many as three no-hitters.

West ready to announce retirement

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Lakers' star guard Jerry West is considering retiring and met with Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke Wednesday to discuss his future, it was announced today.

An official announcement, expected to signal the end of West's fabled career with the Lakers, was expected later in the day.

West, 36, missed most of last season with a nagging abdominal muscle injury. Last April, however, he announced his intentions to play one more year and signed an open-ended contract to return for his 15th season with the team.

West was reportedly disappointed by his performance in the Lakers' exhibition game against Portland here Friday night. West scored 19 points and had three assists in the game.

Afterwards, West met with Laker Coach Bill Sharman and General Manager Pete Newell to discuss his future with the team.

"I guess a person feels he can find the fountain of youth," West said, "but you just can't. I'm not willing to sacrifice my standards. Perhaps I expect too much."

Sharman and other club officials argued against West's retirement. But West argued that his presence on the team was inhibiting the development of some of the younger players.

"I told him I didn't agree with him," Sharman said. "He was helping the young players, and besides, we felt he could have an excellent season."

"There's no doubt that Jerry would have been the best all-around guard in the league this year," Sharman added.

West, regarded by many as the greatest guard in NBA history, is one of only three men to score more than 25,000 points in his career. He is also the top scorer in NBA playoff history.

West was the Lakers' No. 1 draft choice in 1960, when they moved here from Minneapolis. West and Elgin Baylor led the Lakers to the NBA playoffs several times during the 60s, only to be frustrated in the finals by the Bill Russell-led Boston Celtics.

Poly newcomers get SLO 'feeling'

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

It hasn't taken long for tailback Rich Paulson to get in the spirit of things at Cal Poly.

Paulson, who is one of four football players to travel with coach Andy Vinci from the University of San DIego to Poly, knows how important next week's game against archrival Cal Poly San Luis Obispo is on the Pomona campus.

"You can't help getting caught up in the spirit of things," Paulson said shortly before going out to the practice field. "It's a perfect, natural and established rivalry."

The Broncos have never defeated their big brothers from SLO on the football field but Paulson has the same confidence exhibited by Vinci about the battle at Kellogg Field a week from Saturday night.

"This year, they have to beat us," Paulson stated. "We're going to have a lot of good practices to get ready for this one. We have to get mentally tough."

Paulson is a key reason why Poly is off to a 3-1 start with a bye on the schedule this weekend. He is the Broncos' top rusher with 389 yards on 89 carries, an average of 4.3 per play and shares the scoring lead with quarterback Jim Zorn with five touchdowns.

He is on course to challenge the school record of 891 yards for a season set by Steve Alzugaray in 1968.

But Paulson isn't eager to accept much personal glory.

"Please mention our offensive line," he pleaded. "Backs have to live or die with our lines and we have a good one. Our fullbacks are also overlooked. They are great blockers. Running behind them is a real pleasure."

Paulson says he is starting to get his timing together after starting out the season slowly because of missing spring practice.

"I feel all right now," he explained, "but it took me awhile to get in the swing of things. It hurt me to miss spring ball."

All four transfers from San Diego had to return to junior college to get their Associate of Arts degrees to be eligible at Poly this season.

"It was nothing but work," Paulson grinned in recalling his heavy academic load to earn the degree.

A native of Dayton, Ohio, Paulson moved West with his family when he was 10. He enjoyed an outstanding prep career at Los Angeles' Westchester High.

But Paulson decided to skip football for a year. Instead, he went to Europe.

"I wanted to travel around," he explained. "I spent some time working on a relative's farm in Denmark. It was a great experience."

After two seasons at Los Angeles Harbour College, Paulson ended up at USD without being actively recruited by Vinci.

Boxing ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Chacon of Los Angeles was named "Fighter of the Month" by Ring magazine Wednesday in its October ratings following his ninth round knockout of Venezuela's Alfredo Marcano on Sept. 7 which earned him the World Boxing Council title.

Despite recognizing Chacon as "Fighter of the Month," Ring still lists the featherweight title "vacant" because there is no universally accepted champion. Ruben Olivares of Mexico is the World Boxing Association's titleholder in the division.

The ratings (U.S. unless indicated):

Heavyweight Champion: George Foreman

1. Muhammad Ali
2. Joe Frazier
3. Ron Lyle
4. Ken Norton
5. Oscar Bonavena, Argentina
6. Jerry Quarry
7. Joe Bugner, Britain
8. Chuck Wepner

Cal Poly's Rich Paulson gains yardage at record rate

Tailback Rich Paulson eyes Poly's season rushing record

"I mainly went to USD because I liked the area," Paulson recalled. "I only talked to Coach Vinci once. I wanted to see if I could play for him because I knew he was a winner. Anybody who plays for Vinci learns to hate to lose."

At San Diego, Paulson helped the Toreros reach the NCAA Division III playoffs by rushing for 854 yards on 135 carries — an average of 6.3 — and 16 touchdowns.

"It was a tough decision when coach switched to Poly but I decided I might as well finish what I started so I came here," Paulson said.

Poly plays at a higher level (Division II) than USD and Paulson notices it. "We had some easy games at San Diego but you don't have them here," he commented. "Poly plays a tough schedule. It takes a little adjusting."

Vinci admits he wasn't that impressed at first with Paulson but he is a firm believer now.

"He wasn't that impressive when I looked at the films on him but Rich has done the job," Poly's new head coach said. "He is a steady, disciplined runner. If he can keep up his stats, he is going to have a great year."

BRONC BUSTERS — Poly has a weekend off but the football staff doesn't. Vinci and three of his assistants will be attending the UC Riverside-Poly game in San Luis Obispo Saturday night while the others will watch Cal State Los Angeles vs. Cal State Fullerton at the Santa Ana Bowl . . .

While all the attention is naturally on the SLO battle, Vinci admits he is concerned about the following week when Poly visits Cal State Angeles on a Friday afternoon . . .

Two of Poly's five freshmen showed plenty of promise in last week's 21-0 win over Sacramento State. Speedster Mike Harris from Indio, the CIF 2A prep champion in the high hurdles last year with a time of 14.2, rushed for 14 yards on seven carries and had a 96-yard kickoff return called back . . .

Sammy Ross of Sharpsville, Pa. directed the Poly offense in the final minutes Saturday. He completed four of five passes for 51 yards while Bart Moran, another freshman, connected on one of two for 29 yards . . .

Cornerback Harold Eggers earned the College Master Fidelity Union Life Athlete of the Week award for recovering a fumble, intercepting a pass and tight defense in the secondary . . .

Safety Ron Stewart earned the coaches' Hit of the Week honor.

Ex-Stag Stecher stars for Storm

"I was open on the play before that," said Denson. "I think Tony noticed that and came back to me."

After the touchdown, Adams passed to McAlister for the action point. It gave the Sun a four-point lead, 26-22, and knocked the Storm out of a situation where it could tie the game with a field goal.

The first half was all Portland as the home team, with a host of new players, stormed to a 22-11 lead. Rufus Ferguson scored all three Portland touchdowns.

The Sun scored on an Adams to McAlister pass, an action point pass from Adams to Dave Williams and a 22-yard field goal.

The third period was scoreless. But the Sun was on its way to a touchdown when it ended. Denson ran a punt back 33 yards to the Storm 23.

Kermit Johnson picked up four yards to the 19. Tony Adams scrambled around left end for 14 yards and first down on the five. Johnson went up the middle for the TD to make it 22-18.

"We were lucky," said Adams somberly. "They're the best team we've faced. I didn't see anybody across the line the last time we played them."

In addition to quarterback Pete Beathard, running back Wayne Patrick and wide receiver Joe Wylie, the Oklahoma star, on offense, Portland had eight new players on defense.

One of the new faces Adams saw was that of former Claremont-Mudd lineman Chris Stecher. The 6-6, 260-pound Stecher was drafted by Atanta of the NFL in January of 1973.

"Atlanta switched me to offense," related Stecher. "I was on the taxi squad last year until the final two games of the season when they activated me and moved me back to defense where I'd played all through high school (Sunset in Portland) and college.

"It's pretty hard to make a pro team anyway," the former all SCIAC tackle continued. "And when you're moved from defense to offense and back again, it makes it all the more difficult.

"When Atlanta released me this year, coach (Norm) Van Brocklin called coach (Dick) Coury of Portland and the next thing I knew I was on a plane."

Stecher has started the last three games for the Storm at right defensive tackle. Although credited with making four tackles against the Sun, he says he is suffering from "slow feet."

"I'm still adjusting to playing defense again," Stecher said. "I don't think I played a very good game tonight and I'm kind of down in the dumps because of it.

"The Sun is the hardest-hitting team we've played in the three games I've been here. It's hard to move when someone is knocking your feet out from under you and driving you back."

Portland had won four of the last five games including a 26-21 upset of Birmingham prior to Wednesday night. Ferguson, the squat (5-6, 190-pound) running back gained 69 of his 77 yards in the first half. But the "Roundrunner," as he is called, was held to eight yards on nine carries in the second half.

"Ferguson is a hell of a runner," said Fears. They kicked the bleep out of us in the first half. They're about the best team in the WFL right now."

Over in the Portland clubhouse, Coury might have agreed. . .but only for one half.

"This just might have been our worst second half of the season," mourned the Storm coach. "We had a thousand chances, but we just couldn't get the offense going in the second half."

Defensive back Jack Connors, in his first start since dislocating an elbow at Houston back in August, harassed the Storm in the third period when he intercepted a Beathard pass and recovered a Ferguson fumble.

CHARLOTTE (UPI) — David Pearson, seeking his second consecutive victory at the Charlotte Motor Speedway, Wednesday edged Richard Petty to take the pole position for Sunday's National 500 with a speed of 158.749 miles per hour.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — C. N. "Bud" Campbell, a sports announcer known as "the Voice of the Razorbacks," was killed today in an automobile accident.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sadaharu Oh, Japan's home run king, and the Tokyo Yomiuri Giants will train with the Los Angeles Dodgers next spring.

The Giants, Japan's top professional baseball team, will work out with the Dodgers at Vero Beach, Fla., next March for two weeks and play an exhibition game with the American club.

SANTOS, BRAZIL (UPI)— Pele, one of the greatest names in professional soccer, closed out a brilliant 17-year career Wednesday night in an emotional ceremony that saw his Santos club retire his famous number 10 jersey.

HOUSTON (UPI) — No. 1 seed Chris Evert easily defeated Carrie Meyer 6-1, 6-0, Wednesday in the third round of the $50,000 Virginia Slims tennis tournament.

Robles makes up for size

Stags think 'small'

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

Claremont-Mudd is thinking "smaller" this year.

Not that the Stags are any less ambitious or are aiming at any easier goals.

It's just that this year's Stags football team is not as big physically as it has been in recent years.

A prime example of this is defensive end Mike Robles.

Whittier at U. San Diego, 7:30 p.m.

Robles is credited by coach John Zinda as being one of the leaders of the C-M defense in the Stags' 23-21 win over St. Mary's in the season opener last week.

Robles, only 5-8 and 180 pounds, knocked down four passes, intercepted one and sacked the Gales' quarterback four times.

"I'll remember those numbers for awhile," he grinned, "until the next game. Really, I appreciate the interest and publicity, but I'd just as soon have you write about the whole team."

The team spirit, according to Robles is much better this year.

"Coach Zinda keeps telling us we're not as big so we have to work harder to accomplish our goals," Robles said. "We're a lot smaller but we have more team spirit. As far as athletes are concerned, we're not better, but working so hard to overcome our lack of size has brought us together. Everybody is confident. Everybody is going all out."

Size, or lack of it, is nothing new to Robles. His high school team, Wilson High in Los Angeles was not big. He played offense and defense as a tight end and defensive end on the same team as CSLA Quarterback Rick Holoubek and received All-City honors.

"We had small guys on that high school team," related Robles. "Coach (Vic) Cuccia liked fast people and went for speed. The big people didn't play."

At Claremont-Mudd, Robles has been a strong safety, linebacker and middle guard. He was listed on the Stags' first roster this year as a linebacker after finishing last year as a middle guard.

"I wasn't playing much as a defensive back or linebacker," he related. "So when our starting middle guard, Terry Robertson, got hurt and they asked me if I wanted to take over, I said sure."

Robles was moved back to defensive end this season because Zinda wanted someone who could drop back on passes or rush the passer.

Another difference this year is that the quarterback situation isn't quite so unsettled.

"Last year we had four different quarterbacks," Robles said. "That's four different personalities and it created some problems. This year we have only two quarterbacks (Larry Satterfield and Jim Schaumleffel). Both those guys would break a leg for the team. We like to block for them."

As a 5-8, 180-pounder, Robles finds himself working against tight ends that often are as big as 6-3 and 220 pounds. How does he handle them?

"There's no science to it," he smiled. "You've just got to stay low and be quicker."

And think small.

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (UPI) — One of the stops on the 1974 PGA tour was at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Center here. Nicklaus, who won the inaugural on his own course in 1973, also holds the course record of 62.

Fire's Carter out for surgery

CHICAGO (UPI) — Quarterback Virg Carter, who has guided the Chicago Fire to a 7-6 record in the fledgling World Football League, will undergo surgery for a broken finger on his right hand Thursday and probably will be lost for the season, the club announced Monday.

Canucks nip Kings on power play goal

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Andre Boudrias scored a power play goal with two seconds left on a penalty, the first of three straight Vancouver goals Wednesday night to give the Canucks a 5-4 National Hockey League exhibition win over the Los Angeles Kings.

Vancouver scored early with 29 seconds gone in the second period on another power play goal by Don Lever. Dennis Ververgaert made it 3-0 at 6:34 on a 15-foot shot. Ververgaert also assisted on each of the Canucks' first two goals.

Bobby Lalonde at 6:31 and Dave Dunn at 10:01 scored for Vancouver in the wild third period to offset the rush made by the Kings, who scored three times on goals by Bob Murdoch at 9:18, Tom Williams at 17:11 and Gene Carr at 18:36.

PP & K hopefuls can still register

Boys and girls, ages 8-13 as of Dec. 29, are welcome to register for the Pomona area competition of the Punt, Pass & Kick contest at Washington Park Saturday from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m.

The competition is co-sponsored by Fair City Ford, 611 E. Holt Ave., and the National Football League.

To register, an applicant should be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Kings reschedule Pittsburgh game

INGLEWOOD — The Los Angeles Kings and the Pittsburgh Penguins will switch their Oct. 29 National Hockey League game at The Forum to accommodate the Muhammad Ali-George Foreman world heavyweight championship.

Los Angeles will host the Penguins Monday night, Oct. 28 at The Forum. The starting time of 8 p.m. will remain the same.

B. Hernandez vs. C. Hernandez

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Unbeaten Bobby Hernandez is a slight favorite to run his victory streak to 15 tonight in a scheduled 10-round lightweight bout against veteran Centavito Hernandez of Mexico at the Olympic Auditorium.

The Los Angeles fighter, who has stopped eight of his foes by knockouts, is an 11-10 choice.

His Mexican opponent is 31-7 with 23 KOs.

Bobby Hernandez was originally scheduled to fight last week but the bout had to be postponed because he got the flu.

TINY TANK—Mt. San Antonio college tailback Binky Benton, who stands 5-feet-7 and weighs 175 pounds, leads the Mounties and South Coast Conference rushers with 227 yards on 65 carries in three games.

Developing a contender:

MSAC coach has time and talent

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

Despite the fact that Mt. San Antonio College hasn't won a game in three starts, head coach Mal Eaton dwells on what he sees as the positive aspects of the young season.

And why not? The Mounties have two non-conference games and a bye date before South Coast Conference play commences. Eaton figures he has the talent and the time to develop a contender.

The Mounties host L.A. Harbor this Saturday, hoping the positives outweigh the negatives on the scoreboard for a change. Harbor (1-1), lost a cliff hanger to Orange Coast last week, 16-14, while MSAC was losing to Golden West, 20-3.

The slow start, two losses and a tie, may be a blessing in disguise. In two previous seasons the Mounties have looked like world beaters early only to fade in the stretch to finish with 5-5 (1972) and 5-4 (1973) records and last place finishes in the South Coast.

Developing the talent, which is in abundance for the first time since Eaton came to MSAC from West Covina High in 1971, has proved to be frustrating for the head coach and his staff.

"We're not pessimistic at all," said Eaton. "But we sure are frustrated. We're so close, yet we can't quite put it together. I think we have more talent now than we did when Steve (Myer) was here."

Eaton was referring to his JC All-America quarterback, who passed for more than 3,000 yards in two seasons. Myer is currently starring for New Mexico.

Stepping in to fill Myer's shoes, Kurt Porter, a freshman from Rosemead, has been the victim of his own inexperience. He has thrown six interceptions in three games, mainly as a result of trying to force his pass into an area infested by defenders.

"We'll break him of that," Eaton said. "He has all the potential in the world. He's more than an adequate quarterback."

"More than adequate" could also describe tailback Binky Benton and fullback Nick Howard, except that phrase, by Eaton's account, would be an understatement.

Benton, says Eaton, is the most intense player he has ever coached, pound-for-pound. At 5-feet-7, 175 pounds, Benton resembles a tiny tank. He has gained 227 yards on 65 carries in three games.

Howard, a product of Charter Oak High, has impressed Eaton with his blocking ability, which doesn't show up as well as his rushing statistics: 104 yards on 20 carries for a 5.2 average.

Despite all this, the Mounties have scored just 17 points in three games while giving up 69. They have been able to move the ball offensively but have been unable to deliver a touchdown punch.

"We've moved the ball just fine between the 30-yard lines. And then we lose our intensity," Eaton says.

Eaton hopes he and his staff can find the key for Sturday night game with L.A. Harbor, a team the Mounties have beaten twice in the last two seasons.

"I'd like to say it will get easier," he says, "But Harbor has the best team its had since its big year in 1967."

More tough opposition for Chaffey

Chaffey College football coach Willie Richardson thinks his Panthers have faced just about the toughest opposition anywhere in their two opening games.

Chaffey lost both: two weeks ago to Santa Barbara, 26-14, and last weekend to Mission Conference favorite Grossmont, 20-0.

I know the scores don't indicate it," says Richardson, "but we are improving, especially defensively.

Kings rally for victory

The Claremont Peterson's Pharmacy Kings of Division 2 rallied from a 3-1 deficit to defeat the Torrance Celtic Rangers, 4-3, in Pacific Soccer League action. Jerry Van Zee led the Kings' offense with two goals while Mike Hunter and John Mack added one goal apiece.

In other action, the Claremont Spittin' Image Knights played the Division 3 Celtic Rangers to an 1-1 tie with John Carroll scoring the Knights' goal on an assist from Matt Smith. The Claremont Lancers of Division 3 were defeated 4-1 by San Sebastian of El Monte. Jason Powers scored the Lancers' only goal unassisted.

The Division 4 Claremont Stars open their season by hosting Brea-Olinda at 1:20 p.m. Saturday on the El Roble Intermediate School field. The Lancers are also at home with a noon match against the Scandia Vikings at El Roble. The Kings and Knights will both travel to Torrance.

Angels win finale but finish in cellar

ANAHEIM (UPI) — The California Angels finished the season in the American League West cellar, 22 games behind the division champion Oakland A's.

For Manager Dick Williams, it was quite a drop.

Williams managed Oakland to a World Championship in 1973 and then took over the Angels this year at mid-season. It was, obviously, going from a winner to a loser.

But Williams, who also turned Boston into a winner during his tenure there, is optimistic about 1975—even if the Angels finished at 68-94.

"It was good to end the season on a positive note," he said after the Angels pulled out a 3-2 victory over Oakland Wednesday night in the regular season finale.

"Our overall record may not show it but we've done really well the last weeks of the season. I've only been manager half the season so I'm ready to go again. We can't wait for spring."

During the Angels' final five-game homestand, they got three consecutive complete-game shutouts from Nolan Ryan, Andy Hassler and Frank Tanana—Ryan's a no-hitter against Minnesota.

Chuck Dobson made it four complete games in a row by stopping Oakland on five hits and running California's win streak to five. The skein enabled the club to avoid tying its team record of 95 losses, although the Angels finished in the cellar for the first time in their history.

Williams is high on the Angels' pitching staff.

"We may have the best pitching staff in the majors next year," he said. "We need some balance in the bullpen, especially a good short man, but we'll be ready for spring training."

Denny Doyle highlighted a two-run ninth inning rally with a bases-loaded single. Pinchhitter Ellie Rodriguez doubled in the tying run. Lee Stanton hit his 11th homer in the seventh inning.

Joe Rudi hit his 22nd homer in the fourth inning with Reggie Jackson on for Oakland. Paul Lindblad lost for the A's.

Angels' General Manager Harry Dalton said there should be no need for a major revamping of the team for next year.

"Next season, we'll have a good young experienced starting rotation," Dalton said. "There is no need for a major deal if the talent we have here comes through the way we expect them to.

"Even our weakest spot in the bullpen showed a 40 per cent improvement from the middle of the season on."

Who needs Csonka, Kiick?

By United Press International

Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick may have a little competition in Memphis next year.

Csonka and Kiick, both stars with the National Football League Champion Miami Dolphins, have signed million dollar contracts with the World Football League Southmen and will join the club next season.

But rookies Willie Spencer and J.J. Jennings have things well in hand already for the Southmen.

Spencer, who never went to college and spent the last two years playing semi-pro football, rushed for 141 yards and five touchdowns and Jennings went over the 1,000-yard mark with an 80-yard effort Wednesday night as the Southmen crushed the Jacksonville Sharks 47-19. Spencer's five TDs tied a league record set earlier this year by Chicago's Mark Kellar.

The victory, combined with The Hawaiians' stunning 14-8 upset of the Birmingham Americans in Honolulu, left Memphis with a one-game lead in the Central Divsion.

Spencer and Jennings have become the top rushing duo in the league.

"I'm all for him," Spencer said. "He ain't nothing but a big bull. His blocking was just great too. He picks up the first guy and knocks him out and I just run around him."

Jennings, the nation's leading scorer at Rutgers last year, became the first player in the new league to gain 1,000 yards. His 80 yards gave him 1,036 in 14 games. "The line did a good job," he said. "I only needed 44 yards. I knew it was just a matter of time until I got it. I'm pleased I got it in 14 games (the standard season in the NFL)."

In other games Wednesday night, the Southern California Sun overcame the Storm before 20,469 in Portland, the Florida Blazers blasted the Bell 30-7 before 7,150 in Philadelphia and the Steamer edged the Detroit Wheels 14-11 before 22,012 in Shreveport. Charlotte, transplanted from New York last week, is at Chicago tonight in the national television game.

Hawaiians 14, Americans 8

Former New York Giant quarterback Randy Johnson, in his first starting assignment for the Hawaiians, led them on drives of 95 and 90 yards in an upset of heavily-favored Birmingham.

The Hawaiians' clinching touchdown came in the third quarter when Al Davis lunged over from the one. The action point attempt failed. A crowd of 12,039 braved an early evening tropical storm and watched Birmingham, which won 11 straight games earlier this year, fall for the second straight week. Johnson earlier hit Tom Boyer on a 10-yard TD pass before setting up Davis' clinching TD.

Blazers 30, Bell 7

Tommy Reamon rushed for 130 yards and scored twice as the Blazers held their lead in the East by crushing Philadelphia. Reamon, a rookie from Missouri, scored on runs of 10 and four yards. Richard James ran 16 yards for the Blazers' first score and Bob Davis threw a four-yard TD pass to Matt Maslowski for the final score. John Land ran 12 yards for the lone Bell TD.

Steamer 14, Wheels 11

Rookie David Mays' eight-yard TD pass to Willie Frazier with 5:46 to play lifted Shreveport over Detroit. Mays' pass was the Steamer's only score after starting quarterback D.C. Nobles threw a 63-yard TD pass to Rick Eber on the first play of the game. The win was the first for the franchise since it moved to Shreveport 10 days ago from Houston.

Success of surgery for John uncertain

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Tommy John, who was 13-3 before being forced to miss the last half of the season with an elbow injury, won't be able to know until next January whether he will be back.

That's when he will start throwing again.

"The operation was quite serious," said Dr. Frank Jobe, who performed the surgery on John's left elbow last week. John ruptured a ligament in the elbow July 17.

"On a scale of 1 to 10, it would rate as one of the more serious operations for a pitcher. I'm optimistic but there's no way of knowing how it will be when Tommy starts to throw.

"Two years ago we took a bone spur out of Tommy's elbow. I could predict then that he'd come back like new. I can't do that this time, although the operation itself went very well."

John, 31, is confident he'll be back next year.

"I'm the eternal optimist," he said. "I've come back from elbow surgery before. I know how the timetable works. I know I can't rush it or do anything foolhardy.

"I also always keep myself in good shape. Maybe a little better, in fact, than most baseball players. The body can do a lot of things we don't give it credit for if we wouldn't give in to every little ache.

"That's what Mike Marshall has proved. In fact, I intend to talk to Mike and get his suggestions about arm exercises."

Recommendations revealed by DFG

The Department of Fish and Game today announced recommendations for 1975 sport fishing regulations that would reduce the trout limit during the general season on Marin, Santa Clara and San Mateo county streams, promote trophy and wild trout fishing, protect spawning salmon in the Feather River and on the north coast and regulate the filleting of fish taken aboard partyboats.

Department recommendations and those of the general public will go before the California Fish and Game Commission Friday in Sacramento.

Many of the department-suggested changes are designed to clarify or otherwise implement the plan placed in effect last year dividing the state into districts with homogeneous fisheries and regulations.

For example, the ocean limit for fin fish would apply in each of the seven inland fishing districts as well, and a portion of Alameda County where night fishing now is prohibited and would be placed within the Delta District where night fishing is allowed.

A five-trout year-around limit would be established on Don Pedro Lake in Tuolumne County where a trophy fishery is developing.

And, to support the two-fish limit in an experimental wild trout program on the East Fork of the Walker River in Mono County, fishing would be restricted to artificial lures. A 14-inch minimum size limit also would be imposed on this stream. Martis Lake, Nevada County, would be managed as a special wild trout lake with a two-trout limit and a winter fishing closure during a three-year study period.

Designated as salmon spawning area and closed to all fishing from the last Saturday in April through Dec. 31 would be a section of the Feather River from 100 feet upstream from Thermalito Afterbay outlet to the Highway 70 bridge in Oroville.

To protect spawning adults, the 15-day trout seasons in the headwaters of some north coast streams that resulted from extension of the statewide summer trout season to Nov. 15 would be eliminated.

The department wants to move against snaggers of spawning salmon and steelhead in the American River by permitting only single-pointed hooks in the area between Hazel Avenue Bridge and Nimbus Dam during the season. The site is in Sacramento.

The DFG would impose a 12-inch minimum length on largemouth bass in Lake Nacimiento and Oroville Lake — this on the strength of studies of the effect of such a limit on the fishery at Merle Collins Reservoir, Yuba County. The white bass limit in Nacimiento would be increased from five to 10.

Also to improve the production of largemouth bass, and to increase the harvest, fishermen in San Diego County would be permitted to take golden shiners for use as live bait.

And in the Central Coast, North Coast and Delta districts, Mississippi silversides could be used for bait in waters where they occur naturally. The department proposes that in the North Coast District American shad could be taken only by angling.

In the ocean and in San Francisco Bay the DFG would eliminate the provision permitting fishermen to take one white seabass less than the minimum length of 28 inches.

Deer hunting down in local mountains

In Southern San Bernardino County wardens report hunting activity was down as much as 50 per cent in the Big Bear, San Gregorio-Barton Flats and Wrightwood areas. A total of six deer was reported taken in the Big Bear region, and best hunting in the San Gregorio-Barton Flats area was reported by people who took horses into the higher elevations.

Hunting activity in Cleveland National Forest was down somewhat from previous years. Access problems restricted some hunters near Sierra Peak, but four deer were checked out from that area.

In Angeles National Forest, check station personnel and experienced sportsmen reported many hunters remained with their vehicles or stayed close to the roads throughout the day.

Along the West Fork of the San Gabriel River 113 cars were counted, but few hunters were successful. The Forest Service station at Rincon reports that two deer were checked out on opening day.

Fire closures in the West Fork area may be opened on a day-to-day basis later in the season and could afford some good hunting. Hunters should check with the Forest Service one day ahead of time to determine if the area will be opened. Special permits will be required to enter the area on open days.

An aerial survey of northeastern San Bernardino County, including the New York, Mid Hill and Providence Mountain areas, showed 166 hunter automobiles, about the same as last year. Fifteen deer were reported taken on the first two days of the season.

State lists Lake Perris hunting rules

Regulations for waterfowl hunting on a portion of the Lake Perris State Recreation Area in Riverside County have been announced by the Department of Fish and Game and the Department of Parks and Recreation.

Hunting on a 1780-acre portion of the recreation area southeast of the reservoir was authorized by the Parks and Recreation Commission at its September meeting. Hunting will be permitted on the area during regular hunting seasons between Sept. 1 and Jan. 31 of each year.

Waterfowl hunting regulations adopted by the Department of Parks and Recreation and the Department of Fish and Game provide for the following:

— The area will be opened for waterfowl hunting on Saturdays, Wednesdays and the first and last days of the season.

— Hunters will be admitted only by reservations issued by the Department of Fish and Game. Applications for reservations can be obtained at most sporting goods stores and from DFG offices. They must be received at the department's Sacramento headquarters at least 10 days before the requested shooting date. Reservations will be issued through a public drawing and successful applicants will be notified by mail.

— A quota of 50 hunters will be allowed on shooting days. There will not be a first-come, first served line as there is on other state-operated waterfowl shooting areas.

— The fee for waterfowl hunting will be $3 per hunter, of which $1 goes to the Department of Parks and Recreation and $2 goes to the DFG.

— Hunters will be restricted to shore, but boats may be used to place and retrieve decoys and dead or crippled birds.

Waterfowl season in the Southern California area will open Oct. 19 and continue through Jan. 19, 1975.

The hunting area at Lake Perris was opened to dove and rabbit hunting last Saturday.

No reservations are required for upland game hunting. There is no quota for the number of hunters, and hunting for upland game is allowed seven days a week during the authorized period.

The fee for upland game hunting is $1 a car which is collected at the entrance to the recreation area.

Shotguns are the only weapons permitted, and hunting is limited to game species.

Puddingstone to host yachtsmen

The Pomona Valley Sailing Association's Annual Fall Regatta will be held Sunday, Oct. 13 at the Puddingstone Reservoir in San Dimas.

Registration opens at 10 a.m. to all members of the Southern California Yachting Association. Skippers' meeting will be at 11 a.m., with the white flag falling at noon.

Entry fee is $2 and a daily lake permit of $1.50 is also required. Spectators are also welcome to the event. For further information call (714) 983-4977.

Only 1 will stay unbeaten

By MAJOR B. HOOPLE
The Wizard of Odds

Egad, sports fans, this is THE week for the high school football teams. It's the week when league play starts for most of the circuits in the valley.

And I've got a real surprise for you.

Going into this weekend, there are three San Antonio League teams still unbeaten. When the dust settles Friday night, only one will have an unblemished record—heh, heh!

It'll be none other than the 3-A's fifth-ranked Chino Cowboys. That's right (harrumph). The Chino backfield, known as the "Pony Express", will run all over the Damien youngsters, 21-7. And Ganesha's wishbone will crack Montclair's unbeatens, 24-6.

Claremont will finally get into the win column with a 13-7 victory over Upland on Jim VanZee's two field goals in the second half.

And in the traditional cross-town rivalry (kar-rumph), Pomona will slip by a determined Garey 11, 20-17.

Over in the Hacienda League, Bonita will emerge victorious in a real "barn burner" against Sierrra Vista, in what is considered the battle for the league championship already, 21-19.

San Dimas will open its league campaign with a 20-6 win over Gladstone, but the Mustangs from Walnut will continue to have their problems offensively in dropping a 24-10 decision to Alta Loma.

Ontario will have the same misfortune against Royal Oak, dropping an 18-0 verdict.

In the valley's college action, only two of the four-year colleges will emerge victorious, while both junior colleges (or community colleges) will fall.

La Verne will be one of the victors this weekend (heh, heh), topping host USIU, 24-12. Meanwhile, Claremont-Mudd will bow to Cal Lutheran, 18-6, and Pomona-Pitzer will fall to Azusa Pacific, 28-16.

Mt. San Antonio College won't be on the winning end of a 28-14 contest against L.A. Harbor, and Chaffey will also be on the losing end of a 30-12 decision to Palomar.

On the national scene, I—ahem—have some good news for you.

Here we are in the first week of October and undefeated and united collegiate pigskin aggregations are almost as scarce as those proverbial chicken's teeth — heh-heh-heh! But I — ahem — have some good news for you. After the recent reversals of form, this is the weekend the chalk players get even as most of the favored clubs will emerge victorious.

Leading the parade will be the Hoople Forecast Big Five — Notre Dame, Ohio State, Alabama, Oklahoma and Michigan. Look for the Irish to record its 24th victory in its 40th engagement with the resurgent Michigan State Spartans by a 32—14 tally. Ohio State's Buckeyes should have little trouble as they romp over Washington State, 47-8.

The Alabama — Mississippi contest at Jackson figures to be close with the Crimson Tide beginning to roll in the second half for a 30-20 triump! Oklahoma and Michigan, tuning up for next week's tradition-laden clashes with Texas and Michigan State respectively, should rack up easy victories. The Sooners will chastise Wake Forest, 42—0, and the Wolverines will thrash host Stanford, 38—11 — har — rumph!

Some other biggies — kaff-kaff — match Texas and Washington, at Austin; Texas A&M vs. Kansas in Lawrence; Wyoming hosting Arizona State in a Western Athletic contest in Laramie, and Wisconsin, one of the year's biggest surprises, entertaining Missouri at Madison. I confidently predict victories for the tough Texas duo, Texas and Texas A&M, by 35—17 and 28—20 counts respectively. In the other pair, Arizona State will prevail over the Cowboys, 39—29, and the Wisconsin Badgers will outfight the Missouri Tigers to win 21—18!

The big scrap in the East pits revived Navy against a good Boston College club. We foresee a spine-tingling 25—21 triumph for the Middies over the Eagles!

Oak Tree opener set

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Tizna and Modus Vivendi head the list of nominees for Saturday's $25,000 Autumn Days Handicap at Santa Anita.

The event opens the sixth meething of the Oak Tree Racing Association at Santa Anita.

A total of 24 fillies and mares received nominations for the Autumn Days. Tizna, winner of the $100,000 Santa Margarita Handicap here last year, is expected to battle Modus Vivendi for first prize money.

A total of $680,000 in stakes is to be distributed during the 22-day Oak Tree meeting, which concludes with the $100,000 Oak Tree Stakes on Nov. 3.

Passengers get new jet as monkey breaks loose

CHICAGO (UPI) — A "stump tail" monkey stumped United Airlines officials Monday night and forced them to transfer passengers from one jetliner to another at O'Hare International Airport.

A United spokesman said one of two "stump tails" being shipped aboard Flight 237, which originated in Newark, N.J., and was bound for Denver, Colo., somehow got out of its cage on the first leg of the flight. The animal immediately began monkeying around in the cargo hold beneath the passenger section.

When O'Hare cargo handlers entered the aircraft to remove the monkeys, which were being transported to the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee, they found the loose animal scampering about.

The passengers were all deplaned and put aboard a substitute jetliner, but the monkey did not leave the plane so willingly.

"We called the anticruelty society, and they said they didn't know anything about monkeys," the spokesman said. "We tried the police. We even called the zoo and got a recording. One of the grounds crew service guys finally got him out with a snare pull and he was put back in his cage.

"We didn't want to hurt him."

You can't keep an active girl down

Jamie Gay Weaver of Wenatchee, Wash., is not merely active — she's superactive. The 1975 March of Dimes National Poster Child, Jamie, 8, was born with a rare birth defect known as congenital anophthalmos. She has no eyes, but that has been no barrier to enthusiastic pursuit of a wide range of interests.

Jamie takes lessons in piano, swimming, skiing and horseback riding, sings in a church choir, is a help around the house, participates in regular school activities and writes poetry on her Braille typewriter. And she is already certain as to what she wants to be when she grows up — a teacher.

2 days before death

Inmate fatally stabbed had asked for release

CANON CITY, Colo. (UPI) — Colorado State Prison Warden Alex Wilson says an inmate who apparently was killed because of his informant activities asked to be released from protective custody only two days before his death.

"We had him under protective custody for some months," Wilson said recently. "He asked to get out of that custody last Thursday. He said that everything was all right."

William Padilla Jr., 25, was stabbed to death Saturday with a sharpened carpenter's square while attending a religious movie in the prison auditorium, Wilson said.

He said investigators have several leads in the murder but that witnesses have refused to come forth.

Padilla, who had been confined to the prison medium security unit, requested the security precautions be lifted because he learned the four inmates he believed wanted to kill him had been placed in maximum security for their part in the burning of the prison's gymnasium.

Padilla's wife, Maryann, said she received a letter from her husband the week before his death telling her that he expected to be killed because some inmates believed he was responsible for their incarceration.

"No one wants to do anything to help me so I'm just going to go out there and get it over with once and for all," the letter said. "I'd rather be dead than locked up. I've never run from anyone in my life. I just can't keep going like this."

In a separate letter to his mother two months ago, Padilla asked that his wife be allowed to make his funeral arrangements.

"I love her and I planned on spending the rest of my life with her and if I can't . . . then I want her to put me to rest," he wrote.

Padilla was sentenced to the prison on a heroin possession conviction from Denver.

Board orders emergency laws for scuba safety

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Board of Supervisors has ordered emergency laws written to set mandatory standards for training and certification of scuba divers and instructors, charter boat safety and equipment quality control.

"Uniform and more stringent standards are desperately needed to stop needless drownings of ill-prepared divers," Supervisor Chairman Kenneth Hahn said.

The board action followed an investigation conducted by the Underwater Safety Committee, under the direction of Seymour Greben, county recreation director. The report found that:

—Anyone can give diving lessons for a fee.

—No lesson standards are required.

—A student can become a certified diver without knowing how to swim.

—Anyone can certify a student as being qualified to dive.

—Scuba equipment sold by retailers does not have to meet any standards.

—There are no standards for charter boat safety or air purity in scuba equipment.

Hahn said the emergency ordinance, which he ordered ready by Oct. 1, would affect only unincorporated areas, but would include most of Santa Catalina Island, which is considered the busiest diving spot in the county.

Greben said the majority of scuba diving deaths and accidents are caused by inadequate diver training and faulty equipment.

Some commercial scuba diving business have said they would fight any proposed legislation.

Hahn said that one way of enforcing the ordinances would be through county business licensing procedures.

Where will we be in a few million years?

CHICAGO (UPI) — A University of Chicago geologist Monday issued a gloomy forecast for the next 100 years, predicting at least one major earthquake in a Western city, widespread drought and famine, intolerable pollution, and an exhaustion of natural resources.

However, Peter J. Wyllie, a professor of petrology and geochemistry at the university, said the good news is that all this will not lead to doomsday.

"Despite the fact that some natural resources will be effectively exhausted within 100 years, that there will be local pollution at intolerable levels, and that there will be widespread food shortages and famine, I remain confident that a succession of world crises will not lead to a catastrophe and doomsday," he said.

He also predicted in 20 million years Los Angeles and San Francisco will be in the same place.

Speaking to Midwestern contributors to the Encyclopedia Britannica, Wyllie said estimates of demand and supply for energy "for the next 100 years make it clear that no improvement is in sight."

But, he added, new discoveries or inventions could nullify his gloomy forecast.

The English-born geologist said one Western city was due for devastation by an earthquake, but did not pinpoint the city. However, he indicated it would not be in California.

"The San Andreas fault system will be controlled, and California will suffer no more major earthquakes," he said.

As to the long range future, Wyllie said:

—"Within millions of years, the drift of Africa toward Europe will once again seal the Straits of Gibraltar and the Mediterranean Sea will evaporate in about 1,000 years.

—"Movements in California will bring the present site of Los Angeles adjacent to the present site of San Francisco in 20 million years and adjacent to Alaska in 60 million years."

Even farther ahead, Wyllie said the Pacific Ocean will close up, the Atlantic Ocean will become bigger than the Pacific is today, Japan will be uplifted in a mighty mountain range and Australia will have moved north to form a supercontinent with Asia and North America.

Don't blow top

DETROIT (UPI) — The radiator cap and coolant level in a car needs more attention in hot weather than in cold. The filler cap must be rated at the correct pressure for the car.

If the spring and the gasket have rusted or deteriorated, the cap should be replaced.

Bradley outlines holdings

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mayor Tom Bradley Monday reported in a financial statement he had separate investments exceeding $10,000 each in one bank and four real estate holdings.

Statements were filed by nearly 1,000 city and county officials with County Clerk Clarence Cabell under the state's new conflict-of-interest law.

Bradley said he had the investments in the Bank of Finance, three holdings in Los Angeles and one in Moreno, Calif.

In outside income, Bradley reported $1,000 for an article he wrote for the Metropolitan Fund, Detroit, and said various speeches and television appearances during the past year did not exceed $1,000 each.

Many officials apparently had trouble listing all the free tickets and passes to entertainment spots and sports events. Councilman Joel Wachs listed everything he could remember which may or may not be worth $250."

His list included these free passes: Pairs of season seats for Dodgers and Rams games, a season box at Hollywood Bowl, four season tickets for UCLA football, four season football tickets and two season basketball tickets from USC, two Greek Theater tickets for some shows and four for others.

A cattle brand is a mark burned on a cow to show who owns it. The branding of cattle is one of the cowboy's most important jobs today, just as it was during the days of the old frontier.

With thousands of cattle wandering over unfenced ranges, belonging to many different owners, branding was a means by which one rancher could tell his cattle from those of another.

During the spring roundup, the cowboys gathered all the cattle together in a big herd. They branded the newborn calves with the same brand worn by the calf's mother.

Each ranch had its own letter or mark that was stamped with a hot branding iron.

Where the brand was burned in, the hair never grew again.

Sometimes "earmarks" and other markings were cut on the animal in order to recognize it easily in the crowded herd.

Calves that grew up without a brand to tell who owned them were called "mavericks."

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

GUY LOMBARDO and his Royal Canadians will play for a dinner-dance at the Hollywood Palladium at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 19. Tickets at $18.50 per person are on sale at Mutual, Liberty and Wallich's agencies.

Zulu Paraders to perform jazz concert

The King Zulu Paraders will perform at the monthly meeting of the New Orleans Jazz Club at the Fullerton Elks Hall, 1451 Brea Blvd., at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

The 14-piece jazz band, headed by trombonist Ed Leach, will play from 3:30 to 4:30. A different jazz group takes the stage every half hour through the six-hour session.

The meetings are open to the public. Tickets are $1. Refreshments and food will be available.

Further information can be obtained at (714) 528-1984.

The San Bernardino Civic Light Opera will hold auditions for "South Pacific" at Arrowview Junior High School, Highland Avenue and G Street, San Bernardino, at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Those auditioning must secure an appointment time from the San Bernardino Civic Light Opera office at 2079 N. E St., phone 882-2545.

Veteran stage and film star Howard Keel will head the cat in the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical which is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year. A new production is planned to recapture the style and nostalgia of the late '40s and early '50s.

"South Pacific" is scheduled to open Nov. 15 for a limited run in the California Theater of Performing Arts in San Bernardino.

Knott's Berry Farm to expand

BUENA PARK (UPI) — A multi-million dollar expansion project is being planned for Knott's Berry Farm, it was announced Tuesday.

According to Marion Knott Anderson, daughter of the park's founder, Walter Knott, the expansion will contain rides, a town plaza and other structures reminiscent of the 1920s.

The project, which will replace a "gypsy camp" on a five-acre site, will be the most expensive in the 54-year-history of the tourist attraction, Mrs. Anderson said.

The worst thing about being out of a job, aside from the obvious economic setbacks, is not knowing where to look.

Equally frustrating is the problem of where to look for prospective employees.

Both of these dilemmas are resolved completely in one place -- the Classified Section of your newspaper. Job hunters have stopped wearing out their shoes long ago and turned to the Help Wanted Ads in the Classified pages. Here they can find a variety of job opportunities in a market that can change from day to day. Sooner or later they are likely to find the position for which they are qualified. Or they can list their qualifications, experience and salary needs in the Jobs Wanted classification.

Employers have come to depend heavily on the wide readership of Help Wanted ads. They find it an inexpensive method of describing exactly the type of worker needed. They are also able to give pertinent details about salary, pensions and other benefits.

Nothing brings employer and employee together more quickly and more effortlessly than the Help Wanted Ads. It's the best friend a job hunter ever had.

To find or fill a job it's the WANT ADS.... Look into it... dial 622-1201

MANAGEMENT
4 HRS. A DAY
NEW CAR FURNISHED
YOU'VE READ RIDICULOUS ADS LIKE THIS BEFORE

However we are only half kidding. Many of our management people drive Cadillacs and do make considerably more than $500 a week.

After training young EXECUTIVES for 40 years we have found that "IF YOU CAN BELIEVE IT YOU CAN DO IT" and if you are just now starting out in your business career searching for the RIGHT PROFESSION for the RIGHT COMPANY for that SUCCESS OPPORTUNITY then we want to talk to you.

Our parent company has given us unlimited financing for the purpose of hiring and training young men to assume MANAGEMENT POSITIONS as soon as they can qualify. First year compensation for IR SALES REPRESENTATIVES averages $12,000 per year. Our trained SENIOR EXECUTIVES average $27,500 bonus plans and substantial fringe benefits are available immediately to those who qualify.

Right now I need six men to help us manage our expanding chain of OFFICES, Ontario-Upland area and the Hemet Valley. If you are a man of INTEGRITY, BONDABLE and have a good automobile come in for an interview. You look us over, we'll look you over and we'll see where we go from there.

FIAT 128 SEDANS

Only the designing ingenuity and engineering excellence of FIAT could have produced this incredible sub-compact: FIAT 128. The economy car that offers all the advantages of smallness with none of the disadvantages. It's shorter in length than VW — but it's bigger inside. That's the result of mounting the front-wheel drive engine transversely so that it occupies just 20% of the total interior — leaving fully 80% for passenger room and a 13 cu. ft. trunk. The 4 door model has the same interior and exterior dimensions.
And space isn't the only advantage.
Discover why the FIAT 128 has won more International Car-Of-The-Year awards in Europe than any other car in history.
STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:
● 4-speed Transmission ● Front Disc Brakes ● Dual Brake System ● Radial Ply Tires ● Reclining Bucket Seats ● 4 Wheel Independent Suspension ● Unitized Body Construction ● Flow-Through Ventilation.

FIAT 124 STATION WAGON TC

FIAT fever is spreading. More and more people are finding out that fine small cars make great good sense. And they're learning that all small cars not created equal. FIAT designs and engineers small cars not merely to be small—but to be small and spacious, small and strong, small and safe, small and dependable, small and durable, small and economical, small and efficient. In short, small and superior. This is one of them: FIAT 124 Station Wagon. Only 164.8" in length. Yet it has been unbelievable 42.5 cu. ft. cargo capacity that's easily accessible through the floor-to-roof hatch panel opening. An optional automatic transmission is available. Discover FIAT quality. Discover the FIAT 124 Station Wagon—and explore the space.
STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:
● 4-Speed Transmission ● 4-Wheel Disc Brakes ● Dual Brake System ● Radial-Ply Tires ● Reclining Bucket Seats ● All Coil Spring Suspension ● Unitized Body Construction ● Full Carpeting ● Roof Rack.

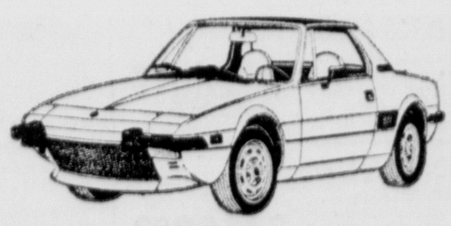

FIAT 128 SPORT L COUPE

Elegance and action concur totally in this sleek, modernday interpretation of genuine GT tradition. And it has a third dimension that no one will ever suspect. Amazing economy. The styling is a brilliant blending of balanced contours—the sweeping fender line, the chopped tail, the spoiler effect rear deck, the fastback profile. The interior is a rich ensemble of thick carpeting, luxurious bucket seats, sports console, padded steering wheel and full instrumentation. The performance credentials are complete: 1290 cc gas saving, rally-winning engine; front wheel drive; 4-speed synchromesh trans, rack and pinion steering. Select a life style—any style. Then discover the car that fits it perfectly: FIAT 128 Sport L Coupe.
STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:
● 4-Speed trans. ● Front Disc Brakes ● Dual Brake System ● Radial-Ply Tires ● Electronic Tachometer ● Unitized Body Construction ● Full Carpeting ● Flow-Through Ventilation.

FIAT 124 SPORT COUPE

The magnificent merger of true sports car performance and luxurious family sedan function. And it's a perfect combination — not a compromise. The elegance of its styling expresses your excellent taste. The richness and practicality of the spacious interior confirm your sound judgment. The economy of its compact size is more important than ever before. And when this thoroughbred is in motion, you'll know the emotion of pure sports car excitement — 1756 cc twin overhead cam engine, 5-speed trans., console mounted stick shift, electronic tachometer, instant response, total control. There are few cars in its price range. Discover a dynamic car for a spirited family — theFIAT 124 Sport Coupe.
STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:
● 5-speed trans. ● 4 wheel Disc Brakes ● Dual Brake System ● Radial Ply Tires ● Reclining Bucket Seats ● Electronic Tachometer ● Unitized Body Construction ● Flow-Through Ventilation

FIAT 124 SPORT SPIDER

This is a sports car with a present and a future: built to perform with power and precision; styled by master-designer Pininfarina to endure as classic. It has only one conservative feature: its moderate price. To drive it is to know the full meaning and measure of the total sports car experience. A 1756cc twin overhead cam engine teamed with gas-conserving 5-speed synchromesh trans, delivers a cyclonic surge of power to the radial ply tires in touch and in tune with the road. And you command the performance surrounded by the rich wood grain, luxurious bucket seats and full instrumentation of a genuine sports car cockpit. Discover the FIAT 124 Spider — and let it transport you into a new way of living.
STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:
● 5-speed trans. ● 4 wheel Disc Brakes ● Dual Brake System ● Radial Ply Tires ● Reclining Bucket Seats ● Electronic Tachometer ● Unitized Body Construction ● Wood Grain Dash and Console

FIAT X 1/9

This is the spectacular, advanced, in-a-class-by-itself, mid-engine FIAT X 1/9. The car of the future. Now. The product of three-quarters of a century of FIAT experience and excellence. No car in its field has ever been accorded a more approving reception by independent experts. Every major motor car publication has reviewed it, acclaimed it and recommended it not only as a resounding styling sucessive performer and a superlative value as well. The body is the creation of Nuccio Bertone, the designer of many of the most renowned and respected sports cars in the world. Discover a new star of the first magnitude. Discover the brilliant FIAT X 1/9.
STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:
● 1290 cc Mid Engine ● 4-Speed Trans. ● 4-Wheel Disc Brakes ● Dual Brake System ● Radial-Ply Tires ● Rack and Pinion Steering ● Unitized Body Construction including Roof Rollbar ● Electronic Tachometer ● Removable Roof ● Flow-Through Ventilation.
